20TH YEAR. NO. 79. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1903—TWELVE PAGES. TWO CENTS

THE GAIN IN POPULATION A STRONGLY MARKED FACTOR IN PROGRESS OF THE CITY

No Doubt East Liverpool Has 20,000 Inhabitants and Indications Point to 22,000.

What is the population of East Liverpool? This is a question that is being as earnestly and freely discussed as the municipal elections, since the exclusive publication by the News Review yesterday that the poll of the city made at the instance of the Prohibition party leaders showed the total voting population to exceed 4,500.

The oft-repeated statement that East Liverpool is a growing city has to be accepted without comment or serious thought. Every resident of the city has been cognizant of the fact that the population has been increasing at a rapid rate, but just what the influx since the last census has brought the total up to was not given a great deal of consideration until the publication yesterday of the total number of votes. Now nearly everybody is wondering what the population of the city has grown to be. It has been variously estimated at from 18,000 to 22,000.

In the census of 1900 East Liverpool was credited with something more than 16,000 inhabitants, and it seems astonishing to many that in the neighborhood of 4,000 have been added in about three years. Yet, this is a fact, for the poll recently made is reasonably accurate. The probabilities are that if any mistakes have occurred in the count of the voters all have not been listed.

There has been no boom, no sudden influx to the city of a transient population, on the contrary a steady, substantial development has been noted, so steady, in fact, that its great extent was realized by but few.

There have been many conjectures as to the exact population of the city, and it is not at all likely that such a matter of vital interest will be allowed to remain an uncertainty until the next decennial census of the government. The estimates that have been made are based upon the percentage of voters to the entire population. Usually it is granted that every fifth inhabitant is an elector, which would indicate the population of the city to be in the neighborhood of 22,500. Others who have estimated the population from the number of voters claim that the ratio here will be nearer four to one, indicating the population to be about 18,000.

The growth of the city in the past three years has not been confined to population alone. There has been a

VOTES COMING FROM AFAR

Interest in the Contest by No Means Confined to Ohio.

CANDIDATES ARE HUSTLING

The popularity contest is attracting attention far beyond the borders of Ohio. Votes come from near and far. W. H. Purinton, of Stockton, Cal., sends in a vote for his old friend, Wash Williams, and writes that it makes him think of old time friends to read the News Review. He asks if he is entitled to vote. Being a reader, he certainly is, and it is to be hoped that he will vote again and regularly.

This is only a specimen of the letters the News Review is receiving, showing the interest of former residents of East Liverpool and Columbiana county in the result of the vote for the prizes, free trips offered by this paper. This interest will be kept up all through the summer. Those who are in the race are in it to stay, and the number of contestants is constantly increasing. There is room for all. The conditions of the voting are so plain that a child can understand them. That they are well understood is plain from the way the votes are pouring in. As long as the conditions heretofore announced are complied with, every vote is counted as fast as received. So far there have been very few defective ballots.

Every reader of the paper is urged to save his coupons and vote them. The interest in the contest, already great, is bound to grow greater as time passes. See fourth page for particulars and then make up your mind to vote early and often.

This is the way the voting stands:

A BIG MEETING OF REPUBLICANS

CENTRAL COMMITTEE AND CANDIDATES TO ASSEMBLE.

The Republican city central committee will meet in the council chamber, city hall, tonight. It will no doubt be one of the most enthusiastic meetings yet held, every member of the committee knowing full well its object and the necessity of lively action.

Chairman W. L. Smith has announced the reasons for a well attended gathering of the Republican leaders and they will not fail in their duty. Not only will the committee be present, but others interested in the party and every candidate whose name will appear on the Republican ticket. The latter have been especially requested to attend, it being the intention of the central committee to ask them to carry on the work next Monday in a manner to be pointed out by the committee.

While the leaders of the party are confident, they are aware that the opposition is working night and day and propose to be equally active.

NO SIGNS OF INSANITY

Mrs. Hawkins Subjected to a Lunacy Inquest and Then Set Free.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special)—Mrs. Lewis Hawkins, of Church Hill, who attempted suicide Tuesday night by taking morphine, was brought into probate court yesterday for a lunacy inquest. The woman has always been peculiar, it seems, and the examining doctors being unable to detect anything unusual in her mental condition yesterday refused to pronounce her insane. She resisted when the sheriff's wife, and one of his deputies went to the Hawkins home to bring her to Lisbon and it was with a great deal of difficulty that she was brought into court.

An effort was made to pursuade the woman to go to the Massillon hospital voluntarily and take treatment for awhile, but she refused and was released after promising that she would not again attempt her life.

Parents of Triplets.

Beaver Falls, Pa., April 3.—Solomon Jones and wife, of Big Beaver township, this county, are the proud parents of triplets, which were born on Tuesday evening. There are two boys and a girl and all are strong and healthy. The mother is 24 years of age.

NO SETTLEMENT IS YET IN SIGHT

BUILDING TRADES DIFFICULTIES STILL UNADJUSTED.

The strike situation remains practically unchanged since yesterday. The carpenters, who have been idle since Wednesday, held a meeting last night, at which a state of strike was declared to exist. Other than this and the appointment of a press committee the transactions of the meeting have not been made public. The members of the press committee are W. H. McConnell, A. P. Cope and J. L. Reed.

Brotherhood hall has been secured as headquarters for the union during the day and members can be found there at almost any hour discussing the situation. The men are in good spirits and confident of success. Quite a number of them are taking job work and others have found work in Wellsville and Chester.

The situation in regard to the painters remains unchanged. One independent contractor in conversation with a News Review reporter this morning stated he would sign the scale before the week is out. Some of the painters are working by the day for individuals who are willing to pay the increase. Others are serving as paper hangers. Quite a number of the men will remain idle two weeks to await a decision from the bosses.

The builders' exchange did not meet last night, but will meet tonight. What action if any will be taken cannot even be conjectured.

Considerable inconvenience is being experienced as a result of the strike, and already there has been a great loss of time to the contractors and to the carpenters and painters.

The journeymen plumbers are much worked up over the report that they intend to lie low and take no action on the wage question until the matter has been settled among the various other trades. One of them said last evening: "Whatever action we journeymen take will be absolutely without regard to that taken by the other trades. We have until May 1 to submit a proposition to the bosses and if we decide to do so we have plenty of time. So far we have done nothing. We will hold our regular meeting next Tuesday night when something may be done, but none of us are aware of it at the present time."

CITY CLERK ACCUSED OF LARGE PECULATIONS

Wheeling, April 3.—Attorney W. R. Staples, counsel for City Clerk James Pine, of Sistersville, who is charged with peculations of the municipal funds of that city amounting to about $12,000, arrived in Wheeling yesterday and appeared before Judge Thayer Melvin, of the circuit court, and secured a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Melvin granted the writ requiring the officer in whose custody Captain Pine is held to produce his body before Hon. M. H. Willis, judge of the circuit court of Tyler county, then to be sitting in chambers at the McClure house, in Wheeling, at 4:30 p. m. today.

The writ was granted by Judge Melvin after counsel had communicated with Judge Willis by wire. The proceeding of a judge in a different circuit granting a habeas corpus is a rather unusual one in this section, but it occurs frequently in Virginia and other states. Attorney Staples complains that the Wheeling and Sistersville papers have given Pine decidedly the worst of it, and painted him a rogue of the deepest die, when he was nothing of the sort.

The application for a writ of habeas corpus was made to Judge Melvin because of the fact that Judge Willis lives at West Union, a point further from Sistersville than Wheeling, and the judge in this city was more accessible than the judge in Tyler county. Pine was to have been transferred from the Sistersville jail to the county jail at Middlebourne this morning, but armed with the writ, Attorney Staples will probably forestall this proceeding.

Final Report in Bank Case.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special)—Judge Moore, as receiver of the defunct First National bank of this city, today forwarded his final report to the comptroller of currency at Washington, D. C., who will declare the final dividends to creditors.

SMITH'S REPLY TO THE REQUEST

Wellsville Trades Council Answered Regarding Street Railway.

WOULD BE GLAD TO BUILD

Provided a Suitable Route Could Be Obtained—Effort Will Be Made to Find a Practicable Line Between the Cities.

The following letter is an answer to a petition sent C. A. Smith, of East Liverpool, asking him to extend the street car line he proposes to build, to Wellsville:

"Trades and Labor Council, Wellsville.

"Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your favor of the 24th inst and am pleased to note the interest you are manifesting in the securing for your city of modern and convenient street car accommodation. Situated as you are this is of vital importance, and the action taken by your council is certainly highly commendable, the virtues of which should not fail of recognition, both by the taxpayers and the citizens at large. I shall be very much pleased if by some feasible route a line could be constructed between this city and Wellsville, whereby the cost would not be extraordinary, to take this matter up and if possible provide your citizens with a line such as we will build in this city, thoroughly modern in equipment and capable of giving adequate and first-class accommodation.

"With a feeling of gratitude for the kindly expressions you have tendered me, and trusting your action is but a forerunner of the establishment of a line such as you desire, I thank you.

"Yours very truly,

"C. A. SMITH."

At a regular meeting last evening this matter was discussed and Trades Council will do all in its power to find a suitable route for such a line to connect East Liverpool and Wellsville. The session was short and no other business of importance was transacted.

EAST LIVERPOOL VICTIM OF SWINDLING CONCERN

A special from New York to the News Review states that the name of Nellie Laraby, East Liverpool, Ohio, is signed to a letter dated and postmarked East Liverpool, found when the United States authorities raided get-rich-quick concerns in that city. The amount of the victim's loss is kept secret by the authorities.

The name Laraby is not found in the East Liverpool directory and the letter was probably from some transient resident here.

A LISBON SALOON VISITED BY THIEVES

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special.)—Al Anderson and David Locke were arrested charged with robbing Martin Welch's saloon Wednesday night. Four doors were broken open. In the barroom several quarts of whisky and two boxes of cigars were taken.

In their movements the thieves became badly mixed up with a bucket of red paint and last evening when Al Anderson was found drunk in a graveyard his clothing was covered with red paint.

CROP A FAILURE

Maple Sugar And Syrup Makers Lost Half a Million in Ohio This Year.

The maple syrup and sugar crop is a complete failure this season. Not in years have the owners of camps experienced such discouraging conditions, and in consequence the product of the finely flavored sap of the sugar orchard will command a price almost out of reach of all. Ordinarily sap continues to flow beyond the first of April, while this year practically nothing has been done since March 10, while many syrup-makers never opened their camps at all.

Figures compiled places the probable loss to syrup and sugar makers throughout the state of Ohio at $550,000.

FERRALL IS FOUND BUT NOT ARRESTED

CONSTABLE GILL RETURNS WITHOUT THE ACCUSED MAN.

Prosecutors, However, State That the Charges Will Be Pushed.

Constable Charles Gill and Daniel T. McCarron returned last evening from Pittsburg, where they went on Wednesday evening in search of J. E. Ferrall, who is accused of embezzlement by the Dresden Pottery company. Wednesday evening was spent vainly in the search and it began to look yesterday as if his efforts would be fruitless, when Gill and McCarron, upon entering the Hotel Henry, met an East Liverpool man, who, when asked if he had seen or heard anything of Ferrall, gave them information that the wanted individual was standing in front of the hostelry.

The officer immediately adjourned to the pavement and recognized Ferrall, who was standing alone. Ferrall was aware of the fact that a warrant had been issued for his arrest, and made not the slightest effort to escape the constable. Instead he met the East Liverpool man cordially and indignantly denounced the action that had been started against him. Although Gill had a warrant in his possession for Ferrall, no arrest was made. He was simply taken in charge and at no time would he have been prevented in walking away if he had chosen to do so. Why Ferrall was not arrested neither McCarron or Gill would state. They insisted they had nothing to say in regard to the trip. Gill even denied that he had a warrant for Ferrall, notwithstanding that one was turned over to him by 'Squire Rose.

It was stated last evening by an official of the concern that is prosecuting Ferrall that Pittsburg attorneys have been employed and that the case will be pushed until a settlement is made.

A Wheeling dispatch says that the East Liverpool men visited that city yesterday in their efforts to locate Ferrall.

DR. JONES' LECTURE ON JOHN WESLEY

The First M. E. church was nearly filled last night with a congregation of representative people of the city, who had gathered to listen to the lecture delivered by Rev. David Jones on "The Life of John Wesley." Dr. Jones spoke of Wesley's scholarship, piety and other qualities which makes his name held sacred by the millions of Methodists throughout the world. He was one of 19 children and was born in Lincolnshire, England. He received a good education, having finished a course at the renowned Oxford college.

Wesley came to this country with Oglethorpe and settled in Georgia. There he received a new religious experience by Moravian Christians and his teachings and doctrines were founded on his own personal experience. He originated the class meeting and established lay preaching. He preached 40,000 times and traveled 200,000 miles by stage or horseback.

To Methodists the name of Wesley stands for all that is true and ideal in their religion. His wonderful personal characteristics made him the great force that he was in the religious world.

SEEKING STATISTICS

One of the Geological Survey Looking After Coal And Stone Products.

E. B. Ladd, of the United States geological survey, is in the city securing statistics of the stone and coal products in this community. He speaks favorably of the section, stating that it compares well with others surrounded by similar conditions.

It will take him several days to complete his work, when he will make a report to officials at Washington, who will use it in connection with the report on the state.

THE CIRCUS IS COMING

THE BREWERS ARE AFRAID PLANTS WILL BE SET ON FIRE AND GET AN INJUNCTION

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, April 3.—Following close a statement that an early settlement of the big brewery workers' strike was in prospect came the news last night that the brewers had secured an injunction before Judge Thomas M. Bigger, restraining the strikers from resorting to acts of violence. Several minor disturbances during the day led the brewers to apply for the injunction. The men are not enjoined from congregating about the plants, but are ordered not to molest or injure in any way the plants and property of the owners. The brewers are said to be fearful that their plants will be burned down, but the workmen declare there is no ground for this alarm.

Ohio will be represented by a provisional regiment of the National Guard at the dedication of the St Louis exposition on April 30. Chairman W. F. Burdell and Stacy B. Rankin, of the Ohio exposition commission, have informed Adjutant General Gyger that the necessary funds for the trip will be forthcoming. This will be pleasing news to the guardsmen who had given up hope of going on account of a statement made by the commission while in session in this city last week that no money was available for the trip. It is proposed to select nine men from each National Guard company, making a provisional regiment of about 800, plus a complement of officers. It is estimated $8,000 will be necessary.

The St. Louis people have assured the commissioners that the soldiers will be well cared for in that city. It is not to cost them a penny. The Ohio commission will furnish the soldiers subsistence while traveling. The regment will rendezvous at Columbus, leaving for St. Louis on April 27. It will have an opportunity of displaying its efficiency before President Roosevelt, who will be present at the ceremonies.

A special from Findlay says that a local of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters has been organized in that city, about 40 employes of the Bell pottery company being members. The new local will be known as Findlay union No. 67. Officers were elected and delegates chosen to trades council. A pleasing feature is that a scale of wages was presented

TALKED WITH THE SPIRIT OF HENRY W. BEECHER

New York, April 3.—The Rev. Dr. I. K. Funk, head of the publishing firm of Funk & Wagnals, and formerly of Springfield, O., admitted yesterday that he had been in communication with the spirit of the late Henry Ward Beecher.

"I will not say the story is true in all its details," said Rev. Dr. Funk when asked about the communication, "but it has a substantial basis of fact."

The story of the message Dr. Funk recently received is: That within the last week he attended a spiritualistic seance given by a woman who has gained eminence and many devoted followers. It is said that the medium told Dr. Funk that his friend, Henry Ward Beecher, wanted to speak to him from the spirit world. Dr. Funk assented.

"Why don't you return that coin you borrowed from me 30 years ago" the medium inspired by Mr. Beecher's spirit said in Mr. Beecher's well known jovial manner.

"What coin?" Dr. Funk asked, astonished

"Why, the widow's mite," said the medium, speaking for Mr. Beecher. "You used it as a model for illustration in one of your books."

"I returned it to you years ago," said Dr. Funk.

"Pardon me, but you are mistaken," the spirit insisted. "If you will look in your safe, in the compartment in the lower right hand corner, you will find my old coin under some papers."

The spirit described the bundle of papers and the position of the coin with considerable detail. When Dr. Funk arrived at his office next day he began searching the old safe for the coin. He found it in precisely the position and under the papers the medium had revealed it. Dr. Funk declined to give the details.

GRAND SERVICE AT ST. STEPHEN'S

A FINE SERMON PREACHED

St. Stephen's Episcopal church was the scene of a beautiful service yesterday afternoon when Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, bishop of the Cleveland diocese, administered the rites of confirmation to a class of about 30. The church was comparatively well filled when the services were opened with the regular confirmation ritual service.

After the ceremony had been performed by Bishop Leonard he preached an able sermon. He said that it should be the special prayer of all for God to give them strength. The confirmation service was a symbol for the entering of the grace of God into the heart. This grace may be secured by prayer. God has a great reservoir of grace with which we should constantly keep in communication. This communication can be established by prayer. The reason we are not good Christians is because we do not pray enough and try our best at all times to lead a perfect Christian life.

The attitude of Christ towards us is well illustrated by the miracle of feeding the 5,000 from the few loaves and fishes. There were many jugglers in the ancient times, but Christ not only could do as wonderful things as they, but also could do divine things. He not only could feed men's bodies, but also their souls. His heart is full of charity and sympathy. The highest type of charity is thoughtfulness. We should only do the sweet, loving things and help outsiders. While Christ was performing the many miracles of healing he was doing something for others. Christ came to bring salvation in the world and to make it better.

The blind man called out "Lord Jesus, have mercy on me." Christ never turns anyone away who appeals to him in that manner. He instead tried to save you. You should never be afraid to approach Christ. If you do some times go wrong, as all of us are bound to do, go at once to Christ in prayer and seek his forgiveness. Our attitude towards Christ should be illustrated by the passage in the bible which says, "Blessed are they that hunger and thrist after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

Wellsville Trades Council Answered Regarding Street Railway.

WOULD BE GLAD TO BUILD

Provided a Suitable Route Could Be Obtained—Effort Will Be Made to Find a Practicable Line Between the Cities.

The following letter is an answer to a petition sent C. A. Smith, of East Liverpool, asking him to extend the street car line he proposes to build, to Wellsville:

"Trades and Labor Council, Wellsville.

"Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your favor of the 24th inst and am pleased to note the interest you are manifesting in the securing for your city of modern and convenient street car accommodation. Situated as you are this is of vital importance, and the action taken by your council is certainly highly commendable, the virtues of which should not fail of recognition, both by the taxpayers and the citizens at large. I shall be very much pleased if by some feasible route a line could be constructed between this city and Wellsville, whereby the cost would not be extraordinary, to take this matter up and if possible provide your citizens with a line such as we will build in this city, thoroughly modern in equipment and capable of giving adequate and first-class accommodation.

"With a feeling of gratitude for the kindly expressions you have tendered me, and trusting your action is but a forerunner of the establishment of a line such as you desire, I thank you.

"Yours very truly,

"C. A. SMITH."

At a regular meeting last evening this matter was discussed and Trades Council will do all in its power to find a suitable route for such a line to connect East Liverpool and Wellsville. The session was short and no other business of importance was transacted.

EAST LIVERPOOL VICTIM OF SWINDLING CONCERN

A special from New York to the News Review states that the name of Nellie Laraby, East Liverpool, Ohio, is signed to a letter dated and postmarked East Liverpool, found when the United States authorities raided get-rich-quick concerns in that city Te amount of the victim's loss is kept secret by the authorities.

The name Laraby is not found in the East Liverpool directory and the letter was probably from some transient resident here.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special.)—Al Anderson and David Locke were arrested charged with robbing Martin Welch's saloon Wednesday night. Four doors were broken open. In the barroom several quarts of whisky and two boxes of cigars were taken.

In their movements the thieves became badly mixed up with a bucket of red paint and last evening when Al Anderson was found drunk in a graveyard his clothing was covered with red paint.

Maple Sugar And Syrup Makers Lost Half a Million in Ohio This Year.

The maple syrup and sugar crop is a complete failure this season. Not in years have the owners of camps experienced such discouraging conditions, and in consequence the product of the finely flavored sap of the sugar orchard will command a price almost out of reach of all. Ordinarily sap continues to flow beyond the first of April, while this year practically nothing has been done since March 10, while many syrup-makers never opened their camps at all.

Figures compiled places the probable loss to syrup and sugar makers throughout the state of Ohio at $550,000.

CONSTABLE GILL RETURNS WITHOUT THE ACCUSED MAN.

Prosecutors, However, State That the Charges Will Be Pushed.

Constable Charles Gill and Daniel T. McCarron returned last evening from Pittsburg, where they went on Wednesday evening in search of J. E. Ferrall, who is accused of embezzlement by the Dresden Pottery company. Wednesday evening was spent vainly in the search and it began to look yesterday as if his efforts would be fruitless, when Gill and McCarron, upon entering the Hotel Henry, met an East Liverpool man, who, when asked if he had seen or heard anything of Ferrall, gave them information that the wanted individual was standing in front of the hostelry.

The officer immediately adjourned to the pavement and recognized Ferrall, who was standing alone. Ferrall was aware of the fact that a warrant had been issued for his arrest, and made not the slightest effort to escape the constable. Instead he met the East Liverpool man cordially and indignantly denounced the action that had been started against him. Although Gill had a warrant in his possession for Ferrall, no arrest was made. He was simply taken in charge and at no time would he have been prevented in walking away if he had chosen to do so. Why Ferrall was not arrested neither McCarron or Gill would state. They insisted they had nothing to say in regard to the trip. Gill even denied that he had a warrant for Ferrall, notwithstanding that one was turned over to him by 'Squire Rose.

It was stated last evening by an official of the concern that is prosecuting Ferrall that Pittsburg attorneys have been employed and that the case will be pushed until a settlement is made.

A Wheeling dispatch says that the East Liverpool men visited that city yesterday in their efforts to locate Ferrall.

DR. JONES' LECTURE ON JOHN WESLEY

The First M. E. church was nearly filled last night with a congregation of representative people of the city, who had gathered to listen to the lecture delivered by Rev. David Joner on "The Life of John Wesley." Dr. Jones spoke of Wesley's scholarship, piety and other qualities which makes his name held sacred by the millions of Methodists throughout the world. He was one of 19 children and was born in Lincolnshire, England. He received a good education, having finished a course at the renowned Oxford college.

Wesley came to this country with Oglethorpe and settled in Georgia. There he received a new religious experience by Moravian Christians and his teachings and doctrines were founded on his own personal experience. He originated the class meeting and established lay preaching. He preached 40,000 times and traveled 200,000 miles by stage or horseback.

To Methodists the name of Wesley stands for all that is true and ideal in their religion. His wonderful personal characteristics made him the great force that he was in the religious world.

From a Staff Correspondent.

Columbus, April 3.—Following close a statement that an early settlement of the big brewery workers' strike was in prospect came the news last night that the brewers had secured an injunction before Judge Thomas M. Bigger, restraining the strikers from resorting to acts of violence. Several minor disturbances during the day led the brewers to apply for the injunction. The men are not enjoined from congregating about the plants, but are ordered not to molest or injure in any way the plants and property of the owners. The brewers are said to be fearful that their plants will be burned down, but the workmen declare there is no ground for this alarm.

Ohio will be represented by a provisional regiment of the National Guard at the dedication of the St. Louis exposition on April 30. Chairman W. F. Burdell and Stacy B. Rankin, of the Ohio exposition commission, have informed Adjutant General Gyger that the necessary funds for the trip will be forthcoming. This will be pleasing news to the guardsmen who had given up hope of going on account of a statement made by the commission while in session in this city last week that no money was available for the trip. It is proposed to select nine men from each National Guard company, making a provisional regiment of about 800, plus a complement of officers. It is estimated $8,000 will be necessary.

The St. Louis people have assured the commissioners that the soldiers will be well cared for in that city. It is not to cost them a penny. The Ohio commission will furnish the soldiers subsistence while traveling. The regment will rendezvous at Columbus, leaving for St. Louis on April 27. It will have an opportunity of displaying its efficiency before President Roosevelt, who will be present at the ceremonies.

A special from Findlay says that a local of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters has been organized in that city, about 40 employes of the Bell pottery company being members. The new local will be known as Findlay union No. 67. Officers were elected and delegates chosen to trades council. A pleasing feature is that a scale of wages was presented

New York, April 3.—The Rev. Dr. I. K. Funk, head of the publishing firm of Funk & Wagnals, and formerly of Springfield, O., admitted yesterday that he had been in communication with the spirit of the late Henry Ward Beecher.

"I will not say the story is true in all its details," said Rev. Dr. Funk when asked about the communication, "but it has a substantial basis of fact."

The story of the message Dr. Funk recently received is: That within the last week he attended a spiritualistic seance given by a woman who has gained eminence and many devoted followers. It is said that the medium told Dr. Funk that his friend, Henry Ward Beecher, wanted to speak to him from the spirit world. Dr. Funk assented.

"Why don't you return that coin you borrowed from me 30 years ago" the medium inspired by Mr. Beecher's spirit said in Mr. Beecher's well known jovial manner.

"What coin?" Dr. Funk asked, astonished

"Why, the widow's mite," said the medium, speaking for Mr. Beecher. "You used it as a model for illustration in one of your books."

"I returned it to you years ago," said Dr. Funk.

"Pardon me, but you are mistaken," the spirit insisted. "If you will look in your safe, in the compartment in the lower right hand corner, you will find my old coin under some papers."

The spirit described the bundle of papers and the position of the coin with considerable detail. When Dr. Funk arrived at his office next day he began searching the old safe for the coin. He found it in precisely the position and under the papers the medium had revealed it. Dr. Funk declined to give the details.

GRAND SERVICE AT ST. STEPHEN'S

A FINE SERMON PREACHED

St. Stephen's Episcopal church was the scene of a beautiful service yesterday afternoon when Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, bishop of the Cleveland diocese, administered the rites of confirmation to a class of about 30. The church was comparatively well filled when the services were opened with the regular confirmation ritual service.

After the ceremony had been performed by Bishop Leonard he preached an able sermon. He said that it should be the special prayer of all for God to give them strength. The confirmation service was a symbol for the entering of the grace of God into the heart. This grace may be secured by prayer. God has a great reservoir of grace with which we should constantly keep in communication. This communication can be established by prayer. The reason we are not good Christians is because we do not pray enough and try our best at all times to lead a perfect Christian life.

The attitude of Christ towards us is well illustrated by the miracle of feeding the 5,000 from the few loaves and fishes. There were many jugglers in the ancient times, but Christ not only could do as wonderful things as they, but also could do divine things. He not only could feed men's bodies, but also their souls. His heart is full of charity and sympathy. The highest type of charity is thoughtfulness. We should only do the sweet, loving things and help outsiders. While Christ was performing the many miracles of healing he was doing something for others. Christ came to bring salvation in the world and to make it better.

The blind man called out "Lord Jesus, have mercy on me." Christ never turns anyone away who appeals to him in that manner. He instead tried to save you. You should never be afraid to approach Christ. If you do some times go wrong, as all of us are bound to do, go at once to Christ in prayer and seek his forgiveness. Our attitude towards Christ should be illustrated by the passage in the bible which says, "Blessed are they that hunger and thrist after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

20TH YEAR. NO. 79. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1903—TWELVE PAGES. TWO CENTS

THE GAIN IN POPULATION A STRONGLY MARKED FACTOR IN PROGRESS OF THE CITY

No Doubt East Liverpool Has 20,000 Inhabitants and Indications Point to 22,000.

What is the population of East Liverpool? This is a question that is being as earnestly and freely discussed as the municipal elections, since the exclusive publication by the News Review yesterday that the poll of the city made at the instance of the Prohibition party leaders showed the total voting population to exceed 4,500.

The oft-repeated statement that East Liverpool is a growing city has to be accepted without comment or serious thought. Every resident of the city has been cognizant of the fact that the population has been increasing at a rapid rate, but just what the influx since the last census has brought the total up to was not given a great deal of consideration until the publication yesterday of the total number of votes. Now nearly everybody is wondering what the population of the city has grown to be. It has been variously estimated at from 18,000 to 22,000.

In the census of 1900 East Liverpool was credited with something more than 16,000 inhabitants, and it seems astonishing to many that in the neighborhood of 4,000 have been added in about three years. Yet, this is a fact, for the poll recently made is reasonably accurate. The probabilities are that if any mistakes have occurred in the count of the voters all have not been listed.

There has been no boom, no sudden influx to the city of a transient population, on the contrary a steady, substantial development has been noted, so steady, in fact, that its great extent was realized by but few.

There have been many conjectures as to the exact population of the city, and it is not at all likely that such a matter of vital interest will be allowed to remain an uncertainty until the next decennial census of the government. The estimates that have been made are based upon the percentage of voters to the entire population. Usually it is granted that every fifth inhabitant is an elector, which would indicate the population of the city to be in the neighborhood of 22,500. Others who have estimated the population from the number of voters claim that the ratio here will be nearer four to one, indicating the population to be about 18,000.

The growth of the city in the past three years has not been confined to population alone. There has been a

BUILDING TRADES DIFFICULTIES STILL UNADJUSTED.

The strike situation remains practically unchanged since yesterday. The carpenters, who have been idle since Wednesday, held a meeting last night, at which a state of strike was declared to exist. Other than this and the appointment of a press committee the transactions of the meeting have not been made public. The members of the press committee are W. H. McConnell, A. P. Cope and J. L. Reed.

Brotherhood hall has been secured as headquarters for the union during the day and members can be found there at almost any hour discussing the situation. The men are in good spirits and confident of success. Quite a number of them are taking job work and others have found work in Wellsville and Chester.

The situation in regard to the painters remains unchanged. One independent contractor in conversation with a News Review reporter this morning stated he would sign the scale before the week is out. Some of the painters are working by the day for individuals who are willing to pay the increase. Others are serving as paper hangers. Quite a number of the men will remain idle two weeks to await a decision from the bosses.

The builders' exchange did not meet last night, but will meet tonight. What action if any will be taken cannot even be conjectured.

Considerable inconvenience is being experienced as a result of the strike, and already there has been a great loss of time to the contractors and to the carpenters and painters.

The journeymen plumbers are much worked up over the report that they intend to lie low and take no action on the wage question until the matter has been settled among the various other trades. One of them said last evening: "Whatever action we journeymen take will be absolutely without regard to that taken by the other trades. We have until May 1 to submit a proposition to the bosses and if we decide to do so we have plenty of time. So far we have done nothing. We will hold our regular meeting next Tuesday night when something may be done, but none of us are aware of it at the present time."

VOTES COMING FROM AFAR

Interest in the Contest by No Means Confined to Ohio.

CANDIDATES ARE HUSTLING

The popularity contest is attracting attention far beyond the borders of Ohio. Votes come from near and far. W. H. Purinton, of Stockton, Cal., sends in a vote for his old friend, Wash Williams, and writes that it makes him think of old time friends to read the News Review. He asks if he is entitled to vote. Being a reader, he certainly is, and it is to be hoped that he will vote again and regularly.

This is only a specimen of the letters the News Review is receiving, showing the interest of former residents of East Liverpool and Columbiana county in the result of the vote for the prizes, free trips offered by this paper. This interest will be kept up all through the summer. Those who are in the race are in it to stay, and the number of contestants is constantly increasing. There is room for all. The conditions of the voting are so plain that a child can understand them. That they are well understood is plain from the way the votes are pouring in. As long as the conditions heretofore announced are complied with, every vote is counted as fast as received. So far there have been very few defective ballots.

Every reader of the paper is urged to save his coupons and vote them. The interest in the contest, already great, is bound to grow greater as time passes. See fourth page for particulars and then make up your mind to vote early and often.

This is the way the voting stands:

The Republican city central committee will meet in the council chamber, city hall, tonight. It will no doubt be one of the most enthusiastic meetings yet held, every member of the committee knowing full well its object and the necessity of lively action.

Chairman W. L. Smith has announced the reasons for a well attended gathering of the Republican leaders and they will not fail in their duty. Not only will the committee be present, but others interested in the party and every candidate whose name will appear on the Republican ticket. The latter have been especially requested to attend, it being the intention of the central committee to ask them to carry on the work next Monday in a manner to be pointed out by the committee.

While the leaders of the party are confident, they are aware that the opposition is working night and day and propose to be equally active.

Mrs. Hawkins Subjected to a Lunacy Inquest and Then Set Free.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special)—Mrs. Lewis Hawkins, of Church Hill, who attempted suicide Tuesday night by taking morphine, was brought into probate court yesterday for a lunacy inquest. The woman has always been peculiar, it seems, and the examining doctors being unable to detect anything unusual in her mental condition yesterday refused to pronounce her insane. She resisted when the sheriff's wife, and one of his deputies went to the Hawkins home to bring her to Lisbon and it was with a great deal of difficulty that she was brought into court.

An effort was made to pursuade the woman to go to the Massillon hospital voluntarily and take treatment for awhile, but she refused and was released after promising that she would not again attempt her life.

CITY CLERK ACCUSED OF LARGE PECULATIONS

Wheeling, April 3.—Attorney W. R. Staples, counsel for City Clerk James Pine, of Sistersville, who is charged with peculations of the municipal funds of that city amounting to about $12,000, arrived in Wheeling yesterday and appeared before Judge Thayer Melvin, of the circuit court, and secured a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Melvin granted the writ requiring the officer in whose custody Captain Pine is held to produce his body before Hon. M. H. Willis, judge of the circuit court of Tyler county, then to be sitting in chambers at the McClure house, in Wheeling, at 4:30 p. m. today.

The writ was granted by Judge Melvin after counsel had communicated with Judge Willis by wire. The proceeding of a judge in a different circuit granting a habeas corpus is a rather unusual one in this section, but it occurs frequently in Virginia and other states. Attorney Staples complains that the Wheeling and Sistersville papers have given Pine decidedly the worst of it, and painted him a rogue of the deepest die, when he was nothing of the sort.

The application for a writ of habeas corpus was made to Judge Melvin because of the fact that Judge Willis lives at West Union, a point further from Sistersville than Wheeling, and the judge in this city was more accessible than the judge in Tyler county. Pine was to have been transferred from the Sistersville jail to the county jail at Middlebourne this morning, but armed with the writ, Attorney Staples will probably forestall this proceeding.

GRAND SERVICE AT ST. STEPHEN'S

A FINE SERMON PREACHED

St. Stephen's Episcopal church was the scene of a beautiful service yesterday afternoon when Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, bishop of the Cleveland diocese, administered the rites of confirmation to a class of about 30. The church was comparatively well filled when the services were opened with the regular confirmation ritual service.

After the ceremony had been performed by Bishop Leonard he preached an able sermon. He said that it should be the special prayer of all for God to give them strength. The confirmation service was a symbol for the entering of the grace of God into the heart. This grace may be secured by prayer. God has a great reservoir of grace with which we should constantly keep in communication. This communication can be established by prayer. The reason we are not good Christians is because we do not pray enough and try our best at all times to lead a perfect Christian life.

The attitude of Christ towards us is well illustrated by the miracle of feeding the 5,000 from the few loaves and fishes. There were many jugglers in the ancient times, but Christ not only could do as wonderful things as they, but also could do divine things. He not only could feed men's bodies, but also their souls. His heart is full of charity and sympathy. The highest type of charity is thoughtfulness. We should only do the sweet, loving things and help outsiders. While Christ was performing the many miracles of healing he was doing something for others. Christ came to bring salvation in the world and to make it better.

The blind man called out "Lord Jesus, have mercy on me." Christ never turns anyone away who appeals to him in that manner. He instead tried to save you. You should never be afraid to approach Christ. If you do some times go wrong, as all of us are bound to do, go at once to Christ in prayer and seek his forgiveness. Our attitude towards Christ should be illustrated by the passage in the bible which says, "Blessed are they that hunger and thrist after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

ANCIENT POTTERY.

Researches of geologists indicate that the greater part of western Europe at the termination of the last glacial epoch, about 8,000 to 9,000 years ago, was inhabited by the race known as the Iberians. These men lived and died among the gigantic animals now extinct; amongst mammoths, the giant elk of Iceland and the cave bear. They inhabited the basque provinces, Spain, northern Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica and the Canary Islands, and are the same race which found its way to Mexico. Gradually, however, Iberians gave way before the stronger races, the Aryan, the Scandinavian and Ligurian, but in the remote Canary Islands they lived unmolested. Their remains, as discovered by the Spaniards in the early part of the fifteenth century, indicate the manners and habits of the Stone age.

The report of the Smithsonian Institution states that "the women all work at pottery, using no wheel and reproducing the simpler patterns as found in the tombs of thousands of years ago. The clay used is very strong and has much adhesive power. It bakes into a fine dark red. They now never color their pottery, nor do they mark it with the stamps, as in the old days. Many of the best shapes are lost, and those that remain are strictly utilitarian.

The periodical baking of their pottery is a great event among the cave dwellers. Large numbers of people sally forth for days before, collecting brushwood of all kinds and great heaps are piled up in the open space before the public oven, where all the pottery to be baked is also collected. A roaring fire is soon produced, and the different pieces of pottery are thrust into the flames, and then moved about by means of a long pole of hardwood to ensure their being evenly baked. Some kind of red glaze is put on to those which it is wished to decorate, but the greater part are baked without any glazing matter. It is an extremely busy scene, with a great deal of shouting and screaming; every one giving instructions and orders, to which no one else pays the least attention. No one person seems to be in command, and all kinds of interlopers crowd in to give advice or to cram sticks into the oven.

STRIKE AT TRENTON.

Trenton, April 3.—The potters have joined in the sirek movement which at this time seems to be prevalent in this city. The glost kiln hands at the Anchor pottery are out, practically tying up the entire plant. Until yesterday the kilnmen at the plant of the John Moses & Sons company were out on strike, but their differences have been settled, the firm conceding them everything that they asked, and they will resume work this morning. Both of the strikes are purely local and have not come under the jurisdiction of the officers of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

The kilnmen at the Anchor pottery are demanding an increase for placing a certain kiln which was enlarged several weeks ago. They claim that it now takes longer to fill the kiln and they are entitled to more money. The firm takes a different view and claims that the demands of the men are unreasonable. The latter have succeeded in tying up the operations at the plant and say they will remain out until their demands are granted.

GONE TO DERRY.

S. L. Young, formerly manager of the decorating department at the Thompson and now holding a similar position with the new plant at Derry, Pa., has gone to that city to enter upon his duties. Ware is now being made by the plant, but it is not yet in full operation. As announced in this column several weeks ago Mr. Young has secured the services of a number of the best decorators in the world and intends to turn out a line of work unexcelled in this country. Several decorators from this city will take situations with him.

BOYS ON A STRIKE.

The batterout boys of the Wheeling Potteries company have gone out on a strike. The strike affects fifteen boys, including those in the Warwick and La Belle potteries. The action compelled cessation in the entire clay department, and that will have to remain closed until the boys return or until others have been secured to take their places. The boys were receiving an average of $1.50 per day, and asked for an increase of 25 cents per day. When the request was refused they immediately went out on strike.

FINE CHICKENS.

John N. Pollock, of the Standard glost, one of the best known breeders of fancy chickens in the city and secretary of the local poultry club, has made several shipments recently. He has just received a pair of very valuable white game bantams.

CRITICALLY ILL.

Mrs. Ella Burson, daughter of Harvey Dyke, of the dipping department at the Standard, is critically ill in a Pittsburg hospital. Mrs. Dyke was called to her bedside a week ago and her illness has continued so alarming that she could not leave.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed, and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and it today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation, and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In East Liverpool there are scores of well known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, Will Reed will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered as to his faith in the remedy.

TWO MINES ARE IDLE AT SALINEVILLE

Employes Of One Company Quit Until the Scale Matter is Settled.

Saline ville, April 3.—(Special)—The miners at the New Shaft and Cedar Hill mines did not go to work yesterday morning, owing to the scale for the ensuing year not being signed by the Big Vein Coal company, which operates the mines. At the convention held week before last all the operators signed the scale but the Big Vein company. When a representative of the company was asked what they would do, he said that a copy of the scale had never been presented to them to sign. The O. & P. Coal company, with its main office in Cleveland, signed the scale, and a little effort on the part of the Big Vein company would soon procure a copy.

This same company last year delayed signing the scale, and the committee of miners was entertained in Cleveland several days at the expense of the Big Vein company while signing the scale. The officers of the district are in communication with local union officials here and it will be learned soon that the company will do. No work will be done until the scale is signed. All the other miners here are working.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD

Alma Walters Says a Few Words for Consideration of Walker People.

To the Editor of the News Review.

I notice an article in the News Review in which it is stated that some of the parents of the children in the Walker school district upon whom notices have been served to compel the attendance of their children at school offer as an excuse the close proximity of my house, and designate it as a dive. This I wish to deny. There are no bolts or bars on my doors and no women under my roof, and there has not been one there for an unlawful purpose. Anybody interested can come to the two little rooms in which I exist and investigate the charges at any time.

I am not writing this to defend my character. But when I live almost in the wilderness the most of the time by myself, without a neighbor within a half mile, is it still a dive and a house of ill-repute? If it is, will some good Christian tell me where to go and where to live? If my very presence so pollutes God's pure atmosphere in the Walker district that the school children cannot with safety pass my house, God have pity on those in the town and city. I do not know exactly what a Christian's duty should be, but in the 10 years of my downfall there has not been a soul offered me honest employment or tried to teach me God's works. Church is held every Sunday in this same school house, and there has not been one who has asked me to come.

I do not wish to cast any reflections on the people of the Walker district, for I believe they are good Christians. I just wish to show how most people will push you down or let you go yourself, when a helping hand would save many a soul. There are thousands of people like myself who need help, and the only religious body today that is working among them is the Salvation army. I do not know much about Christ's sayings, but I know when a sinful woman was to be stoned to death he said: "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

ANCIENT POTTERY.

Researches of geologists indicate that the greater part of western Europe at the termination of the last glacial epoch, about 8,000 to 9,000 years ago, was inhabited by the race known as the Iberians. These men lived and died among the gigantic animals now extinct; amongst mammoths, the giant elk of Iceland and the cave bear. They inhabited the basque provinces, Spain, northern Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica and the Canary Islands, and are the same race which found its way to Mexico. Gradually, however, Iberians gave way before the stronger races, the Aryan, the Scandinavian and Ligurian, but in the remote Canary Islands they lived unmolested. Their remains, as discovered by the Spaniards in the early part of the fifteenth century, indicate the manners and habits of the Stone age.

TWO MINES ARE IDLE AT SALINEVILLE

Employes Of One Company Quit Until the Scale Matter is Settled.

Salineville, April 3.—(Special)—The miners at the New Shaft and Cedar Hill mines did not go to work yesterday morning, owing to the scale for the ensuing year not being signed by the Big Vein Coal company, which operates the mines. At the convention held week before last all the operators signed the scale but the Big Vein company. When a representative of the company was asked what they would do, he said that a copy of the scale had never been presented to them to sign. The O. & P. Coal company, with its main office in Cleveland, signed the scale, and a little effort on the part of the Big Vein company would soon procure a copy.

This same company last year delayed signing the scale, and the committee of miners was entertained in Cleveland several days at the expense of the Big Vein company while signing the scale. The officers of the district are in communication with local union officials here and it will be learned soon that the company will do. No work will be done until the scale is signed. All the other miners here are working.

Always in the lead—the News Review.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD

Alma Walters Says a Few Words for Consideration of Walker People.

To the Editor of the News Review.

I notice an article in the News Review in which it is stated that some of the parents of the children in the Walker school district upon whom notices have been served to compel the attendance of their children at school offer as an excuse the close proximity of my house, and designate it as a dive. This I wish to deny. There are no bolts or bars on my doors and no women under my roof, and there has not been one there for an unlawful purpose. Anybody interested can come to the two little rooms in which I exist and investigate the charges at any time.

I am not writing this to defend my character. But when I live almost in the wilderness the most of the time by myself, without a neighbor within a half mile, is it still a dive and a house of ill-repute? If it is, will some good Christian tell me where to go and where to live? If my very presence so pollutes God's pure atmosphere in the Walker district that the school children cannot with safety pass my house, God have pity on those in the town and city. I do not know exactly what a Christian's duty should be, but in the 10 years of my downfall there has not been a soul offered me honest employment or tried to teach me God's works. Church is held every Sunday in this same school house, and there has not been one who has asked me to come.

I do not wish to cast any reflections on the people of the Walker district, for I believe they are good Christians. I just wish to show how most people will push you down or let you go yourself, when a helping hand would save many a soul. There are thousands of people like myself who need help, and the only religious body today that is working among them is the Salvation army. I do not know much about Christ's sayings, but I know when a sinful woman was to be stoned to death he said: "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

ANCIENT POTTERY.

Researches of geologists indicate that the greater part of western Europe at the termination of the last glacial epoch, about 8,000 to 9,000 years ago, was inhabited by the race known as the Iberians. These men lived and died among the gigantic animals now extinct; amongst mammoths, the giant elk of Iceland and the cave bear. They inhabited the basque provinces, Spain, northern Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica and the Canary Islands, and are the same race which found its way to Mexico. Gradually, however, Iberians gave way before the stronger races, the Aryan, the Scandinavian and Ligurian, but in the remote Canary Islands they lived unmolested. Their remains, as discovered by the Spaniards in the early part of the fifteenth century, indicate the manners and habits of the Stone age.

The report of the Smithsonian Institution states that "the women all work at pottery, using no wheel and reproducing the simpler patterns as found in the tombs of thousands of years ago. The clay used is very strong and has much adhesive power. It bakes into a fine dark red. They now never color their pottery, nor do they mark it with the stamps, as in the old days. Many of the best shapes are lost, and those that remain are strictly utilitarian.

The periodical baking of their pottery is a great event among the cave dwellers. Large numbers of people sally forth for days before, collecting brushwood of all kinds and great heaps are piled up in the open space before the public oven, where all the pottery to be baked is also collected. A roaring fire is soon produced, and the different pieces of pottery are thrust into the flames, and then moved about by means of a long pole of hardwood to ensure their being evenly baked. Some kind of red glaze is put on to those which it is wished to decorate, but the greater part are baked without any glazing matter. It is an extremely busy scene, with a great deal of shouting and screaming; every one giving instructions and orders, to which no one else pays the least attention. No one person seems to be in command, and all kinds of interlopers crowd in to give advice or to cram sticks into the oven.

STRIKE AT TRENTON.

Trenton, April 3.—The potters have joined in the sirek movement which at this time seems to be prevalent in this city. The glost kiln hands at the Anchor pottery are out, practically tying up the entire plant. Until yesterday the kilnmen at the plant of the John Moses & Sons company were out on strike, but their differences have been settled, the firm conceding them everything that they asked, and they will resume work this morning. Both of the strikes are purely local and have not come under the jurisdiction of the officers of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

The kilnmen at the Anchor pottery are demanding an increase for placing a certain kiln which was enlarged several weeks ago. They claim that it now takes longer to fill the kiln and they are entitled to more money. The firm takes a different view and claims that the demands of the men are unreasonable. The latter have succeeded in tying up the operations at the plant and say they will remain out until their demands are granted.

GONE TO DERRY.

S. L. Young, formerly manager of the decorating department at the Thompson and now holding a similar position with the new plant at Derry, Pa., has gone to that city to enter upon his duties. Ware is now being made by the plant, but it is not yet in full operation. As announced in this column several weeks ago Mr. Young has secured the services of a number of the best decorators in the world and intends to turn out a line of work unexcelled in this country. Several decorators from this city will take situations with him.

BOYS ON A STRIKE.

The batterout boys of the Wheeling Potteries company have gone out on a strike. The strike affects fifteen boys, including those in the Warwick and La Belle potteries. The action compelled cessation in the entire clay department, and that will have to remain closed until the boys return or until others have been secured to take their places. The boys were receiving an average of $1.50 per day, and asked for an increase of 25 cents per day. When the request was refused they immediately went out on strike.

FINE CHICKENS.

John N. Pollock, of the Standard glost, one of the best known breeders of fancy chickens in the city and secretary of the local poultry club, has made several shipments recently. He has just received a pair of very valuable white game bantams.

CRITICALLY ILL.

Mrs. Ella Burson, daughter of Harvey Dyke, of the dipping department at the Standard, is critically ill in a Pittsburg hospital. Mrs. Dyke was called to her bedside a week ago and her illness has continued so alarming that she could not leave.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

John Hancock, of the biscuit end at McNicol's, is working out his notice and will accept a situation at Wallace & Chetwynd's.

Jack Beardmore, of the Standard glost, is the proud father of a daughter that arrived at his home on Greasley street a few days ago.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed, and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and it today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation, and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In East Liverpool there are scores of well known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, Will Reed will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered as to his faith in the remedy.

THE OLD CEMETERY

The remains of 27 persons up to the present time have been taken from the old cemetery, on the ground where the grading is being done for the new street car line. The complete list of those whose bodies have been removed is:

All of the bodies with the exception of the children of Robert Mills, George McVay and the unknown child, have been taken to different cemeteries for interment, and the remains of those five have been buried in the old cemetery. George D. McKinnon, of Mulberry street, kindly gave the above information to a representative of the News Review.

Mr. McKinnon was personally acquainted with and related to the most of the people. There are about five or six more bodies yet to be taken from what was supposed to be their last resting place, and the work will be done.

George McVay, whose remains were taken up and again buried nearby, worked on the old farm of the elder George D. McKinnon and was a Portuguese, who came to East Liverpool when a boy from Kentucky and claimed an acquaintanceship with the historical Daniel Boone. McVay was one of the tallest and strongest men that Mr. McKinnon had ever known. He died about 54 years ago and at his death was about 65 years of age. The first of the interments that were made in the old ecemtery dates back over 50 years. Later a city ordinance prohibited the use of the grounds any longer for burial purposes.

B. C. ANSLEY'S NEW DEPARTURE

Selling Medicine at Half Price Under Guarantee to Cure.

After two months of remarkable sales, B. C. Ansley, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50c size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet he has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Any one suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disorded digestion, should take advantage of B. C. Ansley's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to return the money if it does not cure.

If you cannot go to his store today, send him your mney order by mail, as Mr. Ansley only has a limited supply to sell at this price.

FIGHTING JOHNSON

Cleveland, April 3.—All the religious organizations of this city are lined up solidly against Mayor Tom L. Johnson and are uniting their efforts to elect Harvey D. Goulder, the Republican nominee for mayor. The saloonkeepers have opened headquarters and are working openly for Johnson's re-election and this has aroused the religious element.

The Ohio Anti-Saloon league, the Cleveland Christian Endeavor union and the City Epworth League have joined in a bulletin. The bulletin declares Mayor Johnson should be defeated, as, viewed from a moral standpoint, his administration has been wholly bad, and he promises a continuance of his policies if re-elected. Goulder, says the bulletin, "will doubtless, if elected, show no favoritism to the vicious classes."

THE OLD CEMETERY

The remains of 27 persons up to the present time have been taken from the old cemetery, on the ground where the grading is being done for the new street car line. The complete list of those whose bodies have been removed is:

All of the bodies with the exception of the children of Robert Mills, George McVay and the unknown child, have been taken to different cemeteries for interment, and the remains of those five have been buried in the old cemetery. George D. McKinnon, of Mulberry street, kindly gave the above information to a representative of the News Review.

Mr. McKinnon was personally acquainted with and related to the most of the people. There are about five or six more bodies yet to be taken from what was supposed to be their last resting place, and the work will be done.

George McVay, whose remains were taken up and again buried nearby worked on the old farm of the elder George D. McKinnon and was a Portuguese, who came to East Liverpool when a boy from Kentucky and claimed an acquaintanceship with the historical Daniel Boone. McVay was one of the tallest and strongest men that Mr. McKinnon had ever known. He died about 54 years ago and at his death was about 65 years of age. The first of the interments that were made in the old ecemtery dates back over 50 years. Later a city ordinance prohibited the use of the grounds any longer for burial purposes.

The remains of 27 persons up to the present time have been taken from the old cemetery, on the ground where the grading is being done for the new street car line. The complete list of those whose bodies have been removed is:

All of the bodies with the exception of the children of Robert Mills, George McVay and the unknown child, have been taken to different cemeteries for interment, and the remains of those five have been buried in the old cemetery. George D. McKinnon, of Mulberry street, kindly gave the above information to a representative of the News Review.

Mr. McKinnon was personally acquainted with and related to the most of the people. There are about five or six more bodies yet to be taken from what was supposed to be their last resting place, and the work will be done.

George McVay, whose remains were taken up and again buried nearby, worked on the old farm of the elder George D. McKinnon and was a Portuguese, who came to East Liverpool when a boy from Kentucky and claimed an acquaintanceship with the historical Daniel Boone. McVay was one of the tallest and strongest men that Mr. McKinnon had ever known. He died about 54 years ago and at his death was about 65 years of age. The first of the interments that were made in the old ecemtery dates back over 50 years. Later a city ordinance prohibited the use of the grounds any longer for burial purposes.

Delegates Elected.

A large number of the congregation of the Erie street M. E. church met last night for the purpose of electing a delegate to the conference at Akron during the month of September. There were no candidates for the affair, but 'Squire L. W. Carman was unanimously chosen as representative and R. J. Boyce as alternate.

Painfully Injured.

Charles Oberlin, of High street, met with an accident that will keep him from working for some time. While at work on the mason work on bridge 112, a heavy piece of stone rolled upon his foot, badly mashing his right great toe. The injury is a very painful one.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Henry Mossman has returned from Smith's Ferry, where he purchased a colt.

Joseph Curry, of Grove City, was in the East End yesterday and also visited friends.

R. M. Newell will erect a dwelling on Erie street, near the Horace Mann school building.

W. C. Supplee, presiding judge of the election, left this evening for Lisbon, and will return with the ballots and poll books to be used on Monday.

Miss Margaret Larkins and Zachariah Dunning, who were married last week, have returned home. Mr. and Mrs. Dunning have gone to housekeeping on Beaver street.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years—tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet."

B. C. ANSLEY'S NEW DEPARTURE

Selling Medicine at Half Price Under Guarantee to Cure.

After two months of remarkable sales, B. C. Ansley, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50c size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet he has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Any one suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disorded digestion, should take advantage of B. C. Ansley's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to return the money if it does not cure.

If you cannot go to his store today, send him your mney order by mail, as Mr. Ansley only has a limited supply to sell at this price.

FIGHTING JOHNSON

Cleveland, April 3.—All the religious organizations of this city are lined up solidly against Mayor Tom L. Johnson and are uniting their efforts to elect Harvey D. Goulder, the Republican nominee for mayor. The saloonkeepers have opened headquarters and are working openly for Johnson's re-election and this has aroused the religious element.

The Ohio Anti-Saloon league, the Cleveland Christian Endeavor union and the City Epworth League have joined in a bulletin. The bulletin declares Mayor Johnson should be defeated, as, viewed from a moral standpoint, his administration has been wholly bad, and he promises a continuance of his policies if re-elected. Goulder, says the bulletin, "will doubtless, if elected, show no favoritism to the vicious classes."

East Liverpool people have been in the habit of underestimating rather than of overestimating the population of the city. The recent poll of voters shows this conclusively. With a voting population of 4,600, it is idle to say that we have not 20,000 total population; 22,000 would be nearer the figure. Four-fifths of the voters are Republicans, and if they stand by their party nominees on election day, the antis will not have the ghost of a show. Why should they? East Liverpool has made most of its progress under Republican administrations. It owes the opposition parties nothing. Men who think alike should act together. This city has the reputation of being one of the strongest Republican towns in Ohio. That reputation is worth much to the city and to the party. East Liverpool cannot afford to lost it or to impair it, as it would inevitably do by electing anything but a straight Republican ticket. The nominees have the endorsement of the party and are entitled to the full party vote. Stand by them on Monday.

All the offices to be filled Monday are important. For a harmonious and progressive administration, it is a prime requisite that men shall be chosen who will work together for the enforcement of the welfare of the city. Harmony and agreement are impossible if a discordant element is introduced. Men of the same political faith can and will work together. Men whose political principles are as opposite as the poles cannot be expected to agree either on policies or men. Republicans want a Republican administration throughout, and it is to the best interests of the whole city that the city should have it. The way is easy, unless Republicans exhibit culpable indifference in regard to a matter of vital moment to the party and the city. This, we feel assured, they are not going to do.

And now the Prohibitionists come forward with the claim that their candidate is "the candidate of a majority of the Republicans." We will have to show him whether he is or not. They may be able to annex a portion of the Democratic party, but Republicans are not going to be enclosed in the fusion fold without their knowledge or consent.

The president is expounding the Monroe Doctrine with an explicitness and directness that Monroe himself never surpassed. It is a doctrine which has made America great and kept it out of trouble. Long may it flourish!

The spring election is always important. This year it is more important than ever. There should be no stay-at-homes. Every Republican should vote with his party and not help the enemies of that party.

The opposition to the Republican ticket will get out every man that will vote its way on Monday if it be possible. Republicans cannot afford to be less earnest or less vigilant.

The municipal upheaval in Pittsburg is resulting in columns of names that look like lists of killed and injured. Probably the hundreds thrown out of office feel that way, too.

An X in the circle at the head of the Republican ticket votes the whole ticket. That is the way Republicans should mark their ballots.

Prohibitionists and Democrats never help the Republican party in an election. Why should they expect Republican aid this year?

Republicans, vote with your party. There is every reason why you should and none why you should not.

Talk about the "best element!" Where do you find it save in the Republican party?

OBITUARY

Rev. J. H. Halligan.

Rev. Father J. H. Halligan, aged about 38 years, rector of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Ashtabula, died at 12:30 o'clock this morning after an illness of several months. The arrangements for the funeral could not be learned today. Rev. Father Halligan had been a priest for 12 years, most of which were spent in Wellsville as rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Father Halligan went to Wellsville March 16, 1895, and at once became popular both as a man and priest. He found the church $14,000 in debt and began an earnest effort to pay it and to accomplish other things for the good of the parish. He was a tireless worker and it was not long until his perseverence brought results. The ground for the St. Elizabeth cemetery and the property at the corner of Main and Eleventh streets, Wellsville, were purchased by him. When he left Wellsville for Ashtabula, June 14, 1902, he had plans perfected for a new church edifice. The trouble which probably caused his death was first noticed about four months ago and was an enlargement of the glands of the throat. His condition had been regarded as serious for some days, but the last reports were that he was somewhat improved, with a chance of recovery. Rev. Father Halligan was born in Massachusetts.

Carl Brothers.

Carl Brothers, aged 21 years, died last night at midnight at 152 Chestnut street. Mr. Brothers was a well known young man in this city, where he had lived for the past 10 years. He had been employed as a packer at the Wellsville China company. He was taken ill just a week ago and his condition gradually grew worse from day to day, resulting in his death. He is survived by his father, J. K. Brothers, and three brothers and one sister. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Gorrell will have charge of the services in connection with the Crockery City court No. 111, Tribe of Ben Hur, of which organization Mr. Brothers was a member. Interment at Riverview cemetery.

Mrs. Polly C. Secrest.

Mrs. Polly C. Secrest, aged 54 years, died last evening at her home on Main street, Wellsville, after about 40 hours' illness of uraemic poisoning. She leaves a husband, Isaac Secrest, a well known music dealer, and seven children, the youngest being 12 years old. Mrs. Secrest became sick Tuesday morning and was not thought serious until Wednesday, when she would go into convulsions every little while. She was unconscious during the last 30 hours and passed away without any sign of pain. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Methodist Protestant church. Rev. L. C. Wells will officiate. Interment in Spring Hill cemetery.

TIDE ALL TOWARDS WEAVER

1. Quotation from recent national Republican platform: "The first concern of good government is the virtue and sobriety of its people." Vote for Mr. W. A. Weaver, the only candidate who represents that doctrine.

* * * *

2. Do not misunderstand. Nobody is openly supporting the "head" of the ticket. When they talk about being "loyal" they mean the remainder of the ticket. That is all right. But they will vote for W. A. Weaver as its "head."

* * * *

3. Everybody knows that the so-called 'worst element," the law breakers and shiftless classes, will vote for the "head of the ticket." They are "all right." Does it not seem "funny" that pathetic editorials and hysterical appeals should be made to the law abiding, business-making, church-supporting, substantial and honored citizens lest they fail to act as nobly and wisely? Since when did it come to pass that men with character and homes and judgment and honored standing could not be trusted to do well by the city, so that politicians and party organs must arouse them to their duty?

* * * *

4. Isn't it funny that the men who for years have given character and wisdom to the party, who fought on bloody battle fields for its principles, whose sons helped to support the glorious McKinley and his policies, and who love the party, should have to be scolded and exhorted because they refuse to vote for one of its nominees and put in his place the name of Mr. W. A. Weaver, a man against whom not one objection has been made? They were capable of making the party's glorious history. They may be safely trusted to perpetuate it by rebuking dishonorable methods and turning down incompetent and discredited aspirants for its honors. Mr. Weaver is sure of the election and will work in harmony with the glorious principles of the party by whose votes he will be elected.

* * * *

5. Isn't it funny that we should be assured that the board of public service contains eminent men who may be trusted to take care of the city? Do these men need to be vouched for? No. But we are asked to vote for the "head" of the ticket without fear because these distinguished men will make up for all his deficiencies. A confession of incompetence. How long since the great party of Lincoln and McKinley had to resort to the rest of the ticket to balance up its head? Vote for Weaver, a man who can stand up beside other gentlemen to do us credit.

* * * *

6. Under the new code the mayor will have greatly increased independence and power. There is very little precedent for his guidance. Should we not vote for Weaver, whose ability is known rather than to put a "figure head" into that exalted place depending on others to right him up?

East Liverpool people have been in the habit of underestimating rather than of overestimating the population of the city. The recent poll of voters shows this conclusively. With a voting population of 4,600, it is idle to say that we have not 20,000 total population; 22,000 would be nearer the figure. Four-fifths of the voters are Republicans, and if they stand by their party nominees on election day, the antis will not have the ghost of a show. Why should they? East Liverpool has made most of its progress under Republican administrations. It owes the opposition parties nothing. Men who think alike should act together. This city has the reputation of being one of the strongest Republican towns in Ohio. That reputation is worth much to the city and to the party. East Liverpool cannot afford to lost it or to impair it, as it would inevitably do by electing anything but a straight Republican ticket. The nominees have the endorsement of the party and are entitled to the full party vote. Stand by them on Monday.

All the offices to be filled Monday are important. For a harmonious and progressive administration, it is a prime requisite that men shall be chosen who will work together for the enforcement of the welfare of the city. Harmony and agreement are impossible if a discordant element is introduced. Men of the same political faith can and will work together. Men whose political principles are as opposite as the poles cannot be expected to agree either on policies or men. Republicans want a Republican administration throughout, and it is to the best interests of the whole city that the city should have it. The way is easy, unless Republicans exhibit culpable indifference in regard to a matter of vital moment to the party and the city. This, we feel assured, they are not going to do.

Everything in Rubber.

Our new stock of rubber goods received this week contains some late novelties in rubber goods that we are anxious to have everyone see. Among other things we have a fine line of rubber sponges and bath mits. They are much more hygenic than ordinary sponges of cloth bath mits and are practically indestructible. Of syringes of all kinds, combination syringes and hot water bags, face bags, ice bags, etc., the line is complete. Have bulb syringes ranging from 50 cents to a dollar. An excellent rapid-flow fountain syringe with all attachments for 75 cents, and in combination with hot water bag for $1.25. You cannot buy any of these things amiss when you choose from our stock—they are all the real rubber kind and guaranteed.

CHAS. F. CRAIG, DRUGGIST.

S. W. Cor. W. Fifth and Market Sts

And now the Prohibitionists come forward with the claim that their candidate is "the candidate of a majority of the Republicans." We will have to show him whether he is or not. They may be able to annex a portion of the Democratic party, but Republicans are not going to be enclosed in the fusion fold without their knowledge or consent.

The president is expounding the Monroe Doctrine with an explicitness and directness that Monroe himself never surpassed. It is a doctrine which has made America great and kept it out of trouble. Long may it flourish!

The spring election is always important. This year it is more important than ever. There should be no stay-at-homes. Every Republican should vote with his party and not help the enemies of that party.

The opposition to the Republican ticket will get out every man that will vote its way on Monday if it be possible. Republicans cannot afford to be less earnest or less vigilant.

The municipal upheaval in Pittsburg is resulting in columns of names that look like lists of killed and injured. Probably the hundreds thrown out of office feel that way, too.

An X in the circle at the head of the Republican ticket votes the whole ticket. That is the way Republicans should mark their ballots.

Prohibitionists and Democrats never help the Republican party in an election. Why should they expect Republican aid this year?

Republicans, vote with your party. There is every reason why you should and none why you should not.

Talk about the "best element!" Where do you find it save in the Republican party?

OBITUARY

Rev. J. H. Halligan.

Rev. Father J. H. Halligan, aged about 38 years, rector of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Ashtabula, died at 12:30 o'clock this morning after an illness of several months. The arrangements for the funeral could not be learned today. Rev. Father Halligan had been a priest for 12 years, most of which were spent in Wellsville as rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Father Halligan went to Wellsville March 16, 1893, and at once became popular both as a man and priest. He found the church $14,000 in debt and began an earnest effort to pay it and to accomplish other things for the good of the parish. He was a tireless worker and it was not long until his perseverence brought results. The ground for the St. Elizabeth cemetery and the property at the corner of Main and Eleventh streets, Wellsville, were purchased by him. When he left Wellsville for Ashtabula, June 14, 1902, he had plans perfected for a new church edifice. The trouble which probably caused his death was first noticed about four months ago and was an enlargement of the glands of the throat. His condition had been regarded as serious for some days, but the last reports were that he was somewhat improved, with a chance of recovery. Rev. Father Halligan was born in Massachusetts.

Carl Brothers.

Carl Brothers, aged 21 years, died last night at midnight at 152 Chestnut street. Mr. Brothers was a well known young man in this city, where he had lived for the past 10 years. He had been employed as a packer at the Wellsville China company. He was taken ill just a week ago and his condition gradually grew worse from day to day, resulting in his death. He is survived by his father, J. K. Brothers, and three brothers and one sister. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Gorrell will have charge of the services in connection with the Crockery City court No. 111, Tribe of Ben Hur, of which organization Mr. Brothers was a member. Interment at Riverview cemetery.

Mrs. Polly C. Secrest.

Mrs. Polly C. Secrest, aged 54 years, died last evening at her home on Main street, Wellsville, after about 40 hours' illness of uraemic poisoning. She leaves a husband, Isaac Secrest, a well known music dealer, and seven children, the youngest being 14 years old. Mrs. Secrest became sick Tuesday morning and was not thought serious until Wednesday, when she would go into convulsions every little while. She was unconscious during the last 30 hours and passed away without any sign of pain. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Methodist Protestant church. Rev. L. C. Wells will officiate. Interment in Spring Hill cemetery.

TIDE ALL TOWARDS WEAVER

1. Quotation from recent national Republican platform: "The first concern of good government is the virtue and sobriety of its people." Vote for Mr. W. A. Weaver, the only candidate who represents that doctrine.

* * * *

2. Do not misunderstand. Nobody is openly supporting the "head" of the ticket. When they talk about being "loyal" they mean the remainder of the ticket. That is all right. But they will vote for W. A. Weaver as its "head."

* * * *

3. Everybody knows that the so-called "worst element," the law breakers and shiftless classes, will vote for the "head of the ticket." They are "all right." Does it not seem "funny" that pathetic editorials and hysterical appeals should be made to the law abiding, business-making, church-supporting, substantial and honored citizens lest they fail to act as nobly and wisely? Since when did it come to pass that men with character and homes and judgment and honored standing could not be trusted to do well by the city, so that politicians and party organs must arouse them to their duty?

* * * *

4. Isn't it funny that the men who for years have given character and wisdom to the party, who fought on bloody battle fields for its principles, whose sons helped to support the glorious McKinley and his policies, and who love the party, should have to be scolded and exhorted because they refuse to vote for one of its nominees and put in his place the name of Mr. W. A. Weaver, a man against whom not one objection has been made? They were capable of making the party's glorious history. They may be safely trusted to perpetuate it by rebuking dishonorable methods and turning down incompetent and discredited aspirants for its honors. Mr. Weaver is sure of the election and will work in harmony with the glorious principles of the party by whose votes he will be elected.

* * * *

5. Isn't it funny that we should be assured that the board of public service contains eminent men who may be trusted to take care of the city? Do these men need to be vouched for? No. But we are asked to vote for the "head" of the ticket without fear because these distinguished men will make up for all his deficiencies. A confession of incompetence. How long since the great party of Lincoln and McKinley had to resort to the rest of the ticket to balance up its head? Vote for Weaver, a man who can stand up beside other gentlemen to do us credit.

* * * *

6. Under the new code the mayor will have greatly increased independence and power. There is very little precedent for his guidance. Should we not vote for Weaver, whose ability is known rather than to put a "figure head" into that exalted place depending on others to right him up?

TIDE ALL TOWARDS WEAVER

1. Quotation from recent national Republican platform: "The first concern of good government is the virtue and sobriety of its people." Vote for Mr. W. A. Weaver, the only candidate who represents that doctrine.

* * * *

2. Do not misunderstand. Nobody is openly supporting the "head" of the ticket. When they talk about being "loyal" they mean the remainder of the ticket. That is all right. But they will vote for W. A. Weaver as its "head."

* * * *

3. Everybody knows that the so-called "worst element," the law breakers and shiftless classes, will vote for the "head of the ticket." They are "all right." Does it not seem "funny" that pathetic editorials and hysterical appeals should be made to the law abiding, business-making, church-supporting, substantial and honored citizens lest they fail to act as nobly and wisely? Since when did it come to pass that men with character and homes and judgment and honored standing could not be trusted to do well by the city, so that politicians and party organs must arouse them to their duty?

* * * *

4. Isn't it funny that the men who for years have given character and wisdom to the party, who fought on bloody battle fields for its principles, whose sons helped to support the glorious McKinley and his policies, and who love the party, should have to be scolded and exhorted because they refuse to vote for one of its nominees and put in his place the name of Mr. W. A. Weaver, a man against whom not one objection has been made? They were capable of making the party's glorious history. They may be safely trusted to perpetuate it by rebuking dishonorable methods and turning down incompetent and discredited aspirants for its honors. Mr. Weaver is sure of the election and will work in harmony with the glorious principles of the party by whose votes he will be elected.

* * * *

5. Isn't it funny that we should be assured that the board of public service contains eminent men who may be trusted to take care of the city? Do these men need to be vouched for? No. But we are asked to vote for the "head" of the ticket without fear because these distinguished men will make up for all his deficiencies. A confession of incompetence. How long since the great party of Lincoln and McKinley had to resort to the rest of the ticket to balance up its head? Vote for Weaver, a man who can stand up beside other gentlemen to do us credit.

* * * *

6. Under the new code the mayor will have greatly increased independence and power. There is very little precedent for his guidance. Should we not vote for Weaver, whose ability is known rather than to put a "figure head" into that exalted place depending on others to right him up?

WELLSVILLE

Caused Much Excitement in Wellsville Until She Was Locked Up.

The citizens of West Main street were startled late yesterday afternoon by the cries of a negro woman, who with head bare, hair hanging down her back and without a wrap, came up the street yelling to the top of her voice: "I want my baby" and "Won't somebody take me to a doctor?"

Word was sent to the mayor's office and Officer Elliott went down. The woman being large and strong it was impossible for one man to handle her in her violent condition. With the assistance of Frank Fitzpatrick the woman was landed in the city jail. When they arrived at city hall she was so hoarse from screaming that she could hardly speak above a whisper.

The woman lives a short distance west of Wellsville with a man named Butler. She has been in a demented state for some time, but was never thought violent. She will remain in confinement here until arrangements can be made for her removal to a more suitable place.

WORK ON NEW SWITCH

For the last week or so Rinehart Bros. have been allowed to proceed with their work of grading for the C. & P. switch to be laid back of Wellsville. At first the work was slow and many delays caused. A number of people, whose land it was necessary to cross, caused a suspension of operations, saying no settlement had been made. Some ask such enoromus prices for their land that considerable trouble was expected. It was thought best by the company to employ appraisers and have a fair price set, but rather than take any chances of this kind the people excepted what the company offered. The switch is to be laid back of Coal street. The land being very low in that locality a great quantity of earth is required to fill in sufficient to attain the proper grade.

When this switch is completed it will be a great convenience to the industries near which it will pass. The only places where goods can be loaded for shipment is at the depots. This requires all products to be conveyed to the depot in wagons and then loaded into the cars. With the switch passing by the door the goods can be loaded ready for shipments right at the factory. How soon it will be completed cannot be told, but the time is not far distant.

STAGNANT WATER

Several Residents Complain of Offensive Mud Holes in the City.

A number of citizens residing in the vicinity of the soap works on Third street are complaining about the condition of the street. This part of the street is always muddy and several inches of water covers the pavement. Whence the water comes is not really known. There is an odor comes from the filth and mud that makes it exceedingly unpleasant for the residents of that locality. Should the drainage of this part of the city be made perfect there would be no nuisance of this kind.

A similar complaint is being made by th eresidents of lower Eighteenth street. The water coming from an old coal bank, owned by G. M. Aten, is drained into the street, making a large mud hole. At the next meeting of the council these matters will no doubt receive some attention.

THE POLITICAL BATTLE

Is Getting Hot in Wellsville — Contest Will Be Lively.

The election to be held on Monday promises to be one of the most closely contested ever held in this city. All the candidates on both tickets are working hard and are confident of success. Friends of both parties are out making stump speeches and doing all in their power to put their men in office. A number of the Democratic candidates met in the city hall last evening to complete plans for carrying on a vigorous campaign. The Republicans met several days ago and completed all their plans for the coming contest.

Robert Galvin and Wallace L. Fogo, the candidates for mayor, are both well liked by all, and the one who is victorious will be so by a small majority. From now until the close of the polls on Monday the probable outcome of the election will be the topic of the day. After the returns have all been received there will be some very disappointed men among the beaten, as well as great rejoicing among the victorious.

WELLSVILLE

Caused Much Excitement in Wellsville Until She Was Locked Up.

The citizens of West Main street were startled late yesterday afternoon by the cries of a negro woman, who with head bare, hair hanging down her back and without a wrap, came up the street yelling to the top of her voice: "I want my baby" and "Won't somebody take me to a doctor?"

Word was sent to the mayor's office and Officer Elliott went down. The woman being large and strong it was impossible for one man to handle her in her violent condition. With the assistance of Frank Fitzpatrick the woman was landed in the city jail. When they arrived at city hall she was so hoarse from screaming that she could hardly speak above a whisper.

The woman lives a short distance west of Wellsville with a man named Butler. She has been in a demented state for some time, but was never thought violent. She will remain in confinement here until arrangements can be made for her removal to a more suitable place.

WORK ON NEW SWITCH

For the last week or so Rinehart Bros. have been allowed to proceed with their work of grading for the C. & P. switch to be laid back of Wellsville. At first the work was slow and many delays caused. A number of people, whose land it was necessary to cross, caused a suspension of operations, saying no settlement had been made. Some ask such enoromus prices for their land that considerable trouble was expected. It was thought best by the company to employ appraisers and have a fair price set, but rather than take any chances of this kind the people excepted what the company offered. The switch is to be laid back of Coal street. The land being very low in that locality a great quantity of earth is required to fill in sufficient to attain the proper grade.

When this switch is completed it will be a great convenience to the industries near which it will pass. The only places where goods can be loaded for shipment is at the depots. This requires all products to be conveyed to the depot in wagons and then loaded into the cars. With the switch passing by the door the goods can be loaded ready for shipments right at the factory. How soon it will be completed cannot be told, but the time is not far distant.

STAGNANT WATER

Several Residents Complain of Offensive Mud Holes in the City.

A number of citizens residing in the vicinity of the soap works on Third street are complaining about the condition of the street. This part of the street is always muddy and several inches of water covers the pavement. Whence the water comes is not really known. There is an odor comes from the filth and mud that makes it exceedingly unpleasant for the residents of that locality. Should the drainage of this part of the city be made perfect there would be no nuisance of this kind.

A similar complaint is being made by th eresidents of lower Eighteenth street. The water coming from an old coal bank, owned by G. M. Aten, is drained into the street, making a large mud hole. At the next meeting of the council these matters will no doubt receive some attention.

THE POLITICAL BATTLE

Is Getting Hot in Wellsville — Contest Will Be Lively.

The election to be held on Monday promises to be one of the most closely contested ever held in this city. All the candidates on both tickets are working hard and are confident of success. Friends of both parties are out making stump speeches and doing all in their power to put their men in office. A number of the Democratic candidates met in the city hall last evening to complete plans for carrying on a vigorous campaign. The Republicans met several days ago and completed all their plans for the coming contest.

Robert Galvin and Wallace L. Fogo, the candidates for mayor, are both well liked by all, and the one who is victorious will be so by a small majority. From now until the close of the polls on Monday the probable outcome of the election will be the topic of the day. After the returns have all been received there will be some very disappointed men among the beaten, as well as great rejoicing among the victorious.

REALM OF SPORTS

THE BOWLING SEASON

A Prospect That It Will Be Prolonged Well Into the Summer.

Though the time of the year is at hand when the bowling fever commences to die out there is yet much enthusiasm displayed over the sport in the city, and the arrangements are being made to continue the contests with outside teams until far into the summer. The local team is aggressive and is open for all engagements. It has made an admirable record this season and is conceded to be one of the fastest organizations in the state.

All the strong teams in this section have been played against by them, and the result has been most satisfactory, showing that the local talent is considerably above the average. While all of the contests have been by the first team, captained by Charles Craig, of the imperial alleys, the numerous other teams have been at hard practice and it is thought that among the amateurs they would rank high.

The next game to be played by the first team will be with Beaver Falls, one of the very strongest teams in the Pittsburg district. Two series have been played with the team and an even break was the result. There is considerable enmity between the two teams, and when they come together for the third time each will put forth every effort to claim the majority of the games.

Wellsburg wants another series. It can get it, but upon certain conditions. The locals believe that they can wipe the earth up with the West Virginia lads, but know that they cannot do it on the alleys of the latter. Captain Craig has written them that his team will give them a series at any time if the games are played on an alley knew to both teams, Steubenville the choice.

Matched at Last.

"Kid" McCoy has at last secured a bout with one of the top notchers. He has contracted to meet Jack Root, the clever Chicago heavyweight, for ten rounds, at the Metropolitan A. C., Detroit, on April 22. This will be an excellent opportunity for the "Kid" to show whether he has lost any of his oldtime skill.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Otto Kruger will be used as utility man for the Pittsburg team.

McCoy and Root have signed for 10 rounds in Detroit, April 22.

The big colleges generally have more base ball candidates than can be used.

An effort to enliven the almost defunct players' association will be made within a month. A meeting will be held in New York.

The directors of the Yale gymnasium have decided to put in hand ball courts. The game will be pushed in the eastern schools.

The mayor of McKeesport, Pa., is an enthusiastic athlete, and his friends believe that he will sanction glove contests in that city. At any rate, a new club has been organized with the view of again starting up the sport.

Paddy Carroll, the Chicago sport, has renewed his offer of a $30,000 purse for a fight between Jeffries and Corbett. He proposes to have the battle at Havana, Cuba, in December, or at Atlanta, Ga., in June. The bid has been sent to Harry Corbett at San Francisco, and he says he will post a forfeit of $10,000 at once.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

W. F. Conklin Wants $250 for Injuries to Property by Flooded Cellar.

W. F. Conklin will present to the town council of Chester tonight a bill for damages which he claims to have sustained during last winter. The dates of the water flooding his cellar are December 13, February 3 and 27. The substance of the claims is for damage sustained by reason of the stoppage of the sewer on Carolina avenue, which resulted in the settling of the foundation of house, chimney, wall paper, loss of personal property to the amount of $250. This bill is presented, the amount of $250 fixed, by way of settlement, but on condition that if the amount of damage asked is not settled in full Mr. Conklin will sue for $500.

This is the first climax for damages that has been filed against the town, and recently the street committee viewed the street and damages that Mr. Conklin claims to have lost by being flooded, and reported back to council that in their opinion the town was not to blame in the matter. Mr. Conklin will be represented by an attorney at the meeting and intends to take immediate action in case his claim is ignored.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION

Secretary Alex G. Pugh has received the reports of the school enumeration ending April 1. The enrollment of the Chester schools shows a membership of 462, an increase over the previous school year, which was 320. The funds for school purposes from the state will be greatly increased on account of the growth of the population of Chester and Grant district. The state tax for school purposes is $1 per capita and with the fines from misdemeanor cases, which are also turned into the school fund, will help the county in providing a new school in the town.

The next term of school is expected to bring forth so many applications from new pupils that the school board is aware that provision must be made for additional school room, and will take action at an early meeting.

NEW OIL COMPANY

Has Large Leases And Will Drill for Oil Back of Chester.

A company is being formed of East Liverpool and Chester parties for the development for oil on the farms of James Allison, Ebert Niswonger, Edward Hadley and W. C. Allison. These farms are back of Caester about three miles and the territory has never been worked. The leases of these four farms include an acreage of about 450 acres. Options will be secured on adjacent territory of 500 acres.

The leases call for work to be commenced inside of 30 days, and on Monday the first of the wells to be sunk will be located. Arrangements are now under way toward securing the services of drilling contractors and bids on the work.

Died on a Train.

Mrs. T. C. King has gone to Cairo, Ill., to attend the funeral of her sister who expired on a train that was bearing her from Southern Pines, N. C., to the home of her relatives at Cairo Ill. The young woman left some time since for Southern Pines in the hope of recovering her health, but gradually grew worse and was unable to stand the journey, dying near Altona, Ga. She had a number of friends in East Liverpool and Chester who will be pained to hear of her death.

Church Lots Paid For.

The amount of $1,000 was paid yesterday and the deal received for the lots recently purchased by the congregation of the Presbyterian church. The work of building will be commenced as soon as the plans are adopted.

CHESTER NOTES.

Contractor Freshwater was in town yesterday and intends to commence the work of paving shortly after the election on April 7.

Dr. G. B. Kidd, of Ravenswood, has located here, moving into the house formerly occupied by A. K. Nowling, on Virginia avenue.

The case of Allison against Shrader to set aside the sale of a piece of property above Chester, was confirmed in court yesterday. Mr. Shrader was given a deed to the property and the case settled.

The coming wedding of Miss Jessie Allison, a daughter of W. H. Allison, near Asbury chapel, and G. Cleveland Severs, a popular young man of Chester, is announced to take place on Wednesday, April 15.

THE GAIN IN POPULATION STRONGLY MARKED FACTOR IN PROGRESS OF THE CITY

large and substantial increase in the number of residence buildings, new additions have been opened, new streets have been laid out, the output of the potteries and the number of kilns have increased; and, in fact, every line of trade and manufacture represented in the city has prospered. Development can be noted in all sections of the city, but it has been the greatest perhaps in the East End, owing to the two mammoth plants of the Homer Laughlin China company. The growth of the East End in population and residences has been truly wonderful.

Hundreds of new dwellings have been constructed upon the Northside, and what three years ago were barren fields are now well built up streets, upon which are magnificent homes. The hillsides and the hilltops are becoming more and more popular as residence districts. In the central part of the city improvements have naturally been on a much smaller scale. A number of substantial buildings have been constructed, but many more are needed to keep pace with the growth along other lines. The West End shows a vast improvement over three years ago, both as to population and residences. It has kept pace with the other sections in the strong and healthy growth.

The fact that East Liverpool, rated at little more than 16,000 three years ago, is now over 20,000 is indisputable. The inducements are greater and the prospects are brighter for a continuance of the development at a more rapid rate. A new street car line to the East End districts and to the Northside is soon to be built. The Youngstown & Southern railway is not a myth by any means and will, within a reasonable period, become a reality. The prospect of the Wabash entering the city is not discouraging. The industries which have made possible the growth of the past three years will afford the same, if not a better opportunity for the future.

Life Plant Cures Rheumatism.

Because it purifies the Blood. Rheumatism is caused by the presence of an excess of Uric acid in the Blood. Uric acid is caused by a peculiar fermentation product. You must remove the cause to cure Rheumatism. Drive out the Uric acid and prevent its formation. Life Plant opens up the organs of excretion, which in time carry off the Uric acid, and thus removes the cause. It not only removes the cause, but it prevents the formation of the Uric acid, and prevents a recurrence of the disease. It renews life. Restores and Renews the vital element in the blood and makes you strong and vigorous. Read what Geo. Crater says:

Life Plant Company, Messrs:—
For the benefit of those who have Rheumatism, I take the liberty to inform you of my remarkable cure by the use of Life Plant. Had Rheumatism for six years. Shoulders so affected as to prevent my lying on either side. Sciatic Rheumatism in my right leg, gave me many sleepless hours at night. Lumps came in the veins of my wrists and neck, very painful to the touch. Physicians and medicines failed to benefit me. At last I was induced to try Life Plant, three bottles cured me. No more lumps, no more soreness, no more pain. I am well and all right.

REALM OF SPORTS

A Prospect That It Will Be Prolonged Well Into the Summer.

Though the time of the year is at hand when the bowling fever commences to die out there is yet much enthusiasm displayed over the sport in the city, and the arrangements are being made to continue the contests with outside teams until far into the summer. The local team is aggressive and is open for all engagements. It has made an admirable record this season and is conceded to be one of the fastest organizations in the state.

All the strong teams in this section have been played against by them, and the result has been most satisfactory, showing that the local talent is considerably above the average. While all of the contests have been by the first team, captained by Charles Craig, of the imperial alleys, the numerous other teams have been at hard practice and it is thought that among the amateurs they would rank high.

The next game to be played by the first team will be with Beaver Falls, one of the very strongest teams in the Pittsburg district. Two series have been played with the team and an even break was the result. There is considerable enmity between the two teams, and when they come together for the third time each will put forth every effort to claim the majority of the games.

Wellsburg wants another series. It can get it, but upon certain conditions. The locals believe that they can wipe the earth up with the West Virginia lads, but know that they cannot do it on the alleys of the latter. Captain Craig has written them that his team will give them a series at any time if the games are played on an alley knew to both teams, Steubenville the choice.

Matched at Last.

"Kid" McCoy has at last secured a bout with one of the top notchers. He has contracted to meet Jack Root, the clever Chicago heavyweight, for ten rounds, at the Metropolitan A. C., Detroit, on April 22. This will be an excellent opportunity for the "Kid" to show whether he has lost any of his oldtime skill.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Otto Kruger will be used as utility man for the Pittsburg team.

McCoy and Root have signed for 10 rounds in Detroit, April 22.

The big colleges generally have more base ball candidates than can be used.

An effort to enliven the almost defunct players' association will be made within a month. A meeting will be held in New York.

The directors of the Yale gymnasium have decided to put in hand ball courts. The game will be pushed in the eastern schools.

The mayor of McKeesport, Pa., is an enthusiastic athlete, and his friends believe that he will sanction glove contests in that city. At any rate, a new club has been organized with the view of again starting up the sport.

Paddy Carroll, the Chicago sport, has renewed his offer of a $30,000 purse for a fight between Jeffries and Corbett. He proposes to have the battle at Havana, Cuba, in December, or at Atlanta, Ga., in June. The bid has been sent to Harry Corbett at San Francisco, and he says he will post a forfeit of $10,000 at once.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

W. F. Conklin Wants $250 for Injuries to Property by Flooded Cellar.

W. F. Conklin will present to the town council of Chester tonight a bill for damages which he claims to have sustained during last winter. The dates of the water flooding his cellar are December 13, February 3 and 27. The substance of the claims is for damage sustained by reason of the stoppage of the sewer on Carolina avenue, which resulted in the settling of the foundation of house, chimney, wall paper, loss of personal property to the amount of $250. This bill is presented, the amount of $250 fixed, by way of settlement, but on condition that if the amount of damage asked is not settled in full Mr. Conklin will sue for $500.

This is the first climax for damages that has been filed against the town, and recently the street committee viewed the street and damages that Mr. Conklin claims to have lost by being flooded, and reported back to council that in their opinion the town was not to blame in the matter. Mr. Conklin will be represented by an attorney at the meeting and intends to take immediate action in case his claim is ignored.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION

Secretary Alex G. Pugh has received the reports of the school enumeration ending April 1. The enrollment of the Chester schools shows a membership of 462, an increase over the previous school year, which was 320. The funds for school purposes from the state will be greatly increased on account of the growth of the population of Chester and Grant district. The state tax for school purposes is $1 per capita and with the fines from misdemeanor cases, which are also turned into the school fund, will help the county in providing a new school in the town.

The next term of school is expected to bring forth so many applications from new pupils that the school board is aware that provision must be made for additional school room, and will take action at an early meeting.

NEW OIL COMPANY

Has Large Leases And Will Drill for Oil Back of Chester.

A company is being formed of East Liverpool and Chester parties for the development for oil on the farms of James Allison, Ebert Niswonger, Edward Hadley and W. C. Allison. These farms are back of Chester about three miles and the territory has never been worked. The leases of these four farms include an acreage of about 450 acres. Options will be secured on adjacent territory of 500 acres.

The leases call for work to be commenced inside of 30 days, and on Monday the first of the wells to be sunk will be located. Arrangements are now under way toward securing the services of drilling contractors and bids on the work.

Died on a Train.

Mrs. T. C. King has gone to Cairo, Ill., to attend the funeral of her sister who expired on a train that was bearing her from Southern Pines, N. C., to the home of her relatives at Cairo Ill. The young woman left some time since for Southern Pines in the hope of recovering her health, but gradually grew worse and was unable to stand the journey, dying near Altona, Ga. She had a number of friends in East Liverpool and Chester who will be pained to hear of her death.

Church Lots Paid For.

The amount of $1,000 was paid yesterday and the deal received for the lots recently purchased by the congregation of the Presbyterian church. The work of building will be commenced as soon as the plans are adopted.

CHESTER NOTES.

Contractor Freshwater was in town yesterday and intends to commence the work of paving shortly after the election on April 7.

Dr. G. B. Kidd, of Ravenswood, has located here, moving into the house formerly occupied by A. K. Nowling, on Virginia avenue.

The case of Allison against Shrader to set aside the sale of a piece of property above Chester, was confirmed in court yesterday. Mr. Shrader was given a deed to the property and the case settled.

The coming wedding of Miss Jessie Allison, a daughter of W. H. Allison, near Asbury chapel, and G. Cleveland Severs, a popular young man of Chester, is announced to take place on Wednesday, April 15.

large and substantial increase in the number of residence buildings, new additions have been opened, new streets have been laid out, the output of the potteries and the number of kilns have increased; and, in fact, every line of trade and manufacture represented in the city has prospered. Development can be noted in all sections of the city, but it has been the greatest perhaps in the East End, owing to the two mammoth plants of the Homer Laughlin China company. The growth of the East End in population and residences has been truly wonderful.

Hundreds of new dwellings have been constructed upon the Northside, and what three years ago were barren fields are now well built up streets, upon which are magnificent homes. The hillsides and the hilltops are becoming more and more popular as residence districts. In the central part of the city improvements have naturally been on a much smaller scale. A number of substantial buildings have been constructed, but many more are needed to keep pace with the growth along other lines. The West End shows a vast improvement over three years ago, both as to population and residences. It has kept pace with the other sections in the strong and healthy growth.

The fact that East Liverpool, rated at little more than 16,000 three years ago, is now over 20,000 is indisputable. The inducements are greater and the prospects are brighter for a continuance of the development at a more rapid rate. A new street car line to the East End districts and to the Northside is soon to be built. The Youngstown & Southern railway is not a myth by any means and will, within a reasonable period, become a reality. The prospect of the Wabash entering the city is not discouraging. The industries which have made possible the growth of the past three years will afford the same, if not a better opportunity for the future.

REALM OF SPORTS

A Prospect That it Will Be Prolonged Well Into the Summer.

Though the time of the year is at hand when the bowling fever commences to die out there is yet much enthusiasm displayed over the sport in the city, and the arrangements are being made to continue the contests with outside teams until far into the summer. The local team is aggressive and is open for all engagements. It has made an admirable record this season and is conceded to be one of the fastest organizations in the state.

All the strong teams in this section have been played against by them, and the result has been most satisfactory, showing that the local talent is considerably above the average. While all of the contests have been by the first team, captained by Charles Craig, of the imperial alleys, the numerous other teams have been at hard practice and it is thought that among the amateurs they would rank high.

The next game to be played by the first team will be with Beaver Falls, one of the very strongest teams in the Pittsburg district. Two series have been played with the team and an even break was the result. There is considerable enmity between the two teams, and when they come together for the third time each will put forth every effort to claim the majority of the games.

Wellsburg wants another series. It can get it, but upon certain conditions. The locals believe that they can wipe the earth up with the West Virginia lads, but know that they cannot do it on the alleys of the latter. Captain Craig has written them that his team will give them a series at any time if the games are played on an alley knew to both teams, Steubenville the choice.

Matched at Last.

"Kid" McCoy has at last secured a bout with one of the top notchers. He has contracted to meet Jack Root, the clever Chicago heavyweight, for ten rounds, at the Metropolitan A. C., Detroit, on April 22. This will be an excellent opportunity for the "Kid" to show whether he has lost any of his oldtime skill.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Otto Kruger will be used as utility man for the Pittsburg team.

McCoy and Root have signed for 10 rounds in Detroit, April 22.

The big colleges generally have more base ball candidates than can be used.

An effort to enliven the almost defunct players' association will be made within a month. A meeting will be held in New York.

The directors of the Yale gymnasium have decided to put in hand ball courts. The game will be pushed in the eastern schools.

The mayor of McKeesport, Pa., is an enthusiastic athlete, and his friends believe that he will sanction glove contests in that city. At any rate, a new club has been organized with the view of again starting up the sport.

Paddy Carroll, the Chicago sport, has renewed his offer of a $30,000 purse for a fight between Jeffries and Corbett. He proposes to have the battle at Havana, Cuba, in December, or at Atlanta, Ga., in June. The bid has been sent to Harry Corbett at San Francisco, and he says he will post a forfeit of $10,000 at once.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

W. F. Conklin Wants $250 for Injuries to Property by Flooded Cellar.

W. F. Conklin will present to the town council of Chester tonight a bill for damages which he claims to have sustained during last winter. The dates of the water flooding his cellar are December 13, February 3 and 27. The substance of the claims is for damage sustained by reason of the stoppage of the sewer on Carolina avenue, which resulted in the settling of the foundation of house, chimney, wall paper, loss of personal property to the amount of $250. This bill is presented, the amount of $250 fixed, by way of settlement, but on condition that if the amount of damage asked is not settled in full Mr. Conklin will sue for $500.

This is the first climax for damages that has been filed against the town, and recently the street committee viewed the street and damages that Mr. Conklin claims to have lost by being flooded, and reported back to council that in their opinion the town was not to blame in the matter. Mr. Conklin will be represented by an attorney at the meeting and intends to take immediate action in case his claim is ignored.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION

Secretary Alex G. Pugh has received the reports of the school enumeration ending April 1. The enrollment of the Chester schools shows a membership of 462, an increase over the previous school year, which was 320. The funds for school purposes from the state will be greatly increased on account of the growth of the population of Chester and Grant district. The state tax for school purposes is $1 per capita and with the fines from misdemeanor cases, which are also turned into the school fund, will help the county in providing a new school in the town.

The next term of school is expected to bring forth so many applications from new pupils that the school board is aware that provision must be made for additional school room, and will take action at an early meeting.

NEW OIL COMPANY

Has Large Leases And Will Drill for Oil Back of Chester.

A company is being formed of East Liverpool and Chester parties for the development for oil on the farms of James Allison, Ebert Niswonger, Edward Hadley and W. C. Allison. These farms are back of Caester about three miles and the territory has never been worked. The leases of these four farms include an acreage of about 450 acres. Options will be secured on adjacent territory of 500 acres.

The leases call for work to be commenced inside of 30 days, and on Monday the first of the wells to be sunk will be located. Arrangements are now under way toward securing the services of drilling contractors and bids on the work.

Died on a Train.

Mrs. T. C. King has gone to Cairo, Ill., to attend the funeral of her sister who expired on a train that was bearing her from Southern Pines, N. C., to the home of her relatives at Cairo Ill. The young woman left some time since for Southern Pines in the hope of recovering her health, but gradually grew worse and was unable to stand the journey, dying near Altona, Ga. She had a number of friends in East Liverpool and Chester who will be pained to hear of her death.

Church Lots Paid For.

The amount of $1,000 was paid yesterday and the deal received for the lots recently purchased by the congregation of the Presbyterian church. The work of building will be commenced as soon as the plans are adopted.

CHESTER NOTES.

Contractor Freshwater was in town yesterday and intends to commence the work of paving shortly after the election on April 7.

Dr. G. B. Kidd, of Ravenswood, has located here, moving into the house formerly occupied by A. K. Nowling, on Virginia avenue.

The case of Allison against Shrader to set aside the sale of a piece of property above Chester, was confirmed in court yesterday. Mr. Shrader was given a deed to the property and the case settled.

The coming wedding of Miss Jessie Allison, a daughter of W. H. Allison, near Asbury chapel, and G. Cleveland Severs, a popular young man of Chester, is announced to take place on Wednesday, April 15.

large and substantial increase in the number of residence buildings, new additions have been opened, new streets have been laid out, the output of the potteries and the number of kilns have increased; and, in fact, every line of trade and manufacture represented in the city has prospered. Development can be noted in all sections of the city, but it has been the greatest perhaps in the East End, owing to the two mammoth plants of the Homer Laughlin China company. The growth of the East End in population and residences has been truly wonderful.

Hundreds of new dwellings have been constructed upon the Northside, and what three years ago were barren fields are now well built up streets, upon which are magnificent homes. The hillsides and the hilltops are becoming more and more popular as residence districts. In the central part of the city improvements have naturally been on a much smaller scale. A number of substantial buildings have been constructed, but many more are needed to keep pace with the growth along other lines. The West End shows a vast improvement over three years ago, both as to population and residences. It has kept pace with the other sections in the strong and healthy growth.

The fact that East Liverpool, rated at little more than 16,000 three years ago, is now over 20,000 is indisputable. The inducements are greater and the prospects are brighter for a continuance of the development at a more rapid rate. A new street car line to the East End districts and to the Northside is soon to be built. The Youngstown & Southern railway is not a myth by any means and will, within a reasonable period, become a reality. The prospect of the Wabash entering the city is not discouraging. The industries which have made possible the growth of the past three years will afford the same, if not a better opportunity for the future.

Life Plant Cures Rheumatism.

Because it purifies the Blood. Rheumatism is caused by the presence of an excess of Uric acid in the Blood. Uric acid is caused by a peculiar fermentation product. You must remove the cause to cure Rheumatism. Drive out the Uric acid and prevent its formation. Life Plant opens up the organs of excretion, which in time carry off the Uric acid, and thus removes the cause. It not only removes the cause, but it prevents the formation of the Uric acid, and prevents a recurrence of the disease. It renews life. Restores and Renews the vital element in the blood and makes you strong and vigorous. Read what Geo. Crater says:

Life Plant Company, Messrs:—
For the benefit of those who have Rheumatism, I take the liberty to inform you of my remarkable cure by the use of Life Plant. Had Rheumatism for six years. Shoulders so affected as to prevent my lying on either side. Sciatic Rheumatism in my right leg, gave me many sleepless hours at night. Lumps came in the veins of my wrists and neck, very painful to the touch. Physicians and medicines failed to benefit me. At last I was induced to try Life Plant, three bottles cured me. No more lumps, no more soreness, no more pain. I am well and all right.
Yours truly, George Crater,

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. ANNUAL CLEANING CAUSES FIRE

Twenty-Two Families Driven Into Street—One Person Burned to Death.

New York, April 3.—One person dead, so badly burned as to be unrecognizable, eight others injured, a panis in which 22 families were driven into the street, and a property loss of $10,000, make up the result of a fire which started in a five-story tenement house in Rivington street.

Of those injured only two, Mrs. M. Hochman, 10 years old, and Samuel Hochman, 8 years, were seriously hurt.

The fire, the police say, is the result of the annual cleanup of the East Side district prior to the beginning of the feast of Passover. This cleaning already has begun and the hallway of the big tenement was filled with old bedding and the like that had been piled up ready to be thrown into the streets. The owner of the building was having the house renovated and the painters had been at work painting and varnishing the stairways and some of the hall floors. The fire started under the stairway on the ground floor hall. Most of the tenants were at supper at the time, and those who got out of the building for the most part had to use the fire escapes.

The police were sent for and in the mix-up that ensued in dispersing the mob two policemen and two citizens were killed and many wounded.

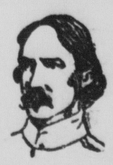
The New Arabian Nights



By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON

Not many steps beyond the shop he was conscious of a sudden shock, a hand upon his throat, an infuriated face close to his own and an open mouth howling curses in his ear. The dictator, having found no trace of his quarry, was returning by the other way. Francis was a stalwart young fellow, but he was no match for his adversary whether in strength or skill, and after a few ineffectual struggles he resigned himself entirely to his captor.

"What do you want with me?" said he.

"We will talk of that at home," returned the dictator grimly.

And he continued to march the young man up hill in the direction of the house with the green blinds.

But Francis, although he no longer struggled, was only waiting an opportunity to make a bold push for freedom. With a sudden jerk, he left the collar of his coat in the hands of Mr. Vandeleur and once more made off at his best speed in the direction of the boulevards.

The tables were now turned. If the dictator was the stronger, Francis, in the top of his youth, was the more fleet of foot, and he had soon effected his escape among the crowds. Relieved for a moment, he walked briskly until he debouched upon the Place de l'Opera, lighted up like day with electric lamps.

"This, at least," thought he, "should satisfy Miss Vandeleur."

And, turning to his right along the boulevards, he entered the Cafe Americain and ordered some beer. It was both late and early for the majority of the frequenters of the establishment. Only two or three persons, all men, were dotted here and there at separate tables in the hall, and Francis was too much occupied by his own thoughts to observe their presence.

He drew the handkerchief from his pocket. The object wrapped in it proved to be a morocco case, clasped and ornamented in gilt, which opened by means of a spring and disclosed to the horrified young man a diamond of monstrous bigness and extraordinary brilliancy. The circumstance was so inexplicable, the value of the stone was plainly so enormous, that Francis sat staring into the open casket without movement, without conscious thought, like a man stricken with idiocy.

A hand was laid upon his shoulder lightly, but firmly, and a quiet voice, which yet had in it the ring of command, uttered these words in his ear:

"Close the casket and compose your face."

Looking up, he beheld a man, still young, of an urbane and tranquil presence and dressed with rich simplicity. This personage had risen from a neighboring table and, bringing his glass with him, had taken a seat beside Francis.

"Close the casket," repeated the stranger, "and put it quietly back into your pocket, where I feel persuaded it should never have been. Try, if you please, to throw off your bewildered air and act as though I were one of your acquaintances whom you had met by chance. So! Touch glasses with me. That is better. I fear, sir, you must be an amateur."

"For God's sake," said Francis, "tell me who you are and what this means? Why I should obey your most unusual suggestions I am sure I know not, but the truth is I have fallen this evening into so many perplexing adventures, and all I meet conduct themselves so strangely, that I think I must either have gone mad or wandered into another planet. Your face inspires me with confidence. You seem wise, good and experienced. Tell me, for heaven's sake, why you accost me in so odd a fashion?"

"All in due time," replied the stranger. "But I have the first hand, and you must begin by telling me how the rajah's diamond is in your possession."

"The rajah's diamond!" echoed Francis.

"I would not speak so loud if I were you," returned the other. "But most certainly you have the rajah's diamond in your pocket. I have seen and handled it a score of times in Sir Thomas Vandeleur's collection."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur! The general! My father!" cried Francis.

A HAND UPON HIS THROAT, AN INFURIATED FACE CLOSE TO HIS OWN.

"Your father?" repeated the stranger. "I was not aware the general had any family."

"I am illegitimate, sir," replied Francis, with a flush.

The other bowed with gravity. It was a respectful bow, as of a man silently apologizing to his equal, and Francis felt relieved and comforted, he scarce knew why. The society of this person did him good. He seemed to touch firm ground. A strong feeling of respect grew up in his bosom and mechanically he removed his wide-awake as though in the presence of a superior.

"I perceive," said the stranger, "that your adventures have not all been peaceful. Your collar is torn, your face is scratched, and you have a cut upon your temple. You will perhaps pardon my curiosity when I ask you to explain how you came by these injuries and how you happen to have stolen property to an enormous value in your pocket."

"I must differ from you," returned Francis hotly. "I possess no stolen property, and if you refer to the diamond it was given to me not an hour ago by Miss Vandeleur in the Rue Lepic."

"By Miss Vandeleur of the Rue Lepic!" repeated the other. "You interest me more than you suppose. Pray continue."

"Heavens!" cried Francis.

His memory had made a sudden bound. He had seen Mr. Vandeleur take an article from the breast of his drugged visitor, and that article, he was now persuaded, was a morocco case.

"You have a light?" inquired the stranger.

"Listen," replied Francis. "I know not what you are, but I believe you to be worthy of confidence and helpful. I find myself in strange waters. I must have counsel and support, and since you invite me I shall tell you all."

And he briefly recounted his experiences since the day when he was summoned from the bank by his lawyer.

"Yours is indeed a remarkable history," said the stranger after the young man had made an end of his narrative, "and your position is full of difficulty and peril. Many would counsel you to seek out your father and give the diamond to him, but I have other views. Waiter!" he cried.

The waiter drew near.

"Will you ask the manager to speak with me a moment?" said he. And Francis observed once more, both in his tone and manner, the evidence of a habit of command.

The waiter withdrew and returned in a moment with the manager, who bowed with obsequious respect.

"What," said he, "can I do to serve you?"

"Have the goodness," replied the stranger, indicating Francis, "to tell this gentleman my name."

"You have the honor, sir," said the functionary, addressing young Scrymgeour, "to occupy the same table with his highness Prince Florizel of Bohemia."

Francis arose with precipitation and made a grateful reverence to the prince, who bade him resume his seat.

"I thank you," said Florizel, once more addressing the functionary. "I am sorry to have deranged you for so small a matter."

"You have done right," said Florizel. "Your sentiments have properly inspired you, and you will live to be grateful for the misfortunes of tonight. A man, Mr. Scrymgeour, may fall into a thousand perplexities, but if his heart be upright and his intelligence unclouded he will issue from them all without dishonor. Let your mind be at rest. Your affairs are in my hand, and with the aid of heaven I am strong enough to bring them to a good end. Follow me, if you please, to my carriage."

So saying, the prince arose and, having left a piece of gold for the waiter, conducted the young man from the cafe and along the boulevard to where an unpretentious brougham and a couple of servants out of livery awaited his arrival.

"This carriage," said he, "is at your disposal. Collect your baggage as rapidly as you can make it convenient, and my servants will conduct you to a villa in the neighborhood of Paris where you can wait in some degree of comfort until I have had time to arrange your situation. You will find there a pleasant garden, a library of good authors, a cook, a cellar and some good cigars, which I recommend to your attention. Jerome," he added, turning to one of the servants, "you have heard what I say. I leave Mr. Scrymgeour in your charge. You will, I know, be careful of my friend."

Francis uttered some broken phrases of gratitude.

"It will be time enough to thank me," said the prince, "when you are acknowledged by your father and married to Miss Vandeleur."

And with that the prince turned away and strolled leisurely in the direction of Montmartre. He hailed the first passing cab, gave an address, and a quarter of an hour afterward, having discharged the driver some distance lower, he was knocking at Mr. Vandeleur's garden gate.

It was opened with singular precautions by the dictator in person.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"You must pardon me this late visit, Mr. Vandeleur," replied the prince.

The prince profited by the open space and without waiting for his host walked right into the house and opened the door of the saloon. Two people were seated there. One was Miss Vandeleur, who bore the marks of weeping about her eyes and was still shaken from time to time by a sob. In the other the prince recognized the young man who had consulted him on literary matters about a month before in a club smoking room.

"Good evening, Miss Vandeleur," said Florizel. "You look fatigued. Mr. Rolles, I believe? I hope you have profited by the study of Gaboriau, Mr. Rolles."

But the young clergyman's temper was too much embittered for speech, and he contented himself with bowing stiffly and continued to gnaw his lip.

"To what good wind," said Mr. Vandeleur, following his guest, "am I to attribute the honor of your highness' presence?"

"I am come on business," returned the prince—"on business with you. As soon as that is settled I shall request Mr. Rolles to accompany me for a walk. Mr. Rolles," he added, with severity, "let me remind you that I have not yet sat down."

Woman Caused General Fight.

Newark, O., April 3.—Utica was the scene of a sensational horse-whipping affair which ended in a street fight between four of the most prominent citizens of the place. Mrs. Sperry, wife of Fred S. Sperry, was talking to a friend, and in doing so stepped on a lot belonging to Benjamin Haynes. Mrs. Haynes ordered her off, when Dr. Garrison interfered. Mrs. Haynes then attacked Dr. Garrison on the street with a horsewhip, her husband assisting. Dr. Garrison's son, Odell, defended his father, and for a time a fierce battle raged.

THE STRUGGLE FOR MARKETS WILL BRING ON WAR

By POULTNEY BIGELOW, Traveler and Author

TODAY we are approaching a struggle for more markets. I don't say that we need them, but the movement is fast growing, and as a result THERE IS BOUND TO BE A PHYSICAL CLASH. As in reform movements old men avoid the fight, we expect that every thirty years young men who don't know what war is are full of enthusiasm and want to fight. My objection to war is that the wrong men get killed. The men who start the war remain home, and the young men are sent to the front, to come back filled with disease.

When the struggle is over, the contractors and stockbrokers pull the chestnuts out of the fire. It was the same way in Johannesburg before the Boer war, and those who spread dissension took no part in the conflict. The Spanish war was too easy for us, and you may assume that the war feeling which prevails throughout the country as a result is dangerous. The same thing is true in Germany, but there was no such feeling there after the Franco-Prussian war.

WE MUST FACE THE WAR THAT IS NOT INEVITABLE, BUT PROBABLE. WE MUST REMEMBER THAT THERE ARE MEN IN EUROPE WHO ARE TRAINED TO THINK OF NOTHING BUT WAR AND ARE ONLY AWAITING THE CHANCE.

Germany is very strong, and Germans think so. We may say that the whole strength of Germany is now being expended on a navy. Germans do not take naturally to the sea, but it has been forced on them by the German emperor, who COULD MAKE DRAWINGS BOTH OF THE INSIDE AND OUTSIDE OF ALL OUR WAR VESSELS. Through his spies he knew all about our unpreparedness in the Spanish war. Germany has a powerful army, and they think that a strong navy is destiny. Germany means to be as great a naval power as she is a land power.

The New Arabian Nights

Not many steps beyond the shop he was conscious of a sudden shock, a hand upon his throat, an infuriated face close to his own and an open mouth howling curses in his ear. The dictator, having found no trace of his quarry, was returning by the other way. Francis was a stalwart young fellow, but he was no match for his adversary whether in strength or skill, and after a few ineffectual struggles he resigned himself entirely to his captor.

"What do you want with me?" said he.

"We will talk of that at home," returned the dictator grimly.

And he continued to march the young man up hill in the direction of the house with the green blinds.

But Francis, although he no longer struggled, was only waiting an opportunity to make a bold push for freedom. With a sudden jerk, he left the collar of his coat in the hands of Mr. Vandeleur and once more made off at his best speed in the direction of the boulevards.

The tables were now turned. If the dictator was the stronger, Francis, in the top of his youth, was the more fleet of foot, and he had soon effected his escape among the crowds. Relieved for a moment, he walked briskly until he debouched upon the Place de l'Opera, lighted up like day with electric lamps.

And, turning to his right along the boulevards, he entered the Cafe Americain and ordered some beer. It was both late and early for the majority of the frequenters of the establishment. Only two or three persons, all men, were dotted here and there at separate tables in the hall, and Francis was too much occupied by his own thoughts to observe their presence.

He drew the handkerchief from his pocket. The object wrapped in it proved to be a morocco case, clasped and ornamented in gilt, which opened by means of a spring and disclosed to the horrified young man a diamond of monstrous bigness and extraordinary brilliancy. The circumstance was so inexplicable, the value of the stone was plainly so enormous, that Francis sat staring into the open casket without movement, without conscious thought, like a man stricken with idiocy.

A hand was laid upon his shoulder lightly, but firmly, and a quiet voice, which yet had in it the ring of command, uttered these words in his ear:

"Close the casket and compose your face."

Looking up, he beheld a man, still young, of an urbane and tranquil presence and dressed with rich simplicity. This personage had risen from a neighboring table and, bringing his glass with him, had taken a seat beside Francis.

"Close the casket," repeated the stranger, "and put it quietly back into your pocket, where I feel persuaded it should never have been. Try, if you please, to throw off your bewildered air and act as though I were one of your acquaintances whom you had met by chance. So! Touch glasses with me. That is better. I fear, sir, you must be an amateur."

"For God's sake," said Francis, "tell me who you are and what this means? Why I should obey your most unusual suggestions I am sure I know not, but the truth is I have fallen this evening into so many perplexing adventures, and all I meet conduct themselves so strangely, that I think I must either have gone mad or wandered into another planet. Your face inspires me with confidence. You seem wise, good and experienced. Tell me, for heaven's sake, why you accost me in so odd a fashion?"

"All in due time," replied the stranger. "But I have the first hand, and you must begin by telling me how the rajah's diamond is in your possession."

"The rajah's diamond!" echoed Francis.

"I would not speak so loud if I were you," returned the other. "But most certainly you have the rajah's diamond in your pocket. I have seen and handled it a score of times in Sir Thomas Vandeleur's collection."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur! The general! My father!" cried Francis.

A HAND UPON HIS THROAT, AN INFURIATED FACE CLOSE TO HIS OWN.

"Your father?" repeated the stranger. "I was not aware the general had any family."

"I am illegitimate, sir," replied Francis, with a flush.

The other bowed with gravity. It was a respectful bow, as of a man silently apologizing to his equal, and Francis felt relieved and comforted, he scarce knew why. The society of this person did him good. He seemed to touch firm ground. A strong feeling of respect grew up in his bosom and mechanically he removed his wide-awake as though in the presence of a superior.

"I perceive," said the stranger, "that your adventures have not all been peaceful. Your collar is torn, your face is scratched, and you have a cut upon your temple. You will perhaps pardon my curiosity when I ask you to explain how you came by these injuries and how you happen to have stolen property to an enormous value in your pocket."

"I must differ from you," returned Francis hotly. "I possess no stolen property, and if you refer to the diamond it was given to me not an hour ago by Miss Vandeleur in the Rue Lepic."

"By Miss Vandeleur of the Rue Lepic!" repeated the other. "You interest me more than you suppose. Pray continue."

"Heavens!" cried Francis.

His memory had made a sudden bound. He had seen Mr. Vandeleur take an article from the breast of his drugged visitor, and that article, he was now persuaded, was a morocco case.

"You have a light?" inquired the stranger.

"Listen," replied Francis. "I know not what you are, but I believe you to be worthy of confidence and helpful. I find myself in strange waters. I must have counsel and support, and since you invite me I shall tell you all."

And he briefly recounted his experiences since the day when he was summoned from the bank by his lawyer.

"Yours is indeed a remarkable history," said the stranger after the young man had made an end of his narrative, "and your position is full of difficulty and peril. Many would counsel you to seek out your father and give the diamond to him, but I have other views. Waiter!" he cried.

The waiter drew near.

"Will you ask the manager to speak with me a moment?" said he. And Francis observed once more, both in his tone and manner, the evidence of a habit of command.

The waiter withdrew and returned in a moment with the manager, who bowed with obsequious respect.

"What," said he, "can I do to serve you?"

"Have the goodness," replied the stranger, indicating Francis, "to tell this gentleman my name."

"You have the honor, sir," said the functionary, addressing young Scrymgeour, "to occupy the same table with his highness Prince Florizel of Bohemia."

Francis arose with precipitation and made a grateful reverence to the prince, who bade him resume his seat.

"I thank you," said Florizel, once more addressing the functionary. "I am sorry to have deranged you for so small a matter."

"You have done right," said Florizel. "Your sentiments have properly inspired you, and you will live to be grateful for the misfortunes of tonight. A man, Mr. Scrymgeour, may fall into a thousand perplexities, but if his heart be upright and his intelligence unclouded he will issue from them all without dishonor. Let your mind be at rest. Your affairs are in my hand, and with the aid of heaven I am strong enough to bring them to a good end. Follow me, if you please, to my carriage."

So saying, the prince arose and, having left a piece of gold for the waiter, conducted the young man from the cafe and along the boulevard to where an unpretentious brougham and a couple of servants out of livery awaited his arrival.

"This carriage," said he, "is at your disposal. Collect your baggage as rapidly as you can make it convenient, and my servants will conduct you to a villa in the neighborhood of Paris where you can wait in some degree of comfort until I have had time to arrange your situation. You will find there a pleasant garden, a library of good authors, a cook, a cellar and some good cigars, which I recommend to your attention. Jerome," he added, turning to one of the servants, "you have heard what I say. I leave Mr. Scrymgeour in your charge. You will, I know, be careful of my friend."

Francis uttered some broken phrases of gratitude.

"It will be time enough to thank me," said the prince, "when you are acknowledged by your father and married to Miss Vandeleur."

And with that the prince turned away and strolled leisurely in the direction of Montmartre. He hailed the first passing cab, gave an address, and a quarter of an hour afterward, having discharged the driver some distance lower, he was knocking at Mr. Vandeleur's garden gate.

It was opened with singular precautions by the dictator in person.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"You must pardon me this late visit, Mr. Vandeleur," replied the prince.

The prince profited by the open space and without waiting for his host walked right into the house and opened the door of the saloon. Two people were seated there. One was Miss Vandeleur, who bore the marks of weeping about her eyes and was still shaken from time to time by a sob. In the other the prince recognized the young man who had consulted him on literary matters about a month before in a club smoking room.

"Good evening, Miss Vandeleur," said Florizel. "You look fatigued. Mr. Rolles, I believe? I hope you have profited by the study of Gaboriau, Mr. Rolles."

But the young clergyman's temper was too much embittered for speech, and he contented himself with bowing stiffly and continued to gnaw his lip.

"To what good wind," said Mr. Vandeleur, following his guest, "am I to attribute the honor of your highness' presence?"

"I am come on business," returned the prince—"on business with you. As soon as that is settled I shall request Mr. Rolles to accompany me for a walk. Mr. Rolles," he added, with severity, "let me remind you that I have not yet sat down."

THE STRUGGLE FOR MARKETS WILL BRING ON WAR

By POULTNEY BIGELOW, Traveler and Author

TODAY we are approaching a struggle for more markets. I don't say that we need them, but the movement is fast growing, and as a result THERE IS BOUND TO BE A PHYSICAL CLASH. As in reform movements old men avoid the fight, we expect that every thirty years young men who don't know what war is are full of enthusiasm and want to fight. My objection to war is that the wrong men get killed. The men who start the war remain home, and the young men are sent to the front, to come back filled with disease.

When the struggle is over, the contractors and stockbrokers pull the chestnuts out of the fire. It was the same way in Johannesburg before the Boer war, and those who spread dissension took no part in the conflict. The Spanish war was too easy for us, and you may assume that the war feeling which prevails throughout the country as a result is dangerous. The same thing is true in Germany, but there was no such feeling there after the Franco-Prussian war.

WE MUST FACE THE WAR THAT IS NOT INEVITABLE, BUT PROBABLE. WE MUST REMEMBER THAT THERE ARE MEN IN EUROPE WHO ARE TRAINED TO THINK OF NOTHING BUT WAR AND ARE ONLY AWAITING THE CHANCE.

Germany is very strong, and Germans think so. We may say that the whole strength of Germany is now being expended on a navy. Germans do not take naturally to the sea, but it has been forced on them by the German emperor, who COULD MAKE DRAWINGS BOTH OF THE INSIDE AND OUTSIDE OF ALL OUR WAR VESSELS. Through his spies he knew all about our unpreparedness in the Spanish war. Germany has a powerful army, and they think that a strong navy is destiny. Germany means to be as great a naval power as she is a land power.

Woman Caused General Fight.

Newark, O., April 3.—Utica was the scene of a sensational horse-whipping affair which ended in a street fight between four of the most prominent citizens of the place. Mrs. Sperry wife of Fred S. Sperry, was talking to a friend, and in doing so stepped on a lot belonging to Benjamin Haynes. Mrs. Haynes ordered her off, when Dr. Garrison interfered. Mrs. Haynes then attacked Dr. Garrison on the street with a horsewhip, her husband assisting. Dr. Garrison's son, Odell, defended his father, and for a time a fierce battle raged.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghampton, N. Y., on every bottle.

ANNUAL CLEANING CAUSES FIRE

Twenty-Two Families Driven Into Street—One Person Burned to Death.

New York, April 3.—One person dead, so badly burned as to be unrecognizable, eight others injured, a panis in which 22 families were driven into the street, and a property loss of $10,000, make up the result of a fire which started in a five-story tenement house in Rivington street.

Of those injured only two, Mrs. M. Hochman, 10 years old, and Samuel Hochman, 8 years, were seriously hurt.

The fire, the police say, is the result of the annual cleanup of the East Side district prior to the beginning of the feast of Passover. This cleaning already has begun and the hallway of the big tenement was filled with old bedding and the like that had been piled up ready to be thrown into the streets. The owner of the building was having the house renovated and the painters had been at work painting and varnishing the stairways and some of the hall floors. The fire started under the stairway on the ground floor hall. Most of the tenants were at supper at the time, and those who got out of the building for the most part had to use the fire escapes.

Police and Citizens Killed.

Monterey, Mexico, April 3.—During the celebration of the victory of the republic with troops under General Diaz, at Puebla, April 2, 1867, political capital was made of the affair by the partisans of the various candidates for governor of the state of Neuvo Leon and a mob of 15,000 citizens formed and marched to the residence of Governor Reyes and hurled a shower of stones at the governor and shouted "Death to Reyes." The police were sent for and in the mix-up that ensued in dispersing the mob two policemen and two citizens were killed and many wounded.

So saying, the prince arose and, having left a piece of gold for the waiter, conducted the young man from the cafe and along the boulevard to where an unpretentious brougham and a couple of servants out of livery awaited his arrival.

"This carriage," said he, "is at your disposal. Collect your baggage as rapidly as you can make it convenient, and my servants will conduct you to a villa in the neighborhood of Paris where you can wait in some degree of comfort until I have had time to arrange your situation. You will find there a pleasant garden, a library of good authors, a cook, a cellar and some good cigars, which I recommend to your attention. Jerome," he added, turning to one of the servants, "you have heard what I say. I leave Mr. Scrymgeour in your charge. You will, I know, be careful of my friend."

Francis uttered some broken phrases of gratitude.

"It will be time enough to thank me," said the prince, "when you are acknowledged by your father and married to Miss Vandeleur."

And with that the prince turned away and strolled leisurely in the direction of Montmartre. He hailed the first passing cab, gave an address, and a quarter of an hour afterward, having discharged the driver some distance lower, he was knocking at Mr. Vandeleur's garden gate.

It was opened with singular precautions by the dictator in person.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"You must pardon me this late visit, Mr. Vandeleur," replied the prince.

The prince profited by the open space and without waiting for his host walked right into the house and opened the door of the saloon. Two people were seated there. One was Miss Vandeleur, who bore the marks of weeping about her eyes and was still shaken from time to time by a sob. In the other the prince recognized the young man who had consulted him on literary matters about a month before in a club smoking room.

"Good evening, Miss Vandeleur," said Florizel. "You look fatigued. Mr. Rolles, I believe? I hope you have profited by the study of Gaboriau, Mr. Rolles."

But the young clergyman's temper was too much embittered for speech, and he contented himself with bowing stiffly and continued to gnaw his lip.

"To what good wind," said Mr. Vandeleur, following his guest, "am I to attribute the honor of your highness' presence?"

"I am come on business," returned the prince—"on business with you. As soon as that is settled I shall request Mr. Rolles to accompany me for a walk. Mr. Rolles," he added, with severity, "let me remind you that I have not yet sat down."

Woman Caused General Fight.

Newark, O., April 3.—Utica was the scene of a sensational horse-whipping affair which ended in a street fight between four of the most prominent citizens of the place. Mrs. Sperry wife of Fred S. Sperry, was talking to a friend, and in doing so stepped on a lot belonging to Benjamin Haynes. Mrs. Haynes ordered her off, when Dr. Garrison interfered. Mrs. Haynes then attacked Dr. Garrison on the street with a horsewhip, her husband assisting. Dr. Garrison's son, Odell, defended his father, and for a time a fierce battle raged.

THE STRUGGLE FOR MARKETS WILL BRING ON WAR

By POULTNEY BIGELOW, Traveler and Author

TODAY we are approaching a struggle for more markets. I don't say that we need them, but the movement is fast growing, and as a result THERE IS BOUND TO BE A PHYSICAL CLASH. As in reform movements old men avoid the fight, we expect that every thirty years young men who don't know what war is are full of enthusiasm and want to fight. My objection to war is that the wrong men get killed. The men who start the war remain home, and the young men are sent to the front, to come back filled with disease.

When the struggle is over, the contractors and stockbrokers pull the chestnuts out of the fire. It was the same way in Johannesburg before the Boer war, and those who spread dissension took no part in the conflict. The Spanish war was too easy for us, and you may assume that the war feeling which prevails throughout the country as a result is dangerous. The same thing is true in Germany, but there was no such feeling there after the Franco-Prussian war.

WE MUST FACE THE WAR THAT IS NOT INEVITABLE, BUT PROBABLE. WE MUST REMEMBER THAT THERE ARE MEN IN EUROPE WHO ARE TRAINED TO THINK OF NOTHING BUT WAR AND ARE ONLY AWAITING THE CHANCE.

Germany is very strong, and Germans think so. We may say that the whole strength of Germany is now being expended on a navy. Germans do not take naturally to the sea, but it has been forced on them by the German emperor, who COULD MAKE DRAWINGS BOTH OF THE INSIDE AND OUTSIDE OF ALL OUR WAR VESSELS. Through his spies he knew all about our unpreparedness in the Spanish war. Germany has a powerful army, and they think that a strong navy is destiny. Germany means to be as great a naval power as she is a land power.

OUR GRAND EASTER SALE

Commences Saturday, April 4, and Continues Until Easter.

This sale is a triumphant climax to the most successful Spring Opening we have ever held. During this week we will demonstrate the money saving power of our SPOT CASH PURCHASES by making prices fully a third less than other stores get for equal qualities.

Fascinating Easter Millinery

Our present exhibit has convinced the public of the surprising character of our Spring Millinery Display—a display that is not equaled in any store in all Eastern Ohio.

Trimmed Hats At the popular Leader Prices.

Hundreds of them now in our big and beautiful show room, embracing almost as many different styles. There is a charm and elegance to our millinery that is imitable. Our own original designs vie in beauty and chicness with the world famous millinery houses' models. We use only first class materials, and allow none but the best workmanship. Such as those we offer at $4.98 $5.98 and $6.98 could not be duplicated in any house in this city for less than two to three times the price we ask.

Our Offer of Trimming Hats Free of Charge means more than you can realize, if you have not already tested its special saving opportunities. You buy an untrimmed shape, select the trimmings you wish, indicate the particular style in which you wish the hat trimmed (or leave it to the judgment of our own skilled corps of trimmers), and no charge whatever is made for the work, which is invariably the best. In this way you obtain a stylish, pretty and becoming hat at a mere nominal cost.

We would advise an early selection in order to avoid the rush incidental to the last day before Easter.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Fifteenth Anniversary — The fifteenth anniversary of the Jr. O. U. A. M. of this city will be celebrated in the lodge rooms in the third story of the postoffice building the evening of April 9. A large number of invitations will be issued.

A New Arrival—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Parker, Fourth street, are the happy parents of a girl baby which made its arrival this morning.

Dr. Gunsaulus Tonight — The final lecture in the high school course will be given at the opera house tonight at 8:15 by the eloquent Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago. The announcement should be sufficient to attract a large audience.

Sent to Springfield—John Jackson, a young colored man, who has been boarding at the home of David Smith, Seventh street, was sent to his home in Springfield this morning suffering with spinal trouble. He was taken to the station in the patrol.

Investigating Pensioners—Two government officials are now in East Liverpool investigating the condition of persons receiving pensions in this city. Quite a number of government men have been in the city lately but so far nothing has been given out of a startling nature. Should any one be reported by the pension department officials it would be necessary for those reported to take another physical examination.

Sunday Afternoon Lecture—"The New Crusade" will be the theme of Rev. Dr. M. B. Pratt in his Sunday lecture at the opera house, beginning at 3 p. m. It will deal with timely topics. Dr. Pratt's lectures are always thoughtful and entertaining, and the address next Sunday will be no exception. No man in the city, young or old, can spend an hour more agreeably and profitably than in listening to one of his eloquent addresses.

Brief Notes of a Personal Nature And of Matters About Town.

Fifteenth Anniversary — The fifteenth anniversary of the Jr. O. U. A. M. of this city will be celebrated in the lodge rooms in the third story of the postoffice building the evening of April 9. A large number of invitations will be issued.

A New Arrival—Mr. and Mrs. Carl Parker, Fourth street, are the happy parents of a girl baby which made its arrival this morning.

Dr. Gunsaulus Tonight — The final lecture in the high school course will be given at the opera house tonight at 8:15 by the eloquent Dr. F. W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago. The announcement should be sufficient to attract a large audience.

Sent to Springfield—John Jackson, a young colored man, who has been boarding at the home of David Smith, Seventh street, was sent to his home in Springfield this morning suffering with spinal trouble. He was taken to the station in the patrol.

Investigating Pensioners—Two government officials are now in East Liverpool investigating the condition of persons receiving pensions in this city. Quite a number of government men have been in the city lately but so far nothing has been given out of a startling nature. Should any one be reported by the pension department officials it would be necessary for those reported to take another physical examination.

Sunday Afternoon Lecture—"The New Crusade" will be the theme of Rev. Dr. M. B. Pratt in his Sunday lecture at the opera house, beginning at 3 p. m. It will deal with timely topics. Dr. Pratt's lectures are always thoughtful and entertaining, and the address next Sunday will be no exception. No man in the city, young or old, can spend an hour more agreeably and profitably than in listening to one of his eloquent addresses.

Hundreds of them now in our big and beautiful show room, embracing almost as many different styles. There is a charm and elegance to our millinery that is imitable. Our own original designs vie in beauty and chicness with the world famous millinery houses' models. We use only first class materials, and allow none but the best workmanship. Such as those we offer at $4.98 $5.98 and $6.98 could not be duplicated in any house in this city for less than two to three times the price we ask.

Our Offer of Trimming Hats Free of Charge means more than you can realize, if you have not already tested its special saving opportunities. UNCLE SAM'S TARS TO BE ATHLETIC

Every Naval Vessel to Have Means For Indulging in Sports.

FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL

With Teams Representing Every Craft Will Be a Feature of the Navy Hereafter—The President Encouraging the Athletic Tendency.

President Roosevelt, who, as assistant secretary of the navy, first supplied American sailors with boxing gloves, has now seen to it that every ship's crew is to have complete outfits of up-to-date baseball material in order that nines and elevens, to rival college teams ashore, shall be established to represent every craft.

When President Roosevelt became assistant secretary of the navy he looked up the matter of athletic equipment for the men. He found that dumbbells, Indian clubs and fencing outfits were furnished naval officers, but that the department, while looking with favor on athletics among the men, failed to supply them with any material. The apostle of the strenuous life and exercise at once issued an order to supply every one of the smaller ships in the navy with four sets of boxing gloves, and to double the number on battleships and cruisers. Not only was the development of the manly art to be permitted, but officers were directed to encourage the use of the boxing gloves supplied to the fullest extent.

Today there are champions on every ship in the navy in every class, and the men as a rule have been found to be remarkably proficient with their hands on occasions when shore leave brought them in contact with sailormen of other navies. So much so that care is now exercised by the department to prevent American ships touching too frequently at ports where warships of other nations are calling.

Recently a friend of the president's who is a baseball enthusiast, suggested that the development of the national game among the sailors of the navy might not be a bad thing. A number of the ships have had nines on board of which the crew grew extraordinarily proud in time and there is always playing where the rendezvous of a fleet or squadron gives opportunity for shore leave and athletics. But the department has never given the game the official encouragement accorded to boxing, rowing, sailing or swimming.

President Roosevelt became interested in the question, held a conference with Secretary Moody, and as a result equipment not only for baseball but football as well has been added to the navy list of articles for which formal requisition may be made. For instance, the requisition just filled for the battleship Missouri includes tyenty-four baseballs, four footballs, twelve bats, four catcher's masks, four catcher's mitts, four chest protectors, nine basemen's mitts, two dozen suits, stockings, padded knickerbockers, belts and all, two punching bags and six pairs of eight ounce boxing gloves.

Furthermore an official order of the department commands ship commanders to report when there shall be on board their ships nines sufficiently skilled to be in a sort of championship class with an association organized among the crew to back it up. The ship shall then be entitled to extra uniforms for this particular nine each with the name of the ship printed in large luxuriant letters over the breast of the shirt. Moreover pennants are to be supplied by the government to be contested for by the nines belonging to any one squadron whenever the squadron commander shall request their issue. Other trophies for rowing, sailing, football and broadsword contests will also be supplied. With the mare furnished glass cases for their protection and exhibition on board the ship. President Roosevelt is displayed as the true college man in his reverence for athletic trophies in this last provision. College athletes who wander into a battleship of the navy at some future date after this system has been in operation might well fancy themselves in the trophy rooms of their home institutions.

DELAWARE'S NEW UNITED STATES SENATORS.

J. Frank Allee and L. Heisler Ball, Delaware's new senators, were both conspicuous in the long but unsuccessful fight of J. Edward Addicks for a senatorial toga. Allee was Addicks' manager in the struggle and Ball, congressman at large from Delaware, was the leader of the opposition.

ELOPED SECOND DAY AFTER WIFE'S FUNERAL

Cadiz, April 3.—The quiet little village of Hopedale, this county, has been stirred from center to circumference by what is considered the most peculiar and striking sensation ever known in this section of the state. Jesse, better known as "Doc" Martin, who owned the best livery stable in the town, and who was said to be well fixed financially, married a daughter of Weston Baker, and all went well until about a year ago, when Mr. Martin began to treat his wife cruelly and pay attention to other women.

A short time ago he went home under the influence of drink and caught their little girl, who is but a few years old, and poured nearly a half pint of whisky down her throat. Relatives had the cruel father arrested and suits of various nature, which were said to be very sensational, were brought in the county courts, but have not yet been heard, and likely never will, as Mrs. Martin was seized with nervous prostration, caused, it is said, by abuses and humiliation, and died. Two days after the funeral Mr. Martin and Mrs. Penn, wife of a well known citizen of the town, eloped and have not been heard from since.

It is said that if Martin should return he would be very apt to receive severe treatment at the hands of the enraged citizens of that community. Martin is a brother of Mrs. Guice, who received the price of a farm from her husband if she would leave him.

GANG OF YOUNG TOUGHS CREDITED WITH THEFTS

A gang of ruffians infests the city and as a result of their workings numerous complaints are being heard daily accompanied by the request that the band be arrested and sent from the city. There are about six young men in the gang and they can be seen together parading the streets at almost any hour of the day and night. To them is given the credit for the numerous cases of petty thieving reported of late and it is the prediction of many that unless the members of the gang are rounded up and given a stiff sentence a theft of more serious proportions will occur in the near future.

One of the schemes worked by the men as a means of livelihood is to buy or steal an old brass ring for ten or fifteen cents, and, meeting a stranger, put up a coy of hard luck and prevail upon him to give them 50 cents for the ring which they say is solid gold, a gift of their mother who is now dead, and that were it not for their destitute circumstances they would not think of parting with the jewelry. Two of the gang stopped a well known business man at a late hour on Fifth street last night and rudely demanded that he either give them the price asked for the ring or enough to get a drink. The man approached is not little in stature and starting at them with blood in his eyes, put them to flight.

HARRY M. SMITH NOW A PHYSICIAN

Columbus, April 3.—(Special)—Harry Milton Smith, colored, of East Liverpool, who has just completed a four years' course at the Ohio Medical university, at Columbus, has passed the examination with high honors and is now a full fledged physician.

Mr. Smith is doubtless the first representative of his race from East Liverpool to become a legally qualified practitioner of medicine, and his success is due solely to indefatigable individual effort. He supported himself and paid his way through college by working at barbering before and after school hours. He is popular and of excellent address, posseses high literary attainments and polish, and should make his mark. He is a member of the East Liverpool High School alumni graduating in the class of '95.

Mr. Smith was born in East Liverpool on March 24, 1873, and is the son of Preston C. Smith, of 358 Fourth street, East Liverpool. Mrs. Jiles A. Goode, whose sweet voice has delighted East Liverpool audiences on many occasions, is a sister, and John Granville Smith, of the East End, is a brother. Mr. Smith will leave here in June to open an office in Pittsburg.

SON DEAD, MOTHER DYING

Steubenville, April 3. — On the threshold of death in a little three-room house at Bustard's shaft, Mrs. Mary McGivern, lay for hours this morning near the dead body of her son. Almost 100 years of age, with no one to care for her and old age and sickness having become master over her body, the aged woman was unable to summon assistance or to go to the bedside of her son.

The McGivern family, composed of mother and three sons, Michael, Frank and Patrick, the latter of Toronto, are old residents of Steubenville. The sons, Michael and Frank, live with their mother and worked as section hands on the C. & P. For a week Frank has been complaining of pains in his chest, back and side, but still he continued to work. Wednesday, however, he became so sick that he could no longer handle a shovel, and in order to have him treated the brother, Michael, sent for Dr. Laughlin, and then went to his work.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, when Dr. Curt Laughlin went to the house he opened the door, and going to the bed where the son Frank lay he found that he was dead, and an examination showed that he had been dead several hours. Death probably occurred soon after the brother left the house to go to work.

The mother was too weak to know what was going on and in the hope of restoring her to consciousness medical treatment was given her, but it served to no purpose, and it is probable that the mother, who has been ill for several weeks, will follow her son to the grave, as her death is expected in a few hours.

VESSELS IN PERILOUS CONDITION

St. Johns, N. F., April 3.—According to reports from Bay of Islands, on the west coast of Newfoundland, the 10 American fishing vessels which have been frozen into the ice field there since Jan. 17 are in a perilous position, owing to the ice floes drifting after a severe storm on Tuesday night. The vessels' provisions are also running out and the crews have been put on short rations. The whole settlement of 3,000 people at Bay of Islands is dangerously short of provisions and much anxiety prevails.

The gulf of St. Lawrence is blocked with ice as far as the eye can reach. The railway line across Newfoundland has been blocked by snow drifts since the middle of February and not a single train has been running since. It is not known when the road will be open again, the railway employes being unable to clear the line because of the blizzards in the interior. The government probably will dispatch a sealing steamer laden with provisions to relieve the inhabitants at Bay of Islands from the danger of famine, which is declared to be inevitable unless relief arrives. The steamer will also endeavor to cut out the American fishing vessels.

Mrs. McKinley in Runaway Accident.

Canton, O., April 3.—While Mrs. McKinley was on her way to the cemetery, where she goes daily to visit her husband's grave, her team started on a runaway down the Fifth street hill, which is quite steep. After they were about half way down the hill, and it seemed impossible for Mrs. McKinley to retain her seat in the carriage, one of the horses fell and rolled under the front wheels of the vehicle, stopping it almost instantly. Neither Mrs. McKinley nor the driver were hurt, but Mrs. McKinley is quite ill as a result of the trying experience.

Brewers Appeal to Court.

Columbus, O., April 3.—Judge Bigger issued a temporary order restraining the 600 striking brewery workers from establishing pickets in the vicinity of the local breweries to interfering with or intimidating the men who may be employed there. No attempt was made by the brewers to deliver beer, but it is expected an effort will be made to fill the places of the strikers.

Desires to Be an Actress.

Pennell Inquest Next Friday.

Buffalo, April 3.—Judge Murphy announced that the inquest into the death of Arthur R. Pennell will be held at the office of the medical examiner at 3 o'clock next Friday afternoon.

Massillon Miners Quit.

Massillon, O., April 3.—The 3,000 miners of this district have quit work. The controversy hinges on the wage scale of the outdoor day laborers.

SEPARATE PROTOCOLS

To Be Drawn Up Between Venezuela and British, German and Italian Governments.

PRESENT ONES UNSATISFACTORY

Meeting Has Been Arranged and Will Be Attended by Representatives of Allied Powers—Proposed Amendments to Be Discussed.

Washington, April 3.—Work on The Hague protocols will begin today. A meeting has been arranged for 11 o'clock at the British embassy, which will be attended by the diplomatic representatives of the allied powers—Great Britain, Germany and Italy. Certain proposed amendments to the draft of the protocol submitted to the British ambassador by Mr. Bowen have been suggested by the allies and these will be discussed. It is probable that it will be some days before a common ground of agreement is reached.

The amendments to the protocol were handed to Mr. Bowen by the British ambassador, but the former does not feel at liberty to discuss them in advance of the meeting. They have formed the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the foreign offices of the allies in Europe for some time and it is now understood that they are practically on the basis on which the protocol should be drawn.

Separate protocols are to be drawn up between Mr. Bowen, representing Venezuela, and the British, German and Italian governments, providing for mixed commissions to sit at Caracas to adjudicate the claims of the citizens of those countries against the South American republic. The protocol of Feb. 13, which, in addition to sending the question of preferential treatment to The Hague, also provided for such commissions, is unsatisfactory on some points, and for this reason the new agreements are to be signed. This will be done at the request of the representatives of the allied governments.

DINNER OF HOME MARKET CLUB

Secretary Root and Senator Lodge Guests of Honor and Principal Speakers.

Boston, April 3.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, and United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, were the guests of honor and principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Home Market club, the representative Republican organization of New England. The occasion was of signal interest not only because at it, as at all meetings of the Home Market club, were expounded the principles and policies of the Republican party, but because the speeches of Secretary Root and Senator Lodge were regarded particularly as the words of the administration at Washington on the anticipated issues of the next national canvass.

Mr. Root spoke on the tariff and Mr. Lodge on the question of Canadian reciprocity and of the charges made against the American soldiers in the Philippines.

Governor John L. Bates also spoke although briefly, in the way of greeting to the guests. All three speakers were accorded magnificent ovations.

NERVOUS HEADACHE

The Cause of Much Suffering to Women Is Permanently Cured When the System Is Built Up By

DR. A. W. CHASE NERVE PILLS.

A NERVE TONIC NEVER EQUALED

THIS SHAPED BOX - NO OTHER

Mrs. John Fall, of 4th St., Toronto, O., says: "I like Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills because they cured my nervous, sick headaches—these headaches used to play me out and leave me weak and nervous, the pain being so severe. My eyes used to get stiff and sore during the attack and the neck and so stiff I could hardly turn it. The Nerve Pills, however, proved to be just what I needed and cured the attacks in a hurry. As a result I feel steady in nerves, physically strong and vigorous and in every way sound and well. This makes me feel I can't speak too highly of the medicine."

When the head aches hard and throbs; when the neck and eyes grow stiff, the face flushes or grows deathly white; when any excitement or over effort brings on an attack of nervous headache so severe that it leaves you weak, trembly, shaky and utterly worthless for days, it is a sure indication that the nervous system is shattered—that resistive power is gone—that you need a medicine that will rebuild and re-supply the lost nerve force, that will so strengthen you that you can resist and overcome these terrible seizures. Such a medicine is Dr. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS, a medicine that does not relieve but goes to the root of the trouble and positively cures.

Mrs. Della Kerns, of No. 716 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y., says: "When I got the box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I was so nervous I could not keep still, could not sleep and was in a mighty bad state. My head ached nard—those hard, racking, nervous headaches that left me weak and prostrated. I took the box of medicine and since that time have been all right—no headaches—no nervousness, feel strong and vigorous, and can sleep well again. I am glad, indeed, to recommend the medicine, as I consider it a safe and certain cure for such troubles. In action it is very pleasant and agreeable and what is more, devoid of all the unpleasant effects of the usual headache preparations. It certainly is a grand medicine."

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health.

If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

UNCLE SAM'S TARS TO BE ATHLETIC

FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL

With Teams Representing Every Craft Will Be a Feature of the Navy Hereafter—The President Encouraging the Athletic Tendency.

President Roosevelt, who, as assistant secretary of the navy, first supplied American sailors with boxing gloves, has now seen to it that every ship's crew is to have complete outfits of up-to-date baseball material in order that nines and elevens, to rival college teams ashore, shall be established to represent every craft.

When President Roosevelt became assistant secretary of the navy he looked up the matter of athletic equipment for the men. He found that dumbbells, Indian clubs and fencing outfits were furnished naval officers, but that the department, while looking with favor on athletics among the men, failed to supply them with any material. The apostle of the strenuous life and exercise at once issued an order to supply every one of the smaller ships in the navy with four sets of boxing gloves, and to double the number on battleships and cruisers. Not only was the development of the manly art to be permitted, but officers were directed to encourage the use of the boxing gloves supplied to the fullest extent.

Today there are champions on every ship in the navy in every class, and the men as a rule have been found to be remarkably proficient with their hands on occasions when shore leave brought them in contact with sailormen of other navies. So much so that care is now exercised by the department to prevent American ships touching too frequently at ports where warships of other nations are calling.

Recently a friend of the president's who is a baseball enthusiast, suggested that the development of the national game among the sailors of the navy might not be a bad thing. A number of the ships have had nines on board of which the crew grew extraordinarily proud in time and there is always playing where the rendezvous of a fleet or squadron gives opportunity for shore leave and athletics. But the department has never given the game the official encouragement accorded to boxing, rowing, sailing or swimming.

President Roosevelt became interested in the question, held a conference with Secretary Moody, and as a result equipment not only for baseball but football as well has been added to the navy list of articles for which formal requisition may be made. For instance, the requisition just filled for the battleship Missouri includes tyenty-four baseballs, four footballs, twelve bats, four catcher's masks, four catcher's mitts, four chest protectors, nine basemen's mitts, two dozen suits, stockings, padded knickerbockers, belts and all, two punching bags and six pairs of eight ounce boxing gloves.

Furthermore an official order of the department commands ship commanders to report when there shall be on board their ships nines sufficiently skilled to be in a sort of championship class with an association organized among the crew to back it up. The ship shall then be entitled to extra uniforms for this particular nine each with the name of the ship printed in large luxuriant letters over the breast of the shirt. Moreover pennants are to be supplied by the government to be contested for by the nines belonging to any one squadron whenever the squadron commander shall request their issue. Other trophies for rowing, sailing, football and broadsword contests will also be supplied. With the mare furnished glass cases for their protection and exhibition on board the ship. President Roosevelt is displayed as the true college man in his reverence for athletic trophies in this last provision. College athletes who wander into a battleship of the navy at some future date after this system has been in operation might well fancy themselves in the trophy rooms of their home institutions.

J. Frank Allee and L. Heisler Ball, Delaware's new senators, were both conspicuous in the long but unsuccessful fight of J. Edward Addicks for a senatorial toga. Allee was Addicks' manager in the struggle and Ball, congressman at large from Delaware, was the leader of the opposition.

ELOPED SECOND DAY AFTER WIFE'S FUNERAL

Cadiz, April 3.—The quiet little village of Hopedale, this county, has been stirred from center to circumference by what is considered the most peculiar and striking sensation ever known in this section of the state. Jesse, better known as "Doc" Martin, who owned the best livery stable in the town, and who was said to be well fixed financially, married a daughter of Weston Baker, and all went well until about a year ago, when Mr. Martin began to treat his wife cruelly and pay attention to other women.

A short time ago he went home under the influence of drink and caught their little girl, who is but a few years old, and poured nearly a half pint of whisky down her throat. Relatives had the cruel father arrested and suits of various nature, which were said to be very sensational, were brought in the county courts, but have not yet been heard, and likely never will, as Mrs. Martin was seized with nervous prostration, caused, it is said, by abuses and humiliation, and died. Two days after the funeral Mr. Martin and Mrs. Penn, wife of a well known citizen of the town, eloped and have not been heard from since.

It is said that if Martin should return he would be very apt to receive severe treatment at the hands of the enraged citizens of that community. Martin is a brother of Mrs. Guice, who received the price of a farm from her husband if she would leave him.

GANG OF YOUNG TOUGHS CREDITED WITH THEFTS

A gang of ruffians infests the city and as a result of their workings numerous complaints are being heard daily accompanied by the request that the band be arrested and sent from the city. There are about six young men in the gang and they can be seen together parading the streets at almost any hour of the day and night. To them is given the credit for the numerous cases of petty thieving reported of late and it is the prediction of many that unless the members of the gang are rounded up and given a stiff sentence a theft of more serious proportions will occur in the near future.

One of the schemes worked by the men as a means of livelihood is to buy or steal an old brass ring for ten or fifteen cents, and, meeting a stranger, put up a coy of hard luck and prevail upon him to give them 50 cents for the ring which they say is solid gold, a gift of their mother who is now dead, and that were it not for their destitute circumstances they would not think of parting with the jewelry. Two of the gang stopped a well known business man at a late hour on Fifth street last night and rudely demanded that he either give them the price asked for the ring or enough to get a drink. The man approached is not little in stature and starting at them with blood in his eyes, put them to flight.

HARRY M. SMITH NOW A PHYSICIAN

Columbus, April 3.—(Special)—Harry Milton Smith, colored, of East Liverpool, who has just completed a four years' course at the Ohio Medical university, at Columbus, has passed the examination with high honors and is now a full fledged physician.

Mr. Smith is doubtless the first representative of his race from East Liverpool to become a legally qualified practitioner of medicine, and his success is due solely to indefatigable individual effort. He supported himself and paid his way through college by working at barbering before and after school hours. He is popular and of excellent address, posseses high literary attainments and polish, and should make his mark. He is a member of the East Liverpool High School alumni graduating in the class of '95.

Mr. Smith was born in East Liverpool on March 24, 1873, and is the son of Preston C. Smith, of 358 Fourth street, East Liverpool. Mrs. Jiles A. Goode, whose sweet voice has delighted East Liverpool audiences on many occasions, is a sister, and John Granville Smith, of the East End, is a brother. Mr. Smith will leave here in June to open an office in Pittsburg.

SON DEAD, MOTHER DYING

Steubenville, April 3. — On the threshold of death in a little three-room house at Bustard's shaft, Mrs. Mary McGivern, lay for hours this morning near the dead body of her son. Almost 100 years of age, with no one to care for her and old age and sickness having become master over her body, the aged woman was unable to summon assistance or to go to the bedside of her son.

The McGivern family, composed of mother and three sons, Michael, Frank and Patrick, the latter of Toronto, are old residents of Steubenville. The sons, Michael and Frank, live with their mother and worked as section hands on the C. & P. For a week Frank has been complaining of pains in his chest, back and side, but still he continued to work. Wednesday, however, he became so sick that he could no longer handle a shovel, and in order to have him treated the brother, Michael, sent for Dr. Laughlin, and then went to his work.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, when Dr. Curt Laughlin went to the house he opened the door, and going to the bed where the son Frank lay he found that he was dead, and an examination showed that he had been dead several hours. Death probably occurred soon after the brother left the house to go to work.

The mother was too weak to know what was going on and in the hope of restoring her to consciousness medical treatment was given her, but it served to no purpose, and it is probable that the mother, who has been ill for several weeks, will follow her son to the grave, as her death is expected in a few hours.

VESSELS IN PERILOUS CONDITION

St. Johns, N. F., April 3.—According to reports from Bay of Islands, on the west coast of Newfoundland, the 10 American fishing vessels which have been frozen into the ice field there since Jan. 17 are in a perilous position, owing to the ice floes drifting after a severe storm on Tuesday night. The vessels' provisions are also running out and the crews have been put on short rations. The whole settlement of 3,000 people at Bay of Islands is dangerously short of provisions and much anxiety prevails.

The gulf of St. Lawrence is blocked with ice as far as the eye can reach. The railway line across Newfoundland has been blocked by snow drifts since the middle of February and not a single train has been running since. It is not known when the road will be open again, the railway employes being unable to clear the line because of the blizzards in the interior. The government probably will dispatch a sealing steamer laden with provisions to relieve the inhabitants at Bay of Islands from the danger of famine, which is declared to be inevitable unless relief arrives. The steamer will also endeavor to cut out the American fishing vessels.

Mrs. McKinley in Runaway Accident.

Canton, O., April 3.—While Mrs. McKinley was on her way to the cemetery, where she goes daily to visit her husband's grave, her team started on a runaway down the Fifth street hill, which is quite steep. After they were about half way down the hill, and it seemed impossible for Mrs. McKinley to retain her seat in the carriage, one of the horses fell and rolled under the front wheels of the vehicle, stopping it almost instantly. Neither Mrs. McKinley nor the driver were hurt, but Mrs. McKinley is quite ill as a result of the trying experience.

Brewers Appeal to Court.

Columbus, O., April 3.—Judge Bigger issued a temporary order restraining the 600 striking brewery workers from establishing pickets in the vicinity of the local breweries to interfering with or intimidating the men who may be employed there. No attempt was made by the brewers to deliver beer, but it is expected an effort will be made to fill the places of the strikers.

SEPARATE PROTOCOLS

To Be Drawn Up Between Venezuela and British, German and Italian Governments.

Meeting Has Been Arranged and Will Be Attended by Representatives of Allied Powers—Proposed Amendments to Be Discussed.

Washington, April 3.—Work on The Hague protocols will begin today. A meeting has been arranged for 11 o'clock at the British embassy, which will be attended by the diplomatic representatives of the allied powers—Great Britain, Germany and Italy. Certain proposed amendments to the draft of the protocol submitted to the British ambassador by Mr. Bowen have been suggested by the allies and these will be discussed. It is probable that it will be some days before a common ground of agreement is reached.

The amendments to the protocol were handed to Mr. Bowen by the British ambassador, but the former does not feel at liberty to discuss them in advance of the meeting. They have formed the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the foreign offices of the allies in Europe for some time and it is now understood that they are practically on the basis on which the protocol should be drawn.

Separate protocols are to be drawn up between Mr. Bowen, representing Venezuela, and the British, German and Italian governments, providing for mixed commissions to sit at Caracas to adjudicate the claims of the citizens of those countries against the South American republic. The protocol of Feb. 13, which, in addition to sending the question of preferential treatment to The Hague, also provided for such commissions, is unsatisfactory on some points, and for this reason the new agreements are to be signed. This will be done at the request of the representatives of the allied governments.

DINNER OF HOME MARKET CLUB

Secretary Root and Senator Lodge Guests of Honor and Principal Speakers.

Boston, April 3.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, and United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, were the guests of honor and principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Home Market club, the representative Republican organization of New England. The occasion was of signal interest not only because at it, as at all meetings of the Home Market club, were expounded the principles and policies of the Republican party, but because the speeches of Secretary Root and Senator Lodge were regarded particularly as the words of the administration at Washington on the anticipated issues of the next national canvass.

Mr. Root spoke on the tariff and Mr. Lodge on the question of Canadian reciprocity and of the charges made against the American soldiers in the Philippines.

Governor John L. Bates also spoke although briefly, in the way of greeting to the guests. All three speakers were accorded magnificent ovations.

There are about six young men in the gang and they can be seen together parading the streets at almost any hour of the day and night. To them is given the credit for the numerous cases of petty thieving reported of late and it is the prediction of many that unless the members of the gang are rounded up and given a stiff sentence a theft of more serious proportions will occur in the near future.

One of the schemes worked by the men as a means of livelihood is to buy or steal an old brass ring for ten or fifteen cents, and, meeting a stranger, put up a coy of hard luck and prevail upon him to give them 50 cents for the ring which they say is solid gold, a gift of their mother who is now dead, and that were it not for their destitute circumstances they would not think of parting with the jewelry. Two of the gang stopped a well known business man at a late hour on Fifth street last night and rudely demanded that he either give them the price asked for the ring or enough to get a drink. The man approached is not little in stature and starting at them with blood in his eyes, put them to flight.

HARRY M. SMITH NOW A PHYSICIAN

Columbus, April 3.—(Special)—Harry Milton Smith, colored, of East Liverpool, who has just completed a four years' course at the Ohio Medical university, at Columbus, has passed the examination with high honors and is now a full fledged physician.

Mr. Smith is doubtless the first representative of his race from East Liverpool to become a legally qualified practitioner of medicine, and his success is due solely to indefatigable individual effort. He supported himself and paid his way through college by working at barbering before and after school hours. He is popular and of excellent address, posseses high literary attainments and polish, and should make his mark. He is a member of the East Liverpool High School alumni graduating in the class of '95.

Mr. Smith was born in East Liverpool on March 24, 1873, and is the son of Preston C. Smith, of 358 Fourth street, East Liverpool. Mrs. Jiles A. Goode, whose sweet voice has delighted East Liverpool audiences on many occasions, is a sister, and John Granville Smith, of the East End, is a brother. Mr. Smith will leave here in June to open an office in Pittsburg.

SON DEAD, MOTHER DYING

Steubenville, April 3. — On the threshold of death in a little three-room house at Bustard's shaft, Mrs. Mary McGivern, lay for hours this morning near the dead body of her son. Almost 100 years of age, with no one to care for her and old age and sickness having become master over her body, the aged woman was unable to summon assistance or to go to the bedside of her son.

The McGivern family, composed of mother and three sons, Michael, Frank and Patrick, the latter of Toronto, are old residents of Steubenville. The sons, Michael and Frank, live with their mother and worked as section hands on the C. & P. For a week Frank has been complaining of pains in his chest, back and side, but still he continued to work. Wednesday, however, he became so sick that he could no longer handle a shovel, and in order to have him treated the brother, Michael, sent for Dr. Laughlin, and then went to his work.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, when Dr. Curt Laughlin went to the house he opened the door, and going to the bed where the son Frank lay he found that he was dead, and an examination showed that he had been dead several hours. Death probably occurred soon after the brother left the house to go to work.

The mother was too weak to know what was going on and in the hope of restoring her to consciousness medical treatment was given her, but it served to no purpose, and it is probable that the mother, who has been ill for several weeks, will follow her son to the grave, as her death is expected in a few hours.

VESSELS IN PERILOUS CONDITION

St. Johns, N. F., April 3.—According to reports from Bay of Islands, on the west coast of Newfoundland, the 10 American fishing vessels which have been frozen into the ice field there since Jan. 17 are in a perilous position, owing to the ice floes drifting after a severe storm on Tuesday night. The vessels' provisions are also running out and the crews have been put on short rations. The whole settlement of 3,000 people at Bay of Islands is dangerously short of provisions and much anxiety prevails.

The gulf of St. Lawrence is blocked with ice as far as the eye can reach. The railway line across Newfoundland has been blocked by snow drifts since the middle of February and not a single train has been running since. It is not known when the road will be open again, the railway employes being unable to clear the line because of the blizzards in the interior. The government probably will dispatch a sealing steamer laden with provisions to relieve the inhabitants at Bay of Islands from the danger of famine, which is declared to be inevitable unless relief arrives. The steamer will also endeavor to cut out the American fishing vessels.

Mrs. McKinley in Runaway Accident.

Canton, O., April 3.—While Mrs. McKinley was on her way to the cemetery, where she goes daily to visit her husband's grave, her team started on a runaway down the Fifth street hill, which is quite steep. After they were about half way down the hill, and it seemed impossible for Mrs. McKinley to retain her seat in the carriage, one of the horses fell and rolled under the front wheels of the vehicle, stopping it almost instantly. Neither Mrs. McKinley nor the driver were hurt, but Mrs. McKinley is quite ill as a result of the trying experience.

Brewers Appeal to Court.

Columbus, O., April 3.—Judge Bigger issued a temporary order restraining the 600 striking brewery workers from establishing pickets in the vicinity of the local breweries to interfering with or intimidating the men who may be employed there. No attempt was made by the brewers to deliver beer, but it is expected an effort will be made to fill the places of the strikers.

Desires to Be an Actress.

Pennell Inquest Next Friday.

Buffalo, April 3.—Judge Murphy announced that the inquest into the death of Arthur R. Pennell will be held at the office of the medical examiner at 3 o'clock next Friday afternoon.

Massillon Miners Quit.

Massillon, O., April 3.—The 3,000 miners of this district have quit work. The controversy hinges on the wage scale of the outdoor day laborers.

SEPARATE PROTOCOLS

To Be Drawn Up Between Venezuela and British, German and Italian Governments.

Meeting Has Been Arranged and Will Be Attended by Representatives of Allied Powers—Proposed Amendments to Be Discussed.

Washington, April 3.—Work on The Hague protocols will begin today. A meeting has been arranged for 11 o'clock at the British embassy, which will be attended by the diplomatic representatives of the allied powers—Great Britain, Germany and Italy. Certain proposed amendments to the draft of the protocol submitted to the British ambassador by Mr. Bowen have been suggested by the allies and these will be discussed. It is probable that it will be some days before a common ground of agreement is reached.

The amendments to the protocol were handed to Mr. Bowen by the British ambassador, but the former does not feel at liberty to discuss them in advance of the meeting. They have formed the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the foreign offices of the allies in Europe for some time and it is now understood that they are practically on the basis on which the protocol should be drawn.

Separate protocols are to be drawn up between Mr. Bowen, representing Venezuela, and the British, German and Italian governments, providing for mixed commissions to sit at Caracas to adjudicate the claims of the citizens of those countries against the South American republic. The protocol of Feb. 13, which, in addition to sending the question of preferential treatment to The Hague, also provided for such commissions, is unsatisfactory on some points, and for this reason the new agreements are to be signed. This will be done at the request of the representatives of the allied governments.

DINNER OF HOME MARKET CLUB

Secretary Root and Senator Lodge Guests of Honor and Principal Speakers.

Boston, April 3.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, and United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, were the guests of honor and principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Home Market club, the representative Republican organization of New England. The occasion was of signal interest not only because at it, as at all meetings of the Home Market club, were expounded the principles and policies of the Republican party, but because the speeches of Secretary Root and Senator Lodge were regarded particularly as the words of the administration at Washington on the anticipated issues of the next national canvass.

Mr. Root spoke on the tariff and Mr. Lodge on the question of Canadian reciprocity and of the charges made against the American soldiers in the Philippines.

Governor John L. Bates also spoke although briefly, in the way of greeting to the guests. All three speakers were accorded magnificent ovations.

NERVOUS HEADACHE

DR. A. W. CHASE NERVE PILLS.

THIS SHAPE BOX - NO OTHER

Mrs. John Fall, of 4th St., Toronto, O., says: "I like Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills because they cured my nervous, sick headaches—these headaches used to play me out and leave me weak and nervous, the pain being so severe. My eyes used to get stiff and sore during the attack and the neck and so stiff I could hardly turn it. The Nerve Pills, however, proved to be just what I needed and cured the attacks in a hurry. As a result I feel steady in nerves, physically strong and vigorous and in every way sound and well. This makes me feel I can't speak too highly of the medicine."

When the head aches hard and throbs; when the neck and eyes grow stiff, the face flushes or grows deathly white; when any excitement or over effort brings on an attack of nervous headache so severe that it leaves you weak, trembly, shaky and utterly worthless for days, it is a sure indication that the nervous system is shattered—that resistive power is gone—that you need a medicine that will rebuild and re-supply the lost nerve force, that will so strengthen you that you can resist and overcome these terrible seizures. Such a medicine is Dr. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS, a medicine that does not relieve but goes to the root of the trouble and positively cures.

Mrs. Della Kerns, of No. 716 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y., says: "When I got the box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I was so nervous I could not keep still, could not sleep and was in a mighty bad state. My head ached hard—those hard, racking, nervous headaches that left me weak and prostrated. I took the box of medicine and since that time have been all right—no headaches—no nervousness, feel strong and vigorous, and can sleep well again. I am glad, indeed, to recommend the medicine, as I consider it a safe and certain cure for such troubles. In action it is very pleasant and agreeable and what is more, devoid of all the unpleasant effects of the usual headache preparations. It certainly is a grand medicine."

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health.

If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

MINOR DIFFERENCES DISPOSED OF

President Ramsey Still Absent in Egypt at Bedside of Sick Daughter. Attorneys Anxious for Peaceful Settlement of All Difficulties.

St. Louis, April 3.—Everything seems to point to the amicable adjustment within a short time of the differences existing between the Wabash Railroad company and its employes. Attorneys for the parties to the controversy held several conferences which had for their purpose the paving of the way for a resumption of negotiations between railroad officials and brotherhood men, broken off on March 3 by the issuance of Judge Adams' writ of injunction. It is stated that all these conferences, at which Messrs. Hannahan and Lee, brotherhood officials, were present, many of the minor differences were disposed of and the field cleared for the discussion of the main grievances.

Efforts are being made to effect a temporary agreement between the railroad company and its employes which will carry the matters in controversy until the return of President Ramsey from the sick bed of his daughter in Egypt. Several conferences looking to a reopening of negotiations between the leaders of the brotherhoods and the Wabash officials have been held by the legal representatives of the railroad and its men.

FIGHTING IN SANTO DOMINGO.

Battle Between Government Troops and Revolutionists—Blue Jackets Landed.

Cape Haytian, Haiti, April 3.—The situation in Santo Domingo city is very critical. The commander of the United States cruiser Atlanta landed a detachment of 50 blue jackets to guard the United States consulate general in that city. A shell fired by the Dominican cruiser Presidente, which is on the side of President Vasquez, fell on the German consulate. The damage done, however, was purely material, as the projectile happily did not burst.

A battle lasting three hours has taken place between the government troops and revolutionists on the banks of the river Ozama. A hundred men were killed or wounded.

President Vasquez demands the surrender of Santo Domingo city, but the revolutionists are disposed to resist up to the last moment.

Railroad Companies Incorporated.

Ten miles of railroad, two tunnels and a bridge across the Potomac are contemplated to shorten the Baltimore and Ohio 10 miles.

How He Lost His Vote

I had stopped on an Arkansas highway to talk to a man about the state election held the preceding day, but he replied that his vote had been challenged by a woman and lost, and he had taken but little interest in the matter.

"How did a woman come to challenge your vote," I asked, "and why didn't you swear your vote in?"

"Waal," he replied, looking furtively about, "I'm not much up on law, so I didn't hold out fur what might hev bin my rights. When I left Indiana two y'ars ago, I also left the ole woman thar, and I sorter figgered when she turned up at the polls that it was p'raps jist as well not to quote law or git into any dispute if I could help it.

"Yes, I lost my vote, but I hain't feelin' bad about it. Fact is, stranger, when I think how I outrun Hanner in that two mile race through the bresh I feel powerful thankful that only my vote was lost—powerful thankful. Kin yo' spar me a pinch o' terbacker? Seems like it has a soothin' effect on my nerves, and I can't say when Hanner may bob up again and gin me another run fur life."

Disclaimed Glory.

"What's your name, my lad?"

His Business.

While Lord Charles Beresford was in New York he told of one of his tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford. One day he met her and asked how the business was getting along.

"Grand, me lord!" she exclaimed. "I now have the luckiest little hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness, it was never a day idle since I got it."—New York Times.

He Wasn't.

"Don't stand on ceremony. Come in," said a lady to an old farmer who had called to see her husband.

"My gracious! Excuse me, marm," exclaimed the other, jumping hastily aside. "I thought I was only standing on the doormat."—Youth.

Didn't Fare Well.

"Was it a 'farewell tour?'" asked the close friend.

"I should say not," responded the heavy tragedian, who had been greeted with overripe vegetables. "I never fared worse in my life."—Philadelphia Record.

The Baseball Enthusiast.

Once more the frail arbutus smiles
And wakes the soul to song;
The springtime blossoming beguiles
The heart, but not for very long.
For, though the sun kissed blooms be sweet,
Their joys ere long must pall.
My happiness is not complete
Till some one smites the ball.
The gentle birds who soar on high,
With songs so sweet and clear,
Are not so welcome to mine eye
As that well batted sphere.
In sylvan haunts I would not dwell,
I'd rather, once for all,
Sit on a bench and whoop and yell
When some one smites the ball.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

MINOR DIFFERENCES DISPOSED OF

President Ramsey Still Absent in Egypt at Bedside of Sick Daughter. Attorneys Anxious for Peaceful Settlement of All Difficulties.

St. Louis, April 3.—Everything seems to point to the amicable adjustment within a short time of the differences existing between the Wabash Railroad company and its employes. Attorneys for the parties to the controversy held several conferences which had for their purpose the paving of the way for a resumption of negotiations between railroad officials and brotherhood men, broken off on March 3 by the issuance of Judge Adams' writ of injunction. It is stated that all these conferences, at which Messrs. Hannahan and Lee, brotherhood officials, were present, many of the minor differences were disposed of and the field cleared for the discussion of the main grievances.

Efforts are being made to effect a temporary agreement between the railroad company and its employes which will carry the matters in controversy until the return of President Ramsey from the sick bed of his daughter in Egypt. Several conferences looking to a reopening of negotiations between the leaders of the brotherhoods and the Wabash officials have been held by the legal representatives of the railroad and its men.

FIGHTING IN SANTO DOMINGO.

Cape Haytian, Haiti, April 3.—The situation in Santo Domingo city is very critical. The commander of the United States cruiser Atlanta landed a detachment of 50 blue jackets to guard the United States consulate general in that city. A shell fired by the Dominican cruiser Presidente, which is on the side of President Vasquez, fell on the German consulate. The damage done, however, was purely material, as the projectile happily did not burst.

A battle lasting three hours has taken place between the government troops and revolutionists on the banks of the river Ozama. A hundred men were killed or wounded.

President Vasquez demands the surrender of Santo Domingo city, but the revolutionists are disposed to resist up to the last moment.

Railroad Companies Incorporated.

Cumberland, Md., April 3.—Three railroad companies have been incorporated with the view of straightening and shortening the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio. They are the Potomac and Morgan County Railroad companies, of West Virginia, and the Allegany Railroad company, of Maryland. Ten miles of railroad, two tunnels and a bridge across the Potomac are contemplated to shorten the Baltimore and Ohio 10 miles.

FOREIGN NEWS IN BRIEF.

The German emperor has arrived in Copenhagen.

The bubonic plague has reappeared in some parts of Egypt. Cholera cases are reported at Alexandria.

Germany's new 3 per cent loan, amounting to $72,500,000, will be subscribed for April 17. The subscription price is 92.

How He Lost His Vote

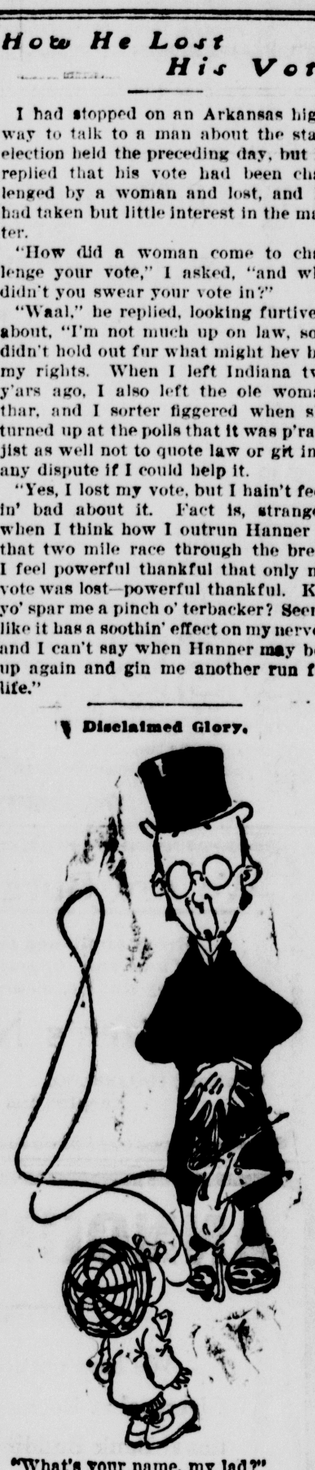
I had stopped on an Arkansas highway to talk to a man about the state election held the preceding day, but he replied that his vote had been challenged by a woman and lost, and he had taken but little interest in the matter.

"How did a woman come to challenge your vote," I asked, "and why didn't you swear your vote in?"

"Waal," he replied, looking furtively about, "I'm not much up on law, so I didn't hold out fur what might hev bin my rights. When I left Indiana two y'ars ago, I also left the ole woman thar, and I sorter figgered when she turned up at the polls that it was p'raps jist as well not to quote law or git into any dispute if I could help it.

"Yes, I lost my vote, but I hain't feelin' bad about it. Fact is, stranger, when I think how I outrun Hanner in that two mile race through the bresh I feel powerful thankful that only my vote was lost—powerful thankful. Kin yo' spar me a pinch o' terbacker? Seems like it has a soothin' effect on my nerves, and I can't say when Hanner may bob up again and gin me another run fur life."

Disclaimed Glory.



"What's your name, my lad?"

His Business.

While Lord Charles Beresford was in New York he told of one of his tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford. One day he met her and asked how the business was getting along.

"Grand, me lord!" she exclaimed. "I now have the luckiest little hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness, it was never a day idle since I got it."—New York Times.

He Wasn't.

"Don't stand on ceremony. Come in," said a lady to an old farmer who had called to see her husband.

"My gracious! Excuse me, marm," exclaimed the other, jumping hastily aside. "I thought I was only standing on the doormat."—Youth.

Didn't Fare Well.

"Was it a 'farewell tour?'" asked the close friend.

"I should say not," responded the heavy tragedian, who had been greeted with overripe vegetables. "I never fared worse in my life."—Philadelphia Record.

The Baseball Enthusiast.

Once more the frail arbutus smiles
And wakes the soul to song;
The springtime blossoming beguiles
The heart, but not for very long.
For, though the sun kissed blooms be sweet,
Their joys ere long must pall.
My happiness is not complete
Till some one smites the ball.
The gentle birds who soar on high,
With songs so sweet and clear,
Are not so welcome to mine eye
As that well batted sphere.
In sylvan haunts I would not dwell.
I'd rather, once for all,
Sit on a bench and whoop and yell
When some one smites the ball.
—Washington Star.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

MINOR DIFFERENCES DISPOSED OF

President Ramsey Still Absent in Egypt at Bedside of Sick Daughter. Attorneys Anxious for Peaceful Settlement of All Difficulties.

St. Louis, April 3.—Everything seems to point to the amicable adjustment within a short time of the differences existing between the Wabash Railroad company and its employes. Attorneys for the parties to the controversy held several conferences which had for their purpose the paving of the way for a resumption of negotiations between railroad officials and brotherhood men, broken off on March 3 by the issuance of Judge Adams' writ of injunction. It is stated that all these conferences, at which Messrs. Hannahan and Lee, brotherhood officials, were present, many of the minor differences were disposed of and the field cleared for the discussion of the main grievances.

Efforts are being made to effect a temporary agreement between the railroad company and its employes which will carry the matters in controversy until the return of President Ramsey from the sick bed of his daughter in Egypt. Several conferences looking to a reopening of negotiations between the leaders of the brotherhoods and the Wabash officials have been held by the legal representatives of the railroad and its men.

FIGHTING IN SANTO DOMINCO.

Battle Between Government Troops and Revolutionists—Blue Jackets Landed.

Cape Haytian, Haiti, April 3.—The situation in Santo Domingo city is very critical. The commander of the United States cruiser Atlanta landed a detachment of 50 blue jackets to guard the United States consulate general in that city. A shell fired by the Dominican cruiser Presidente, which is on the side of President Vasquez, fell on the German consulate. The damage done, however, was purely material, as the projectile happily did not burst.

A battle lasting three hours has taken place between the government troops and revolutionists on the banks of the river Ozama. A hundred men were killed or wounded.

President Vasquez demands the surrender of Santo Domingo city, but the revolutionists are disposed to resist up to the last moment.

Railroad Companies Incorporated.

Cumberland, Md., April 3.—Three railroad companies have been incorporated with the view of straightening and shortening the main line of the Baltimore and Ohio. They are the Potomac and Morgan County Railroad companies, of West Virginia, and the Allegany Railroad company, of Maryland. How He Lost His Vote

I had stopped on an Arkansas highway to talk to a man about the state election held the preceding day, but he replied that his vote had been challenged by a woman and lost, and he had taken but little interest in the matter.

"How did a woman come to challenge your vote," I asked, "and why didn't you swear your vote in?"

"Waal," he replied, looking furtively about, "I'm not much up on law, so I didn't hold out fur what might hev bin my rights. When I left Indiana two y'ars ago, I also left the ole woman thar, and I sorter figgered when she turned up at the polls that it was p'raps jist as well not to quote law or git into any dispute if I could help it.

"Yes, I lost my vote, but I hain't feelin' bad about it. Fact is, stranger, when I think how I outrun Hanner in that two mile race through the bresh I feel powerful thankful that only my vote was lost—powerful thankful. Kin yo' spar me a pinch o' terbacker? Seems like it has a soothin' effect on my nerves, and I can't say when Hanner may bob up again and gin me another run fur life."

Disclaimed Glory.

"What's your name, my lad?"

His Business.

While Lord Charles Beresford was in New York he told of one of his tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford. One day he met her and asked how the business was getting along.

"Grand, me lord!" she exclaimed. "I now have the luckiest little hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness, it was never a day idle since I got it."—New York Times.

He Wasn't.

"Don't stand on ceremony. Come in," said a lady to an old farmer who had called to see her husband.

"My gracious! Excuse me, marm," exclaimed the other, jumping hastily aside. "I thought I was only standing on the doormat."—Youth.

Didn't Fare Well.

"Was it a 'farewell tour?'" asked the close friend.

"I should say not," responded the heavy tragedian, who had been greeted with overripe vegetables. "I never fared worse in my life."—Philadelphia Record.

The Baseball Enthusiast.

Once more the frail arbutus smiles
And wakes the soul to song;
The springtime blossoming beguiles
The heart, but not for very long.
For, though the sun kissed blooms be sweet,
Their joys ere long must pall.
My happiness is not complete
Till some one smites the ball.
The gentle birds who soar on high,
With songs so sweet and clear,
Are not so welcome to mine eye
As that well batted sphere.
In sylvan haunts I would not dwell.
I'd rather, once for all,
Sit on a bench and whoop and yell
When some one smites the ball.
—Washington Star.

"MONROE DOCTRINE"

Subject of President Roosevelt's Address at Auditorium in Chicago,

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE HEAR IT

President Has Busy Day, Including Address at Evanston, Trip to University, Banquet in Evening and Speech at Auditorium.

Chicago, April 3.—President Roosevelt's "sixty-six" day tour of the west began in earnest when he stepped from the Pennsylvania special and was received by Mayor Harrison and a special reception committee.

While the greetings were being exchanged and the members of the reception committee and the Evanston hosts presented by Mayor Harrison, the president's special train was switched to the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road for the run to the North Shore suburb.

At Evanston the president was greeted by Mayor J. A. Patten, and then, headed by a detachment of cavalry from Fort Sheridan and a military band, the party made its way through lanes of school children on the streets and of capped and gowned students on the campus to the steps of Lunt library. As the university grounds were entered a salute of 21 guns was fired.

The president was introduced by President Edmund J. James and made a brief address to the students, referring principally to the value of a college education.

At the conclusion of the president's address the party re entered the train and was hurried back to the city without a stop. Arriving again at the Union station, carriages were taken to the Auditorium.

President Made an LL.D.

After luncheon the start for the University of Chicago was made in carriages. The presidential party was met by the faculty and trustees, in cap and gown, and led by President Harper. The latter advanced as the president alighted and the two grasped hands and exchanged compliments. A few minutes were consumed and then the 250 professors escorted the president between files of 3,000 students to Kent theater, where President Harper conferred the degree of LL.D. The services were impressive. Dr. Henry Pratt Judson delivered a short address on "Leadership in Democracy." Dean R. S. Salisbury presented President Roosevelt to Dr. Harper, who addressed him in Latin. The speech lauded the chief magistrate's achievements in statecraft and scholarship. Dr. Harper then handed the president a diploma and directed that the "doctor's hood" be placed upon his shoulders. The president spoke no word, but bowed in acknowledgment of the honor conferred.

At the head of the convocation procession in which the young women of the college participated the president made his way to the site of the new law school building, where preparations had been made for him to lay the cornerstone. An immense stone, weighing seven tons, was ready to be lowered into place. President Roosevelt, trowel in hand, gave the signal, and as the huge mass settled upon its foundation he cast a small quantity of mortar beneath it. President Harper delivered the introductory address and after a short speech to the students by President Roosevelt, Dr. T. W. Goodspeed deposited a number of articles in the cornerstone.

The return to the city was made by way of the Illinois Central railroad, a special train making a fast run to the Van Buren street station. President Roosevelt walked thence to the Auditorium.

Greeting at Auditorium.

Two hours were allowed the distinguished guest to rest from the exertions of the day and to prepare for the banquet set for 6:30 o'clock.

Six thousand people in a hall, the seating capacity of which is but 5,000, gave enthusiastic greeting to President Roosevelt when he stepped upon the stage of the Auditorium.

When the president, escorted by the members of the local committee appeared on the platform he was met with great enthusiasm, the vast crowd rising to its feet and supplementing its hearty cheers with waving programs and fluttering handkerchiefs.

The president acknowledged his reception with repeated bows, and at once took his seat between Franklin MacVeagh, the chairman of the committee, and Mayor Harrison, who was to deliver the formal address of welcome.

As soon as his voice could be heard Mr. MacVeagh in a few words announced that the nation's chief executive would be made welcome to the city by Mayor Harrison, who then spoke briefly, extending to the president a hearty welcome and expressing the pleasure felt by the people of Chicago at his visit, and offering to him their best wishes for a happy and pleasant trip during his two months of vacation.

The president bowed his thanks to Mayor Harrison and to Mr. MacVeagh, who introduced him to his audience, and expressed his pleasure at the cordial reception extended to him upon the first stop of his long trip, and then, turning directly to the audience, proceeded in his peculiarly energetic manner to deliver his address.

The President's Address.

The address in part was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Today I wish to speak to you, not merely about the Monroe doctrine, but about our entire position in the western hemisphere—a position so peculiar and predominant that out of it has grown the acceptance of the Monroe doctrine as a cardinal feature of our foreign policy; and in particular I wish to point out what has been done during the lifetime of the last congress to make our position in accordance with this historic policy.

Ever since the time when we definitely extended our boundaries westward to the Pacific and southward to the Gulf, since the time when the old Spanish and Portuguese colonies to the south of us asserted their independence, our nation has insisted that because of its primacy in strength among the nations of the western hemisphere it has certain duties and responsibilities which oblige it to take a leading part thereon. We hold that our interests in this hemisphere are greater than those of any European power possibly can be, and that our duty to ourselves and to the weaker republics who are our neighbors requires us to see that none of the great military powers from across the seas shall encroach upon the territory of the American republics or acquire control thereover.

This policy, therefore, not only forbids us to acquiesce in such territorial acquisition, but also causes us to object to the acquirement of a control which would in its effect be equal to territorial aggrandizement. This is why the United States has steadily believed that the construction of the great Isthmian canal, the building of which is to stand as the greatest material feat of the twentieth century—greater than any similar feat in any preceding century—should be done by no foreign nation but by ourselves. The canal must of necessity go through the territory of one of our smaller sister republics. We have been scrupulously careful to abstain from perpetrating any wrong upon any of these republics in this matter. We do not wish to interfere with their rights in the least, but, while carefully safeguarding them, to build the canal ourselves under provisions which will enable us, if necessary, to police and protect it, and to guarantee its neutrality, we being the sole guarantor. Our intention was steadfast; we desired action taken so that the canal could always be used by us in time of peace and war alike, and in time of war could never be used to our detriment by any nation which was hostile to use. Such action, by the circumstances surrounding it, was necessarily for the benefit and not the detriment of the adjacent American republics.

Two Important Treaties.

After considerably more than half a century these objects have been exactly fulfilled by the legislation and treaties of the last two years. By the Hay-Pauncefote treaty it was agreed that the canal should be constructed under the auspices of the government of the United States, and that this government should have the exclusive right to regulate and manage it, becoming the sole guarantor if its neutrality.

Immediately following this treaty congress passed a law under which the president was authorized to secure a treaty for acquiring the right to finish the construction of and to operate the Panama canal, which had already been begun in the territory of Colombia by a French company. The rights of this company were accordingly obtained and a treaty negotiated with the republic of Colombia. This treaty has just been ratified by the senate. It reserves all of Colombia's rights, while guaranteeing all of our own and those of neutral nations, and specifically permits us to take any and all measures for the defense of the canal, and for the preservation of our interests. These treaties are among the most important that we have ever negotiated in their effects upon the future welfare of this country, and mark a memorable triumph of American diplomacy—one of those fortunate triumphs, moreover, which redounds to the benefit of the entire world.

About the same time trouble arose in connection with the republic of Venezuela because of certain wrongs alleged to have been committed, and debts overdue, by this republic to citizens of various foreign powers, notably England, Germany and Italy. After failure to reach an agreement these powers began a blockade of the Venezuelan coast and a condition of quasi war ensued. The concern of our government was of course not to interfere needlessly in any quarrel so far as it did not touch our interests or our honor, and not to take the attitude of protecting from coercion any power unless we were willing to espouse the quarrel of that power, but to keep an attitude of watchful vigilance and see that there was no infringement of the Monroe doctrine—no acquirement of territorial rights by a European power at the expense of a weak sister republic—whether this acquisition might take the shape of an outright an avowed seizure of territory or of the exercise of control which would in effect be equivalent to such seizure.

No Violation Intended.

Both powers assured us in explicit terms that there was not the slightest intention on their part to violate the principles of the Monroe doctrine, and this assurance was kept with an honorable good faith which merits full acknowledgment on our part. At the same time, the existence of hostilities in a region so near our own borders was fraught with such possibilities of danger in the future that it was obviously no less our duty to ourselves than our duty to humanity to endeavor to put an end to that. Accordingly, by an offer of our good services in a spirit of frank friendliness to all parties concerned, a spirit in which they quickly and cordially responded, we secured a resumption of peace—the contending parties agreeing that the matters which they could not settle among themselves should be referred to The Hague tribunal for settlement. The United States had most fortunately already been able to set an example to other nations by utilizing the great possibilities for good contained in The Hague tribunal, a question at issue between ourselves and the republic of Mexico being the first submitted to this international court of arbitration.

The terms which we have secured as those under which the Isthmian canal is to be built, and the course of events in the Venezuela matter, have shown not merely the ever growing influence of the United States in the western hemisphere, but also, I think I may safely say, have exemplified the firm purpose of the United States that its growth and influence and power shall redound not to the harm, but to the benefit of our sister republics whose strength is less. Our growth, therefore, is beneficial to human kind in general.

Not International Law.

The Monroe doctrine is not international law, and though I think one day it may become such, this is not necessary as long as it remains a cardinal feature of our foreign policy and as long as we possess both the will and the strength to make it effective. I believe in the Monroe doctrine with all my heart and soul; I am convinced that the immense majority of our fellow-countrymen so believe in it; but I would infinitely prefer to see us abandon it than to see us put it forward and bluster about it, and yet fail to build up the efficient fighting strength which in the last resort can alone make it respected by any strong foreign power whose interest it may ever happen to be to violate it.

There is a homely old adage which runs "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If the American nation will speak softly, and yet build, and keep at a pitch of the highest training, a thoroughly efficient navy, the Monroe doctrine will go far.

Well, in the last two years I am happy to say we have taken long strides in advance as regards our navy. The last congress, in addition to smaller vessels, provided nine of those formidable fighting ships upon which the real efficiency of any navy in war ultimately depends. It provided, moreover, for the necessary addition of officers and enlisted men to make the ships worth having. Meanwhile the navy department has seen to it that our ships have been constantly exercised at sea, with the great guns, and in maneuvers, so that their efficiency as fighting units, both individually and when acting together, has been steadily improved. Remember that all of this is necessary. A war ship is a huge bit of mechanism, well nigh as delicate and complicated as it is formidable. It takes years to build it. It takes years to teach the officers and men how to handle it to good advantage.

Strong Navy Will Preserve Peace.

The navy which so quickly decided in our favor the war of 1898 had been built and made efficient during the preceding 15 years. The ships that triumphed off Manila and Santiago had been built under previous administrations with money appropriated by previous congresses. The officers and the men did their duty so well because they had already been trained to it by long sea service. All honor to the gallant officers and gallant men who actually did the fighting; but remember, too, to honor the public men, the shipwrights, and steel workers, the owners of the shipyards and armor plants, to whose united foresight and exertion we owe it that in 1898 we had craft so good, guns so excellent, and American seamen of so high a type in the conning towers, in the gun turrets, and in the engine rooms. It is too late to prepare for war when war has come; and if we only prepare sufficiently no war will ever come. We wish a powerful and efficient navy, not for purposes of war, but as the surest guaranty of peace. If we have such a navy if we keep on building it up—we may rest assured that there is but the smallest chance that trouble will ever come to this nation; and we may likewise rest assured that no foreign power will ever quarrel with us about the Monroe doctrine.

At the conclusion of the address there was renewed and continued applause, and while the greater part of the audience was leaving the hall the president was holding an impromptu reception on the platform.

Immediately preceding his address in the Auditorium, President Roosevelt was entertained at dinner in the banquet hall of the Auditorium by the members of the local entertainment committee. About 150 guests were present, besides the president and his party.

The president after leaving the Auditorium went at once to his room in the hotel, where he partook of a light lunch. His carriage was called within a few minutes after the lunch was finished and he was taken to the station of the Chicago and Northwestern road, where his train was in waiting. He entered the train at once and retired for the night. At midnight the train pulled out for Madison, Wis.

"MONROE DOCTRINE"

Subject of President Roosevelt's Address at Auditorium in Chicago,

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE HEAR IT

President Has Busy Day, Including Address at Evanston, Trip to University, Banquet in Evening and Speech at Auditorium.

Chicago, April 3.—President Roosevelt's "sixty-six" day tour of the west began in earnest when he stepped from the Pennsylvania special and was received by Mayor Harrison and a special reception committee.

While the greetings were being exchanged and the members of the reception committee and the Evanston hosts presented by Mayor Harrison, the president's special train was switched to the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road for the run to the North Shore suburb.

At Evanston the president was greeted by Mayor J. A. Patten, and then, headed by a detachment of cavalry from Fort Sheridan and a military band, the party made its way through lanes of school children on the streets and of capped and gowned students on the campus to the steps of Lunt library. As the university grounds were entered a salute of 21 guns was fired.

The president was introduced by President Edmund J. James and made a brief address to the students, referring principally to the value of a college education.

At the conclusion of the president's address the party re entered the train and was hurried back to the city without a stop. Arriving again at the Union station, carriages were taken to the Auditorium.

President Made an LL.D.

After luncheon the start for the University of Chicago was made in carriages. The presidential party was met by the faculty and trustees, in cap and gown, and led by President Harper. The latter advanced as the president alighted and the two grasped hands and exchanged compliments. A few minutes were consumed and then the 250 professors escorted the president between files of 3,000 students to Kent theater, where President Harper conferred the degree of LL.D. The services were impressive. Dr. Henry Pratt Judson delivered a short address on "Leadership in Democracy." Dean R. S. Salisbury presented President Roosevelt to Dr. Harper, who addressed him in Latin. The speech lauded the chief magistrate's achievements in statecraft and scholarship. Dr. Harper then handed the president a diploma and directed that the "doctor's hood" be placed upon his shoulders. The president spoke no word, but bowed in acknowledgment of the honor conferred.

At the head of the convocation procession in which the young women of the college participated the president made his way to the site of the new law school building, where preparations had been made for him to lay the cornerstone. An immense stone, weighing seven tons, was ready to be lowered into place. President Roosevelt, trowel in hand, gave the signal, and as the huge mass settled upon its foundation he cast a small quantity of mortar beneath it. President Harper delivered the introductory address and after a short speech to the students by President Roosevelt, Dr. T. W. Goodspeed deposited a number of articles in the cornerstone.

The return to the city was made by way of the Illinois Central railroad, a special train making a fast run to the Van Buren street station. President Roosevelt walked thence to the Auditorium.

Greeting at Auditorium.

Two hours were allowed the distinguished guest to rest from the exertions of the day and to prepare for the banquet set for 6:30 o'clock.

Six thousand people in a hall, the seating capacity of which is but 5,000, gave enthusiastic greeting to President Roosevelt when he stepped upon the stage of the Auditorium.

When the president, escorted by the members of the local committee appeared on the platform he was met with great enthusiasm, the vast crowd rising to its feet and supplementing its hearty cheers with waving programs and fluttering handkerchiefs.

The president acknowledged his reception with repeated bows, and at once took his seat between Franklin MacVeagh, the chairman of the committee, and Mayor Harrison, who was to deliver the formal address of welcome.

As soon as his voice could be heard Mr. MacVeagh in a few words announced that the nation's chief executive would be made welcome to the city by Mayor Harrison, who then spoke briefly, extending to the president a hearty welcome and expressing the pleasure felt by the people of Chicago at his visit, and offering to him their best wishes for a happy and pleasant trip during his two months of vacation.

The president bowed his thanks to Mayor Harrison and to Mr. MacVeagh, who introduced him to his audience, and expressed his pleasure at the cordial reception extended to him upon the first stop of his long trip, and then, turning directly to the audience, proceeded in his peculiarly energetic manner to deliver his address.

The President's Address.

The address in part was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Today I wish to speak to you, not merely about the Monroe doctrine, but about our entire position in the western hemisphere—a position so peculiar and predominant that out of it has grown the acceptance of the Monroe doctrine as a cardinal feature of our foreign policy; and in particular I wish to point out what has been done during the lifetime of the last congress to make our position in accordance with this historic policy.

Ever since the time when we definitely extended our boundaries westward to the Pacific and southward to the Gulf, since the time when the old Spanish and Portuguese colonies to the south of us asserted their independence, our nation has insisted that because of its primacy in strength among the nations of the western hemisphere it has certain duties and responsibilities which oblige it to take a leading part thereon. We hold that our interests in this hemisphere are greater than those of any European power possibly can be, and that our duty to ourselves and to the weaker republics who are our neighbors requires us to see that none of the great military powers from across the seas shall encroach upon the territory of the American republics or acquire control thereover.

This policy, therefore, not only forbids us to acquiesce in such territorial acquisition, but also causes us to object to the acquirement of a control which would in its effect be equal to territorial aggrandizement. This is why the United States has steadily believed that the construction of the great Isthmian canal, the building of which is to stand as the greatest material feat of the twentieth century—greater than any similar feat in any preceding century—should be done by no foreign nation but by ourselves. The canal must of necessity go through the territory of one of our smaller sister republics. We have been scrupulously careful to abstain from perpetrating any wrong upon any of these republics in this matter. We do not wish to interfere with their rights in the least, but, while carefully safeguarding them, to build the canal ourselves under provisions which will enable us, if necessary, to police and protect it, and to guarantee its neutrality, we being the sole guarantor. Our intention was steadfast; we desired action taken so that the canal could always be used by us in time of peace and war alike, and in time of war could never be used to our detriment by any nation which was hostile to use. Such action, by the circumstances surrounding it, was necessarily for the benefit and not the detriment of the adjacent American republics.

Two Important Treaties.

After considerably more than half of a century these objects have been exactly fulfilled by the legislation and treaties of the last two years. By the Hay-Pauncefote treaty it was agreed that the canal should be constructed under the auspices of the government of the United States, and that this government should have the exclusive right to regulate and manage it, becoming the sole guarantor if its neutrality.

Immediately following this treaty congress passed a law under which the president was authorized to secure a treaty for acquiring the right to finish the construction of and to operate the Panama canal, which had already been begun in the territory of Colombia by a French company. The rights of this company were accordingly obtained and a treaty negotiated with the republic of Colombia. This treaty has just been ratified by the senate. It reserves all of Colombia's rights, while guaranteeing all of our own and those of neutral nations, and specifically permits us to take any and all measures for the defense of the canal, and for the preservation of our interests. These treaties are among the most important that we have ever negotiated in their effects upon the future welfare of this country, and mark a memorable triumph of American diplomacy—one of those fortunate triumphs, moreover, which redounds to the benefit of the entire world.

About the same time trouble arose in connection with the republic of Venezuela because of certain wrongs alleged to have been committed, and debts overdue, by this republic to citizens of various foreign powers, notably England, Germany and Italy. After failure to reach an agreement these powers began a blockade of the Venezuelan coast and a condition of quasi war ensued. The concern of our government was of course not to interfere needlessly in any quarrel so far as it did not touch our interests or our honor, and not to take the attitude of protecting from coercion any power unless we were willing to espouse the quarrel of that power, but to keep an attitude of watchful vigilance and see that there was no infringement of the Monroe doctrine—no acquirement of territorial rights by a European power at the expense of a weak sister republic—whether this acquisition might take the shape of an outright an avowed seizure of territory or of the exercise of control which would in effect be equivalent to such seizure.

No Violation Intended.

Both powers assured us in explicit terms that there was not the slightest intention on their part to violate the principles of the Monroe doctrine, and this assurance was kept with an honorable good faith which merits full acknowledgment on our part. At the same time, the existence of hostilities in a region so near our own borders was fraught with such possibilities of danger in the future that it was obviously no less our duty to ourselves than our duty to humanity to endeavor to put an end to that. Accordingly, by an offer of our good services in a spirit of frank friendliness to all parties concerned, a spirit in which they quickly and cordially responded, we secured a resumption of peace—the contending parties agreeing that the matters which they could not settle among themselves should be referred to The Hague tribunal for settlement. The United States had most fortunately already been able to set an example to other nations by utilizing the great possibilities for good contained in The Hague tribunal, a question at issue between ourselves and the republic of Mexico being the first submitted to this international court of arbitration.

The terms which we have secured as those under which the Isthmian canal is to be built, and the course of events in the Venezuela matter, have shown not merely the ever growing influence of the United States in the western hemisphere, but also, I think I may safely say, have exemplified the firm purpose of the United States that its growth and influence and power shall redound not to the harm, but to the benefit of our sister republics whose strength is less. Our growth, therefore, is beneficial to human kind in general.

Not International Law.

The Monroe doctrine is not international law, and though I think one day it may become such, this is not necessary as long as it remains a cardinal feature of our foreign policy and as long as we possess both the will and the strength to make it effective. I believe in the Monroe doctrine with all my heart and soul; I am convinced that the immense majority of our fellow-countrymen so believe in it; but I would infinitely prefer to see us abandon it than to see us put it forward and bluster about it, and yet fail to build up the efficient fighting strength which in the last resort can alone make it respected by any strong foreign power whose interest it may ever happen to be to violate it.

There is a homely old adage which runs "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If the American nation will speak softly, and yet build, and keep at a pitch of the highest training, a thoroughly efficient navy, the Monroe doctrine will go far.

Well, in the last two years I am happy to say we have taken long strides in advance as regards our navy. The last congress, in addition to smaller vessels, provided nine of those formidable fighting ships upon which the real efficiency of any navy in war ultimately depends. It provided, moreover, for the necessary addition of officers and enlisted men to make the ships worth having. Meanwhile the navy department has seen to it that our ships have been constantly exercised at sea, with the great guns, and in maneuvers, so that their efficiency as fighting units, both individually and when acting together, has been steadily improved. Remember that all of this is necessary. A war ship is a huge bit of mechanism, well nigh as delicate and complicated as it is formidable. It takes years to build it. It takes years to teach the officers and men how to handle it to good advantage.

Strong Navy Will Preserve Peace.

The navy which so quickly decided in our favor the war of 1898 had been built and made efficient during the preceding 15 years. The ships that triumphed off Manila and Santiago had been built under previous administrations with money appropriated by previous congresses. The officers and the men did their duty so well because they had already been trained to it by long sea service. All honor to the gallant officers and gallant men who actually did the fighting; but remember, too, to honor the public men, the shipwrights, and steel workers, the owners of the shipyards and armor plants, to whose united foresight and exertion we owe it that in 1898 we had craft so good, guns so excellent, and American seamen of so high a type in the conning towers, in the gun turrets, and in the engine rooms. It is too late to prepare for war when war has come; and if we only prepare sufficiently no war will ever come. We wish a powerful and efficient navy, not for purposes of war, but as the surest guaranty of peace. If we have such a navy—if we keep on building it up—we may rest assured that there is but the smallest chance that trouble will ever come to this nation; and we may likewise rest assured that no foreign power will ever quarrel with us about the Monroe doctrine.

At the conclusion of the address there was renewed and continued applause, and while the greater part of the audience was leaving the hall the president was holding an impromptu reception on the platform.

Immediately preceding his address in the Auditorium, President Roosevelt was entertained at dinner in the banquet hall of the Auditorium by the members of the local entertainment committee. About 150 guests were present, besides the president and his party.

The president after leaving the Auditorium went at once to his room in the hotel, where he partook of a light lunch. His carriage was called within a few minutes after the lunch was finished and he was taken to the station of the Chicago and Northwestern road, where his train was in waiting. He entered the train at once and retired for the night. At midnight the train pulled out for Madison, Wis.

"MONROE DOCTRINE"

Subject of President Roosevelt's Address at Auditorium in Chicago,

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE HEAR IT

President Has Busy Day, Including Address at Evanston, Trip to University, Banquet in Evening and Speech at Auditorium.

Chicago, April 3.—President Roosevelt's "sixty-six" day tour of the west began in earnest when he stepped from the Pennsylvania special and was received by Mayor Harrison and a special reception committee.

While the greetings were being exchanged and the members of the reception committee and the Evanston hosts presented by Mayor Harrison, the president's special train was switched to the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road for the run to the North Shore suburb.

At Evanston the president was greeted by Mayor J. A. Patten, and then, headed by a detachment of cavalry from Fort Sheridan and a military band, the party made its way through lanes of school children on the streets and of capped and gowned students on the campus to the steps of Lunt library. As the university grounds were entered a salute of 21 guns was fired.

The president was introduced by President Edmund J. James and made a brief address to the students, referring principally to the value of a college education.

At the conclusion of the president's address the party re entered the train and was hurried back to the city without a stop. Arriving again at the Union station, carriages were taken to the Auditorium.

President Made an LL.D.

After luncheon the start for the University of Chicago was made in carriages. The presidential party was met by the faculty and trustees, in cap and gown, and led by President Harper. The latter advanced as the president alighted and the two grasped hands and exchanged compliments. A few minutes were consumed and then the 250 professors escorted the president between files of 3,000 students to Kent theater, where President Harper conferred the degree of LL.D. The services were impressive. Dr. Henry Pratt Judson delivered a short address on "Leadership in Democracy." Dean R. S. Salisbury presented President Roosevelt to Dr. Harper, who addressed him in Latin. The speech lauded the chief magistrate's achievements in statecraft and scholarship. Dr. Harper then handed the president a diploma and directed that the "doctor's hood" be placed upon his shoulders. The president spoke no word, but bowed in acknowledgment of the honor conferred.

At the head of the convocation procession in which the young women of the college participated the president made his way to the site of the new law school building, where preparations had been made for him to lay the cornerstone. An immense stone, weighing seven tons, was ready to be lowered into place. President Roosevelt, trowel in hand, gave the signal, and as the huge mass settled upon its foundation he cast a small quantity of mortar beneath it. President Harper delivered the introductory address and after a short speech to the students by President Roosevelt, Dr. T. W. Goodspeed deposited a number of articles in the cornerstone.

The return to the city was made by way of the Illinois Central railroad, a special train making a fast run to the Van Buren street station. President Roosevelt walked thence to the Auditorium.

Greeting at Auditorium.

Two hours were allowed the distinguished guest to rest from the exertions of the day and to prepare for the banquet set for 6:30 o'clock.

Six thousand people in a hall, the seating capacity of which is but 5,000, gave enthusiastic greeting to President Roosevelt when he stepped upon the stage of the Auditorium.

When the president, escorted by the members of the local committee appeared on the platform he was met with great enthusiasm, the vast crowd rising to its feet and supplementing its hearty cheers with waving programs and fluttering handkerchiefs.

The president acknowledged his reception with repeated bows, and at once took his seat between Franklin MacVeagh, the chairman of the committee, and Mayor Harrison, who was to deliver the formal address of welcome.

As soon as his voice could be heard Mr. MacVeagh in a few words announced that the nation's chief executive would be made welcome to the city by Mayor Harrison, who then spoke briefly, extending to the president a hearty welcome and expressing the pleasure felt by the people of Chicago at his visit, and offering to him their best wishes for a happy and pleasant trip during his two months of vacation.

The president bowed his thanks to Mayor Harrison and to Mr. MacVeagh, who introduced him to his audience, and expressed his pleasure at the cordial reception extended to him upon the first stop of his long trip, and then, turning directly to the audience, proceeded in his peculiarly energetic manner to deliver his address.

The President's Address.

The address in part was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Today I wish to speak to you, not merely about the Monroe doctrine, but about our entire position in the western hemisphere—a position so peculiar and predominant that out of it has grown the acceptance of the Monroe doctrine as a cardinal feature of our foreign policy; and in particular I wish to point out what has been done during the lifetime of the last congress to make our position in accordance with this historic policy.

Ever since the time when we definitely extended our boundaries westward to the Pacific and southward to the Gulf, since the time when the old Spanish and Portuguese colonies to the south of us asserted their independence, our nation has insisted that because of its primacy in strength among the nations of the western hemisphere it has certain duties and responsibilities which oblige it to take a leading part thereon. We hold that our interests in this hemisphere are greater than those of any European power possibly can be, and that our duty to ourselves and to the weaker republics who are our neighbors requires us to see that none of the great military powers from across the seas shall encroach upon the territory of the American republics or acquire control thereover.

This policy, therefore, not only forbids us to acquiesce in such territorial acquisition, but also causes us to object to the acquirement of a control which would in its effect be equal to territorial aggrandizement. This is why the United States has steadily believed that the construction of the great Isthmian canal, the building of which is to stand as the greatest material feat of the twentieth century—greater than any similar feat in any preceding century—should be done by no foreign nation but by ourselves. The canal must of necessity go through the territory of one of our smaller sister republics. We have been scrupulously careful to abstain from perpetrating any wrong upon any of these republics in this matter. We do not wish to interfere with their rights in the least, but, while carefully safeguarding them, to build the canal ourselves under provisions which will enable us, if necessary, to police and protect it, and to guarantee its neutrality, we being the sole guarantor. Our intention was steadfast; we desired action taken so that the canal could always be used by us in time of peace and war alike, and in time of war could never be used to our detriment by any nation which was hostile to use. Such action, by the circumstances surrounding it, was necessarily for the benefit and not the detriment of the adjacent American republics.

Two Important Treaties.

After considerably more than half of a century these objects have been exactly fulfilled by the legislation and treaties of the last two years. By the Hay-Pauncefote treaty it was agreed that the canal should be constructed under the auspices of the government of the United States, and that this government should have the exclusive right to regulate and manage it, becoming the sole guarantor if its neutrality.

Immediately following this treaty congress passed a law under which the president was authorized to secure a treaty for acquiring the right to finish the construction of and to operate the Panama canal, which had already been begun in the territory of Colombia by a French company. The rights of this company were accordingly obtained and a treaty negotiated with the republic of Colombia. This treaty has just been ratified by the senate. It reserves all of Colombia's rights, while guaranteeing all of our own and those of neutral nations, and specifically permits us to take any and all measures for the defense of the canal, and for the preservation of our interests. These treaties are among the most important that we have ever negotiated in their effects upon the future welfare of this country, and mark a memorable triumph of American diplomacy—one of those fortunate triumphs, moreover, which redounds to the benefit of the entire world.

About the same time trouble arose in connection with the republic of Venezuela because of certain wrongs alleged to have been committed, and debts overdue, by this republic to citizens of various foreign powers, notably England, Germany and Italy. After failure to reach an agreement these powers began a blockade of the Venezuelan coast and a condition of quasi war ensued. The concern of our government was of course not to interfere needlessly in any quarrel so far as it did not touch our interests or our honor, and not to take the attitude of protecting from coercion any power unless we were willing to espouse the quarrel of that power, but to keep an attitude of watchful vigilance and see that there was no infringement of the Monroe doctrine—no acquirement of territorial rights by a European power at the expense of a weak sister republic—whether this acquisition might take the shape of an outright an avowed seizure of territory or of the exercise of control which would in effect be equivalent to such seizure.

No Violation Intended.

Both powers assured us in explicit terms that there was not the slightest intention on their part to violate the principles of the Monroe doctrine, and this assurance was kept with an honorable good faith which merits full acknowledgment on our part. At the same time, the existence of hostilities in a region so near our own borders was fraught with such possibilities of danger in the future that it was obviously no less our duty to ourselves than our duty to humanity to endeavor to put an end to that. Accordingly, by an offer of our good services in a spirit of frank friendliness to all parties concerned, a spirit in which they quickly and cordially responded, we secured a resumption of peace—the contending parties agreeing that the matters which they could not settle among themselves should be referred to The Hague tribunal for settlement. The United States had most fortunately already been able to set an example to other nations by utilizing the great possibilities for good contained in The Hague tribunal, a question at issue between ourselves and the republic of Mexico being the first submitted to this international court of arbitration.

The terms which we have secured as those under which the Isthmian canal is to be built, and the course of events in the Venezuela matter, have shown not merely the ever growing influence of the United States in the western hemisphere, but also, I think I may safely say, have exemplified the firm purpose of the United States that its growth and influence and power shall redound not to the harm, but to the benefit of our sister republics whose strength is less. Our growth, therefore, is beneficial to human kind in general.

Not International Law.

The Monroe doctrine is not international law, and though I think one day it may become such, this is not necessary as long as it remains a cardinal feature of our foreign policy and as long as we possess both the will and the strength to make it effective. I believe in the Monroe doctrine with all my heart and soul; I am convinced that the immense majority of our fellow-countrymen so believe in it; but I would infinitely prefer to see us abandon it than to see us put it forward and bluster about it, and yet fail to build up the efficient fighting strength which in the last resort can alone make it respected by any strong foreign power whose interest it may ever happen to be to violate it.

There is a homely old adage which runs "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If the American nation will speak softly, and yet build, and keep at a pitch of the highest training, a thoroughly efficient navy, the Monroe doctrine will go far.

Well, in the last two years I am happy to say we have taken long strides in advance as regards our navy. The last congress, in addition to smaller vessels, provided nine of those formidable fighting ships upon which the real efficiency of any navy in war ultimately depends. It provided, moreover, for the necessary addition of officers and enlisted men to make the ships worth having. Meanwhile the navy department has seen to it that our ships have been constantly exercised at sea, with the great guns, and in maneuvers, so that their efficiency as fighting units, both individually and when acting together, has been steadily improved. Remember that all of this is necessary. A war ship is a huge bit of mechanism, well nigh as delicate and complicated as it is formidable. It takes years to build it. It takes years to teach the officers and men how to handle it to good advantage.

Strong Navy Will Preserve Peace.

The navy which so quickly decided in our favor the war of 1898 had been built and made efficient during the preceding 15 years. The ships that triumphed off Manila and Santiago had been built under previous administrations with money appropriated by previous congresses. The officers and the men did their duty so well because they had already been trained to it by long sea service. All honor to the gallant officers and gallant men who actually did the fighting; but remember, too, to honor the public men, the shipwrights, and steel workers, the owners of the shipyards and armor plants, to whose united foresight and exertion we owe it that in 1898 we had craft so good, guns so excellent, and American seamen of so high a type in the conning towers, in the gun turrets, and in the engine rooms. It is too late to prepare for war when war has come; and if we only prepare sufficiently no war will ever come. We wish a powerful and efficient navy, not for purposes of war, but as the surest guaranty of peace. If we have such a navy—if we keep on building it up—we may rest assured that there is but the smallest chance that trouble will ever come to this nation; and we may likewise rest assured that no foreign power will ever quarrel with us about the Monroe doctrine.

At the conclusion of the address there was renewed and continued applause, and while the greater part of the audience was leaving the hall the president was holding an impromptu reception on the platform.

Immediately preceding his address in the Auditorium, President Roosevelt was entertained at dinner in the banquet hall of the Auditorium by the members of the local entertainment committee. About 150 guests were present, besides the president and his party.

The president after leaving the Auditorium went at once to his room in the hotel, where he partook of a light lunch. His carriage was called within a few minutes after the lunch was finished and he was taken to the station of the Chicago and Northwestern road, where his train was in waiting. He entered the train at once and retired for the night. At midnight the train pulled out for Madison, Wis.

20TH YEAR. NO. 79. EAST LIVERPOOL, O., FRIDAY, APRIL 3, 1903—TWELVE PAGES. TWO CENTS

THE GAIN IN POPULATION A STRONGLY MARKED FACTOR IN PROGRESS OF THE CITY

No Doubt East Liverpool Has 20,000 Inhabitants and Indications Point to 22,000.

What is the population of East Liverpool? This is a question that is being as earnestly and freely discussed as the municipal elections, since the exclusive publication by the News Review yesterday that the poll of the city made at the instance of the Prohibition party leaders showed the total voting population to exceed 4,500.

The oft-repeated statement that East Liverpool is a growing city has to be accepted without comment or serious thought. Every resident of the city has been cognizant of the fact that the population has been increasing at a rapid rate, but just what the influx since the last census has brought the total up to was not given a great deal of consideration until the publication yesterday of the total number of votes. Now nearly everybody is wondering what the population of the city has grown to be. It has been variously estimated at from 18,000 to 22,000.

In the census of 1900 East Liverpool was credited with something more than 16,000 inhabitants, and it seems astonishing to many that in the neighborhood of 4,000 have been added in about three years. Yet, this is a fact, for the poll recently made is reasonably accurate. The probabilities are that if any mistakes have occurred in the count of the voters all have not been listed.

There has been no boom, no sudden influx to the city of a transient population, on the contrary a steady, substantial development has been noted, so steady, in fact, that its great extent was realized by but few.

There have been many conjectures as to the exact population of the city, and it is not at all likely that such a matter of vital interest will be allowed to remain an uncertainty until the next decennial census of the government. The estimates that have been made are based upon the percentage of voters to the entire population. Usually it is granted that every fifth inhabitant is an elector, which would indicate the population of the city to be in the neighborhood of 22,500. Others who have estimated the population from the number of voters claim that the ratio here will be nearer four to one, indicating the population to be about 18,000.

The growth of the city in the past three years has not been confined to population alone. There has been a

VOTES COMING FROM AFAR

Interest in the Contest by No Means Confined to Ohio.

CANDIDATES ARE HUSTLING

The popularity contest is attracting attention far beyond the borders of Ohio. Votes come from near and far. W. H. Purinton, of Stockton, Cal., sends in a vote for his old friend, Wash Williams, and writes that it makes him think of old time friends to read the News Review. He asks if he is entitled to vote. Being a reader, he certainly is, and it is to be hoped that he will vote again and regularly.

This is only a specimen of the letters the News Review is receiving, showing the interest of former residents of East Liverpool and Columbiana county in the result of the vote for the prizes, free trips offered by this paper. This interest will be kept up all through the summer. Those who are in the race are in it to stay, and the number of contestants is constantly increasing. There is room for all. The conditions of the voting are so plain that a child can understand them. That they are well understood is plain from the way the votes are pouring in. As long as the conditions heretofore announced are complied with, every vote is counted as fast as received. So far there have been very few defective ballots.

Every reader of the paper is urged to save his coupons and vote them. The interest in the contest, already great, is bound to grow greater as time passes. See fourth page for particulars and then make up your mind to vote early and often.

This is the way the voting stands:

An Important and Earnest Gathering Promised at City Hall Tonight.

The Republican city central committee will meet in the council chamber, city hall, tonight. It will no doubt be one of the most enthusiastic meetings yet held, every member of the committee knowing full well its object and the necessity of lively action.

Chairman W. L. Smith has announced the reasons for a well attended gathering of the Republican leaders and they will not fail in their duty. Not only will the committee be present, but others interested in the party and every candidate whose name will appear on the Republican ticket. The latter have been especially requested to attend, it being the intention of the central committee to ask them to carry on the work next Monday in a manner to be pointed out by the committee.

While the leaders of the party are confident, they are aware that the opposition is working night and day and propose to be equally active.

Mrs. Hawkins Subjected to a Lunacy Inquest and Then Set Free.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special)—Mrs. Lewis Hawkins, of Church Hill, who attempted suicide Tuesday night by taking morphine, was brought into probate court yesterday for a lunacy inquest. The woman has always been peculiar, it seems, and the examining doctors being unable to detect anything unusual in her mental condition yesterday refused to pronounce her insane. She resisted when the sheriff's wife, and one of his deputies went to the Hawkins home to bring her to Lisbon and it was with a great deal of difficulty that she was brought into court.

An effort was made to pursuade the woman to go to the Massillon hospital voluntarily and take treatment for awhile, but she refused and was released after promising that she would not again attempt her life.

Parents of Triplets.

Beaver Falls, Pa., April 3.—Solomon Jones and wife, of Big Beaver township, this county, are the proud parents of triplets, which were born on Tuesday evening. There are two boys and a girl and all are strong and healthy. The mother is 24 years of age.

NO SETTLEMENT IS YET IN SIGHT

BUILDING TRADES DIFFICULTIES STILL UNADJUSTED.

The strike situation remains practically unchanged since yesterday. The carpenters, who have been idle since Wednesday, held a meeting last night, at which a state of strike was declared to exist. Other than this and the appointment of a press committee the transactions of the meeting have not been made public. The members of the press committee are W. H. McConnell, A. P. Cope and J. L. Reed.

Brotherhood hall has been secured as headquarters for the union during the day and members can be found there at almost any hour discussing the situation. The men are in good spirits and confident of success. Quite a number of them are taking job work and others have found work in Wellsville and Chester.

The situation in regard to the painters remains unchanged. One independent contractor in conversation with a News Review reporter this morning stated he would sign the scale before the week is out. Some of the painters are working by the day for individuals who are willing to pay the increase. Others are serving as paper hangers. Quite a number of the men will remain idle two weeks to await a decision from the bosses.

The builders' exchange did not meet last night, but will meet tonight. What action if any will be taken cannot even be conjectured.

Considerable inconvenience is being experienced as a result of the strike, and already there has been a great loss of time to the contractors and to the carpenters and painters.

The journeymen plumbers are much worked up over the report that they intend to lie low and take no action on the wage question until the matter has been settled among the various other trades. One of them said last evening: "Whatever action we journeymen take will be absolutely without regard to that taken by the other trades. We have until May 1 to submit a proposition to the bosses and if we decide to do so we have plenty of time. So far we have done nothing. We will hold our regular meeting next Tuesday night when something may be done, but none of us are aware of it at the present time."

CITY CLERK ACCUSED OF LARGE PECULATIONS

Wheeling, April 3.—Attorney W. R. Staples, counsel for City Clerk James Pine, of Sistersville, who is charged with peculations of the municipal funds of that city amounting to about $12,000, arrived in Wheeling yesterday and appeared before Judge Thayer Melvin, of the circuit court, and secured a writ of habeas corpus.

Judge Melvin granted the writ requiring the officer in whose custody Captain Pine is held to produce his body before Hon. M. H. Willis, judge of the circuit court of Tyler county, then to be sitting in chambers at the McClure house, in Wheeling, at 4:30 p. m. today.

The writ was granted by Judge Melvin after counsel had communicated with Judge Willis by wire. The proceeding of a judge in a different circuit granting a habeas corpus is a rather unusual one in this section, but it occurs frequently in Virginia and other states. Attorney Staples complains that the Wheeling and Sistersville papers have given Pine decidedly the worst of it, and painted him a rogue of the deepest die, when he was nothing of the sort.

The application for a writ of habeas corpus was made to Judge Melvin because of the fact that Judge Willis lives at West Union, a point further from Sistersville than Wheeling, and the judge in this city was more accessible than the judge in Tyler county. Pine was to have been transferred from the Sistersville jail to the county jail at Middlebourne this morning, but armed with the writ, Attorney Staples will probably forestall this proceeding.

Final Report in Bank Case.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special)—Judge Moore, as receiver of the defunct First National bank of this city, today forwarded his final report to the comptroller of currency at Washington, D. C., who will declare the final dividends to creditors.

SMITH'S REPLY TO THE REQUEST

Wellsville Trades Council Answered Regarding Street Railway.

WOULD BE GLAD TO BUILD

Provided a Suitable Route Could Be Obtained—Effort Will Be Made to Find a Practicable Line Between the Cities.

The following letter is an answer to a petition sent C. A. Smith, of East Liverpool, asking him to extend the street car line he proposes to build, to Wellsville:

"Trades and Labor Council, Wellsville.

"Gentlemen—I am in receipt of your favor of the 24th inst and am pleased to note the interest you are manifesting in the securing for your city of modern and convenient street car accommodation. Situated as you are this is of vital importance, and the action taken by your council is certainly highly commendable, the virtues of which should not fail of recognition, both by the taxpayers and the citizens at large. I shall be very much pleased if by some feasible route a line could be constructed between this city and Wellsville, whereby the cost would not be extraordinary, to take this matter up and if possible provide your citizens with a line such as we will build in this city, thoroughly modern in equipment and capable of giving adequate and first-class accommodation.

"With a feeling of gratitude for the kindly expressions you have tendered me, and trusting your action is but a forerunner of the establishment of a line such as you desire, I thank you.

"Yours very truly,

"C. A. SMITH."

At a regular meeting last evening this matter was discussed and Trades Council will do all in its power to find a suitable route for such a line to connect East Liverpool and Wellsville. The session was short and no other business of importance was transacted.

EAST LIVERPOOL VICTIM OF SWINDLING CONCERN

A special from New York to the News Review states that the name of Nellie Laraby, East Liverpool, Ohio, is signed to a letter dated and postmarked East Liverpool, found when the United States authorities raided get-rich-quick concerns in that city Te amount of the victim's loss is kept secret by the authorities.

The name Laraby is not found in the East Liverpool directory and the letter was probably from some transient resident here.

Lisbon, April 3.—(Special.)—Al Anderson and David Locke were arrested charged with robbing Martin Welch's saloon Wednesday night. Four doors were broken open. In the barroom several quarts of whisky and two boxes of cigars were taken.

In their movements the thieves became badly mixed up with a bucket of red paint and last evening when Al Anderson was found drunk in a graveyard his clothing was covered with red paint.

CROP A FAILURE

Maple Sugar And Syrup Makers Lost Half a Million in Ohio This Year.

The maple syrup and sugar crop is a complete failure this season. Not in years have the owners of camps experienced such discouraging conditions, and in consequence the product of the finely flavored sap of the sugar orchard will command a price almost out of reach of all. Ordinarily sap continues to flow beyond the first of April, while this year practically nothing has been done since March 10, while many syrup-makers never opened their camps at all.

Figures compiled places the probable loss to syrup and sugar makers throughout the state of Ohio at $550,000.

CONSTABLE GILL RETURNS WITHOUT THE ACCUSED MAN.

Prosecutors, However, State That the Charges Will Be Pushed.

Constable Charles Gill and Daniel T. McCarron returned last evening from Pittsburg, where they went on Wednesday evening in search of J. E. Ferrall, who is accused of embezzlement by the Dresden Pottery company. Wednesday evening was spent vainly in the search and it began to look yesterday as if his efforts would be fruitless, when Gill and McCarron, upon entering the Hotel Henry, met an East Liverpool man, who, when asked if he had seen or heard anything of Ferrall, gave them information that the wanted individual was standing in front of the hostelry.

The officer immediately adjourned to the pavement and recognized Ferrall, who was standing alone. Ferrall was aware of the fact that a warrant had been issued for his arrest, and made not the slightest effort to escape the constable. Instead he met the East Liverpool man cordially and indignantly denounced the action that had been started against him. Although Gill had a warrant in his possession for Ferrall, no arrest was made. He was simply taken in charge and at no time would he have been prevented in walking away if he had chosen to do so. Why Ferrall was not arrested neither McCarron or Gill would state. They insisted they had nothing to say in regard to the trip. Gill even denied that he had a warrant for Ferrall, notwithstanding that one was turned over to him by 'Squire Rose.

It was stated last evening by an official of the concern that is prosecuting Ferrall that Pittsburg attorneys have been employed and that the case will be pushed until a settlement is made.

A Wheeling dispatch says that the East Liverpool men visited that city yesterday in their efforts to locate Ferrall.

DR. JONES' LECTURE ON JOHN WESLEY

The First M. E. church was nearly filled last night with a congregation of representative people of the city, who had gathered to listen to the lecture delivered by Rev. David Joner on "The Life of John Wesley." Dr. Jones spoke of Wesley's scholarship, piety and other qualities which makes his name held sacred by the millions of Methodists throughout the world. He was one of 19 children and was born in Lincolnshire, England. He received a good education, having finished a course at the renowned Oxford college.

Wesley came to this country with Oglethorpe and settled in Georgia. There he received a new religious experience by Moravian Christians and his teachings and doctrines were founded on his own personal experience. He originated the class meeting and established lay preaching. He preached 40,000 times and traveled 200,000 miles by stage or horseback.

To Methodists the name of Wesley stands for all that is true and ideal in their religion. His wonderful personal characteristics made him the great force that he was in the religious world.

SEEKING STATISTICS

E. B. Ladd, of the United States geological survey, is in the city securing statistics of the stone and coal products in this community. He speaks favorably of the section, stating that it compares well with others surrounded by similar conditions.

It will take him several days to complete his work, when he will make a report to officials at Washington, who will use it in connection with the report on the state.

THE BREWERS ARE AFRAID PLANTS WILL BE SET ON FIRE AND GET AN INJUNCTION

Columbus, April 3.—Following close a statement that an early settlement of the big brewery workers' strike was in prospect came the news last night that the brewers had secured an injunction before Judge Thomas M. Bigger, restraining the strikers from resorting to acts of violence. Several minor disturbances during the day led the brewers to apply for the injunction. The men are not enjoined from congregating about the plants, but are ordered not to molest or injure in any way the plants and property of the owners. The brewers are said to be fearful that their plants will be burned down, but the workmen declare there is no ground for this alarm.

Ohio will be represented by a provisional regiment of the National Guard at the dedication of the St. Louis exposition on April 30. Chairman W. F. Burdell and Stacy B. Rankin, of the Ohio exposition commission, have informed Adjutant General Gyger that the necessary funds for the trip will be forthcoming. This will be pleasing news to the guardsmen who had given up hope of going on account of a statement made by the commission while in session in this city last week that no money was available for the trip. It is proposed to select nine men from each National Guard company, making a provisional regiment of about 800, plus a complement of officers. It is estimated $8,000 will be necessary.

The St. Louis people have assured the commissioners that the soldiers will be well cared for in that city. It is not to cost them a penny. The Ohio commission will furnish the soldiers subsistence while traveling. The regment will rendezvous at Columbus, leaving for St. Louis on April 27. It will have an opportunity of displaying its efficiency before President Roosevelt, who will be present at the ceremonies.

A special from Findlay says that a local of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters has been organized in that city, about 40 employes of the Bell pottery company being members. The new local will be known as Findlay union No. 67. Officers were elected and delegates chosen to trades council. A pleasing feature is that a scale of wages was presented

New York, April 3.—The Rev. Dr. I. K. Funk, head of the publishing firm of Funk & Wagnals, and formerly of Springfield, O., admitted yesterday that he had been in communication with the spirit of the late Henry Ward Beecher.

"I will not say the story is true in all its details," said Rev. Dr. Funk when asked about the communication, "but it has a substantial basis of fact."

The story of the message Dr. Funk recently received is: That within the last week he attended a spiritualistic seance given by a woman who has gained eminence and many devoted followers. It is said that the medium told Dr. Funk that his friend, Henry Ward Beecher, wanted to speak to him from the spirit world. Dr. Funk assented.

"Why don't you return that coin you borrowed from me 30 years ago" the medium inspired by Mr. Beecher's spirit said in Mr. Beecher's well known jovial manner.

"What coin?" Dr. Funk asked, astonished.

"Why, the widow's mite," said the medium, speaking for Mr. Beecher. "You used it as a model for illustration in one of your books."

"I returned it to you years ago," said Dr. Funk.

"Pardon me, but you are mistaken," the spirit insisted. "If you will look in your safe, in the compartment in the lower right hand corner, you will find my old coin under some papers."

The spirit described the bundle of papers and the position of the coin with considerable detail. When Dr. Funk arrived at his office next day he began searching the old safe for the coin. He found it in precisely the position and under the papers the medium had revealed it. Dr. Funk declined to give the details.

GRAND SERVICE AT ST. STEPHEN'S

A FINE SERMON PREACHED

St. Stephen's Episcopal church was the scene of a beautiful service yesterday afternoon when Rt. Rev. William A. Leonard, bishop of the Cleveland diocese, administered the rites of confirmation to a class of about 30. The church was comparatively well filled when the services were opened with the regular confirmation ritual service.

After the ceremony had been performed by Bishop Leonard he preached an able sermon. He said that it should be the special prayer of all for God to give them strength. The confirmation service was a symbol for the entering of the grace of God into the heart. This grace may be secured by prayer. God has a great reservoir of grace with which we should constantly keep in communication. This communication can be established by prayer. The reason we are not good Christians is because we do not pray enough and try our best at all times to lead a perfect Christian life.

The attitude of Christ towards us is well illustrated by the miracle of feeding the 5,000 from the few loaves and fishes. There were many jugglers in the ancient times, but Christ not only could do as wonderful things as they, but also could do divine things. He not only could feed men's bodies, but also their souls. His heart is full of charity and sympathy. The highest type of charity is thoughtfulness. We should only do the sweet, loving things and help outsiders. While Christ was performing the many miracles of healing he was doing something for others. Christ came to bring salvation in the world and to make it better.

The blind man called out "Lord Jesus, have mercy on me." Christ never turns anyone away who appeals to him in that manner. He instead tried to save you. You should never be afraid to approach Christ. If you do some times go wrong, as all of us are bound to do, go at once to Christ in prayer and seek his forgiveness. Our attitude towards Christ should be illustrated by the passage in the bible which says, "Blessed are they that hunger and thrist after righteousness, for they shall be filled."

WITH THE WORKMEN IN THE CLAY PLANTS

ANCIENT POTTERY.

Researches of geologists indicate that the greater part of western Europe at the termination of the last glacial epoch, about 8,000 to 9,000 years ago, was inhabited by the race known as the Iberians. These men lived and died among the gigantic animals now extinct; amongst mammoths, the giant elk of Iceland and the cave bear. They inhabited the basque provinces, Spain, northern Africa, Sicily, Sardinia, Corsica and the Canary Islands, and are the same race which found its way to Mexico. Gradually, however, Iberians gave way before the stronger races, the Aryan, the Scandinavian and Ligurian, but in the remote Canary Islands they lived unmolested. Their remains, as discovered by the Spaniards in the early part of the fifteenth century, indicate the manners and habits of the Stone age.

The report of the Smithsonian Institution states that "the women all work at pottery, using no wheel and reproducing the simpler patterns as found in the tombs of thousands of years ago. The clay used is very strong and has much adhesive power. It bakes into a fine dark red. They now never color their pottery, nor do they mark it with the stamps, as in the old days. Many of the best shapes are lost, and those that remain are strictly utilitarian.

The periodical baking of their pottery is a great event among the cave dwellers. Large numbers of people sally forth for days before, collecting brushwood of all kinds and great heaps are piled up in the open space before the public oven, where all the pottery to be baked is also collected. A roaring fire is soon produced, and the different pieces of pottery are thrust into the flames, and then moved about by means of a long pole of hardwood to ensure their being evenly baked. Some kind of red glaze is put on to those which it is wished to decorate, but the greater part are baked without any glazing matter. It is an extremely busy scene, with a great deal of shouting and screaming; every one giving instructions and orders, to which no one else pays the least attention. No one person seems to be in command, and all kinds of interlopers crowd in to give advice or to cram sticks into the oven.

STRIKE AT TRENTON.

Trenton, April 3.—The potters have joined in the sirek movement which at this time seems to be prevalent in this city. The glost kiln hands at the Anchor pottery are out, practically tying up the entire plant. Until yesterday the kilnmen at the plant of the John Moses & Sons company were out on strike, but their differences have been settled, the firm conceding them everything that they asked, and they will resume work this morning. Both of the strikes are purely local and have not come under the jurisdiction of the officers of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

The kilnmen at the Anchor pottery are demanding an increase for placing a certain kiln which was enlarged several weeks ago. They claim that it now takes longer to fill the kiln and they are entitled to more money. The firm takes a different view and claims that the demands of the men are unreasonable. The latter have succeeded in tying up the operations at the plant and say they will remain out until their demands are granted.

GONE TO DERRY.

S. L. Young, formerly manager of the decorating department at the Thompson and now holding a similar position with the new plant at Derry, Pa., has gone to that city to enter upon his duties. Ware is now being made by the plant, but it is not yet in full operation. As announced in this column several weeks ago Mr. Young has secured the services of a number of the best decorators in the world and intends to turn out a line of work unexcelled in this country. Several decorators from this city will take situations with him.

BOYS ON A STRIKE.

The batterout boys of the Wheeling Potteries company have gone out on a strike. The strike affects fifteen boys, including those in the Warwick and La Belle potteries. The action compelled cessation in the entire clay department, and that will have to remain closed until the boys return or until others have been secured to take their places. The boys were receiving an average of $1.50 per day, and asked for an increase of 25 cents per day. When the request was refused they immediately went out on strike.

FINE CHICKENS.

John N. Pollock, of the Standard glost, one of the best known breeders of fancy chickens in the city and secretary of the local poultry club, has made several shipments recently. He has just received a pair of very valuable white game bantams.

CRITICALLY ILL.

Mrs. Ella Burson, daughter of Harvey Dyke, of the dipping department at the Standard, is critically ill in a Pittsburg hospital. Mrs. Dyke was called to her bedside a week ago and her illness has continued so alarming that she could not leave.

AMONG THE WORKMEN.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Just Breathe Hyomei Four Times a Day and Be Cured.

If a few years ago some one had said you can cure catarrh by breathing air charged with healing balsam, the idea would have been ridiculed, and it remained for R. T. Booth, that eminent investigator, to discover in Hyomei this method of cure.

Hyomei has performed the most miraculous cures of catarrh and it today recognized by leading members of the medical profession as the only advertised remedy that can be relied upon to do just what it claims.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei.

Breathe Hyomei through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and it will cure the worst case of catarrh. It soothes and heals the mucous membrane of the air passages, prevents irritation, and effects a complete and lasting cure.

The treasurer of the American Life Insurance company, J. S. Nugent, of New York city, writes: "Hyomei has completely cured my daughter of catarrh from which she has been a sufferer for years."

In East Liverpool there are scores of well known people who say they have been cured of catarrh by Hyomei. If it does not cure you, Will Reed will return the money you paid for Hyomei. This is the strongest evidence that can be offered as to his faith in the remedy.

TWO MINES ARE IDLE AT SALINEVILLE

Salineville, April 3.—(Special)—The miners at the New Shaft and Cedar Hill mines did not go to work yesterday morning, owing to the scale for the ensuing year not being signed by the Big Vein Coal company, which operates the mines. At the convention held week before last all the operators signed the scale but the Big Vein company. When a representative of the company was asked what they would do, he said that a copy of the scale had never been presented to them to sign. The O. & P. Coal company, with its main office in Cleveland, signed the scale, and a little effort on the part of the Big Vein company would soon procure a copy.

This same company last year delayed signing the scale, and the committee of miners was entertained in Cleveland several days at the expense of the Big Vein company while signing the scale. The officers of the district are in communication with local union officials here and it will be learned soon that the company will do. No work will be done until the scale is signed. All the other miners here are working.

Always in the lead—the News Review.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD

Alma Walters Says a Few Words for Consideration of Walker People.

I notice an article in the News Review in which it is stated that some of the parents of the children in the Walker school district upon whom notices have been served to compel the attendance of their children at school offer as an excuse the close proximity of my house, and designate it as a dive. This I wish to deny. There are no bolts or bars on my doors and no women under my roof, and there has not been one there for an unlawful purpose. Anybody interested can come to the two little rooms in which I exist and investigate the charges at any time.

I am not writing this to defend my character. But when I live almost in the wilderness the most of the time by myself, without a neighbor within a half mile, is it still a dive and a house of ill-repute? If it is, will some good Christian tell me where to go and where to live? If my very presence so pollutes God's pure atmosphere in the Walker district that the school children cannot with safety pass my house, God have pity on those in the town and city. I do not know exactly what a Christian's duty should be, but in the 10 years of my downfall there has not been a soul offered me honest employment or tried to teach me God's works. Church is held every Sunday in this same school house, and there has not been one who has asked me to come.

I do not wish to cast any reflections on the people of the Walker district, for I believe they are good Christians. I just wish to show how most people will push you down or let you go yourself, when a helping hand would save many a soul. There are thousands of people like myself who need help, and the only religious body today that is working among them is the Salvation army. I do not know much about Christ's sayings, but I know when a sinful woman was to be stoned to death he said: "Let him who is without sin cast the first stone."

THE OLD CEMETERY

The remains of 27 persons up to the present time have been taken from the old cemetery, on the ground where the grading is being done for the new street car line. The complete list of those whose bodies have been removed is:

All of the bodies with the exception of the children of Robert Mills, George McVay and the unknown child, have been taken to different cemeteries for interment, and the remains of those five have been buried in the old cemetery. George D. McKinnon, of Mulberry street, kindly gave the above information to a representative of the News Review.

Mr. McKinnon was personally acquainted with and related to the most of the people. There are about five or six more bodies yet to be taken from what was supposed to be their last resting place, and the work will be done.

George McVay, whose remains were taken up and again buried nearby, worked on the old farm of the elder George D. McKinnon and was a Portuguese, who came to East Liverpool when a boy from Kentucky and claimed an acquaintanceship with the historical Daniel Boone. McVay was one of the tallest and strongest men that Mr. McKinnon had ever known. He died about 54 years ago and at his death was about 65 years of age. The first of the interments that were made in the old ecemtery dates back over 50 years. Later a city ordinance prohibited the use of the grounds any longer for burial purposes.

Delegates Elected.

A large number of the congregation of the Erie street M. E. church met last night for the purpose of electing a delegate to the conference at Akron during the month of September. There were no candidates for the affair, but 'Squire L. W. Carman was unanimously chosen as representative and R. J. Boyce as alternate.

Painfully Injured.

Charles Oberlin, of High street, met with an accident that will keep him from working for some time. While at work on the mason work on bridge 112, a heavy piece of stone rolled upon his foot, badly mashing his right great toe. The injury is a very painful one.

EAST END AFFAIRS.

Joseph Curry, of Grove City, was in the East End yesterday and also visited friends.

R. M. Newell will erect a dwelling on Erie street, near the Horace Mann school building.

W. C. Supplee, presiding judge of the election, left this evening for Lisbon, and will return with the ballots and poll books to be used on Monday.

Miss Margaret Larkins and Zachariah Dunning, who were married last week, have returned home. Mr. and Mrs. Dunning have gone to housekeeping on Beaver street.

A Sweet Breath

is a never failing sign of a healthy stomach. When the breath is bad the stomach is out of order. There is no remedy in the world equal to Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for curing indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach disorders. Mrs. Mary S. Crick, of White Plains, Ky., writes: "I have been a dyspeptic for years—tried all kinds of remedies but continued to grow worse. By the use of Kodol I began to improve at once, and after taking a few bottles am fully restored in weight, health and strength and can eat whatever I like. Kodol digests what you eat and makes the stomach sweet."

B. C. ANSLEY'S NEW DEPARTURE

Selling Medicine at Half Price Under Guarantee to Cure.

After two months of remarkable sales, B. C. Ansley, the enterprising druggist, says that his plan of selling at half price the regular 50c size of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and guaranteeing to refund the money if it does not cure, has been the greatest success he has ever known.

He has sold hundreds of bottles of the specific; and as yet he has not had one returned, although he stands ready at any time to refund the money should any customer be dissatisfied. This is the strongest testimony that can be furnished to the great merit of this medicine.

Any one suffering with dyspepsia, constipation, liver troubles, headaches, dizziness, coated tongue, or the general tired feeling, caused by inactive liver and bowels or disorded digestion, should take advantage of B. C. Ansley's new departure and buy a bottle of Dr. Howard's specific at half price, with his personal guarantee to return the money if it does not cure.

If you cannot go to his store today, send him your mney order by mail, as Mr. Ansley only has a limited supply to sell at this price.

FIGHTING JOHNSON

Cleveland, April 3.—All the religious organizations of this city are lined up solidly against Mayor Tom L. Johnson and are uniting their efforts to elect Harvey D. Goulder, the Republican nominee for mayor. The saloonkeepers have opened headquarters and are working openly for Johnson's re-election and this has aroused the religious element.

The Ohio Anti-Saloon league, the Cleveland Christian Endeavor union and the City Epworth League have joined in a bulletin. The bulletin declares Mayor Johnson should be defeated, as, viewed from a moral standpoint, his administration has been wholly bad, and he promises a continuance of his policies if re-elected. Goulder, says the bulletin, "will doubtless, if elected, show no favoritism to the vicious classes."

East Liverpool people have been in the habit of underestimating rather than of overestimating the population of the city. The recent poll of voters shows this conclusively. With a voting population of 4,600, it is idle to say that we have not 20,000 total population; 22,000 would be nearer the figure. Four-fifths of the voters are Republicans, and if they stand by their party nominees on election day, the antis will not have the ghost of a show. Why should they? East Liverpool has made most of its progress under Republican administrations. It owes the opposition parties nothing. Men who think alike should act together. This city has the reputation of being one of the strongest Republican towns in Ohio. That reputation is worth much to the city and to the party. East Liverpool cannot afford to lost it or to impair it, as it would inevitably do by electing anything but a straight Republican ticket. The nominees have the endorsement of the party and are entitled to the full party vote. Stand by them on Monday.

All the offices to be filled Monday are important. For a harmonious and progressive administration, it is a prime requisite that men shall be chosen who will work together for the enforcement of the welfare of the city. Harmony and agreement are impossible if a discordant element is introduced. Men of the same political faith can and will work together. Men whose political principles are as opposite as the poles cannot be expected to agree either on policies or men. Republicans want a Republican administration throughout, and it is to the best interests of the whole city that the city should have it. The way is easy, unless Republicans exhibit culpable indifference in regard to a matter of vital moment to the party and the city. This, we feel assured, they are not going to do.

Everything in Rubber.

Our new stock of rubber goods received this week contains some late novelties in rubber goods that we are anxious to have everyone see. Among other things we have a fine line of rubber sponges and bath mits. They are much more hygenic than ordinary sponges of cloth bath mits and are practically indestructible. Of syringes of all kinds, combination syringes and hot water bags, face bags, ice bags, etc., the line is complete. Have bulb syringes ranging from 50 cents to a dollar. An excellent rapid-flow fountain syringe with all attachments for 75 cents, and in combination with hot water bag for $1.25. You cannot buy any of these things amiss when you choose from our stock—they are all the real rubber kind and guaranteed.

CHAS. F. CRAIG,
DRUGGIST.

And now the Prohibitionists come forward with the claim that their candidate is "the candidate of a majority of the Republicans." We will have to show him whether he is or not. They may be able to annex a portion of the Democratic party, but Republicans are not going to be enclosed in the fusion fold without their knowledge or consent.

The president is expounding the Monroe Doctrine with an explicitness and directness that Monroe himself never surpassed. It is a doctrine which has made America great and kept it out of trouble. Long may it flourish!

The spring election is always important. This year it is more important than ever. There should be no stay-at-homes. Every Republican should vote with his party and not help the enemies of that party.

The opposition to the Republican ticket will get out every man that will vote its way on Monday if it be possible. Republicans cannot afford to be less earnest or less vigilant.

The municipal upheaval in Pittsburg is resulting in columns of names that look like lists of killed and injured. Probably the hundreds thrown out of office feel that way, too.

Republicans, vote with your party. There is every reason why you should and none why you should not.

OBITUARY

Rev. J. H. Halligan.

Rev. Father J. H. Halligan, aged about 38 years, rector of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Ashtabula, died at 12:30 o'clock this morning after an illness of several months. The arrangements for the funeral could not be learned today. Rev. Father Halligan had been a priest for 12 years, most of which were spent in Wellsville as rector of the Church of the Immaculate Conception. Father Halligan went to Wellsville March 16, 1895, and at once became popular both as a man and priest. He found the church $14,000 in debt and began an earnest effort to pay it and to accomplish other things for the good of the parish. He was a tireless worker and it was not long until his perseverence brought results. The ground for the St. Elizabeth cemetery and the property at the corner of Main and Eleventh streets, Wellsville, were purchased by him. When he left Wellsville for Ashtabula, June 14, 1902, he had plans perfected for a new church edifice. The trouble which probably caused his death was first noticed about four months ago and was an enlargement of the glands of the throat. His condition had been regarded as serious for some days, but the last reports were that he was somewhat improved, with a chance of recovery. Rev. Father Halligan was born in Massachusetts.

Carl Brothers.

Carl Brothers, aged 21 years, died last night at midnight at 152 Chestnut street. Mr. Brothers was a well known young man in this city, where he had lived for the past 10 years. He had been employed as a packer at the Wellsville China company. He was taken ill just a week ago and his condition gradually grew worse from day to day, resulting in his death. He is survived by his father, J. K. Brothers, and three brothers and one sister. The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. J. W. Gorrell will have charge of the services in connection with the Crockery City court No. 111, Tribe of Ben Hur, of which organization Mr. Brothers was a member. Interment at Riverview cemetery.

Mrs. Polly C. Secrest.

Mrs. Polly C. Secrest, aged 54 years, died last evening at her home on Main street, Wellsville, after about 40 hours' illness of uraemic poisoning. She leaves a husband, Isaac Secrest, a well known music dealer, and seven children, the youngest being 14 years old. Mrs. Secrest became sick Tuesday morning and was not thought serious until Wednesday, when she would go into convulsions every little while. She was unconscious during the last 30 hours and passed away without any sign of pain. The funeral will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. in the Methodist Protestant church. Rev. L. C. Wells will officiate. Interment in Spring Hill cemetery.

TIDE ALL TOWARDS WEAVER

1. Quotation from recent national Republican platform: "The first concern of good government is the virtue and sobriety of its people." Vote for Mr. W. A. Weaver, the only candidate who represents that doctrine.

* * * *

2. Do not misunderstand. Nobody is openly supporting the "head" of the ticket. When they talk about being "loyal" they mean the remainder of the ticket. That is all right. But they will vote for W. A. Weaver as its "head."

* * * *

3. Everybody knows that the so-called "worst element," the law breakers and shiftless classes, will vote for the "head of the ticket." They are "all right." Does it not seem "funny" that pathetic editorials and hysterical appeals should be made to the law abiding, business-making, church-supporting, substantial and honored citizens lest they fail to act as nobly and wisely? Since when did it come to pass that men with character and homes and judgment and honored standing could not be trusted to do well by the city, so that politicians and party organs must arouse them to their duty?

* * * *

4. Isn't it funny that the men who for years have given character and wisdom to the party, who fought on bloody battle fields for its principles, whose sons helped to support the glorious McKinley and his policies, and who love the party, should have to be scolded and exhorted because they refuse to vote for one of its nominees and put in his place the name of Mr. W. A. Weaver, a man against whom not one objection has been made? They were capable of making the party's glorious history. They may be safely trusted to perpetuate it by rebuking dishonorable methods and turning down incompetent and discredited aspirants for its honors. Mr. Weaver is sure of the election and will work in harmony with the glorious principles of the party by whose votes he will be elected.

* * * *

5. Isn't it funny that we should be assured that the board of public service contains eminent men who may be trusted to take care of the city? Do these men need to be vouched for? No. But we are asked to vote for the "head" of the ticket without fear because these distinguished men will make up for all his deficiencies. A confession of incompetence. How long since the great party of Lincoln and McKinley had to resort to the rest of the ticket to balance up its head? Vote for Weaver, a man who can stand up beside other gentlemen to do us credit.

* * * *

6. Under the new code the mayor will have greatly increased independence and power. There is very little precedent for his guidance. Should we not vote for Weaver, whose ability is known rather than to put a "figure head" into that exalted place depending on others to right him up?

WELLSVILLE

Caused Much Excitement in Wellsville Until She Was Locked Up.

The citizens of West Main street were startled late yesterday afternoon by the cries of a negro woman, who with head bare, hair hanging down her back and without a wrap, came up the street yelling to the top of her voice: "I want my baby" and "Won't somebody take me to a doctor?"

Word was sent to the mayor's office and Officer Elliott went down. The woman being large and strong it was impossible for one man to handle her in her violent condition. With the assistance of Frank Fitzpatrick the woman was landed in the city jail. When they arrived at city hall she was so hoarse from screaming that she could hardly speak above a whisper.

The woman lives a short distance west of Wellsville with a man named Butler. She has been in a demented state for some time, but was never thought violent. She will remain in confinement here until arrangements can be made for her removal to a more suitable place.

WORK ON NEW SWITCH

For the last week or so Rinehart Bros. have been allowed to proceed with their work of grading for the C. & P. switch to be laid back of Wellsville. At first the work was slow and many delays caused. A number of people, whose land it was necessary to cross, caused a suspension of operations, saying no settlement had been made. Some ask such enoromus prices for their land that considerable trouble was expected. It was thought best by the company to employ appraisers and have a fair price set, but rather than take any chances of this kind the people excepted what the company offered. The switch is to be laid back of Coal street. The land being very low in that locality a great quantity of earth is required to fill in sufficient to attain the proper grade.

When this switch is completed it will be a great convenience to the industries near which it will pass. The only places where goods can be loaded for shipment is at the depots. This requires all products to be conveyed to the depot in wagons and then loaded into the cars. With the switch passing by the door the goods can be loaded ready for shipments right at the factory. How soon it will be completed cannot be told, but the time is not far distant.

STAGNANT WATER

Several Residents Complain of Offensive Mud Holes in the City.

A number of citizens residing in the vicinity of the soap works on Third street are complaining about the condition of the street. This part of the street is always muddy and several inches of water covers the pavement. Whence the water comes is not really known. There is an odor comes from the filth and mud that makes it exceedingly unpleasant for the residents of that locality. Should the drainage of this part of the city be made perfect there would be no nuisance of this kind.

A similar complaint is being made by th eresidents of lower Eighteenth street. The water coming from an old coal bank, owned by G. M. Aten, is drained into the street, making a large mud hole. At the next meeting of the council these matters will no doubt receive some attention.

THE POLITICAL BATTLE

Is Getting Hot in Wellsville — Contest Will Be Lively.

The election to be held on Monday promises to be one of the most closely contested ever held in this city. All the candidates on both tickets are working hard and are confident of success. Friends of both parties are out making stump speeches and doing all in their power to put their men in office. A number of the Democratic candidates met in the city hall last evening to complete plans for carrying on a vigorous campaign. The Republicans met several days ago and completed all their plans for the coming contest.

Robert Galvin and Wallace L. Fogo, the candidates for mayor, are both well liked by all, and the one who is victorious will be so by a small majority. From now until the close of the polls on Monday the probable outcome of the election will be the topic of the day. After the returns have all been received there will be some very disappointed men among the beaten, as well as great rejoicing among the victorious.

REALM OF SPORTS

A Prospect That It Will Be Prolonged Well Into the Summer.

Though the time of the year is at hand when the bowling fever commences to die out there is yet much enthusiasm displayed over the sport in the city, and the arrangements are being made to continue the contests with outside teams until far into the summer. The local team is aggressive and is open for all engagements. It has made an admirable record this season and is conceded to be one of the fastest organizations in the state.

All the strong teams in this section have been played against by them, and the result has been most satisfactory, showing that the local talent is considerably above the average. While all of the contests have been by the first team, captained by Charles Craig, of the imperial alleys, the numerous other teams have been at hard practice and it is thought that among the amateurs they would rank high.

The next game to be played by the first team will be with Beaver Falls, one of the very strongest teams in the Pittsburg district. Two series have been played with the team and an even break was the result. There is considerable enmity between the two teams, and when they come together for the third time each will put forth every effort to claim the majority of the games.

Wellsburg wants another series. It can get it, but upon certain conditions. The locals believe that they can wipe the earth up with the West Virginia lads, but know that they cannot do it on the alleys of the latter. Captain Craig has written them that his team will give them a series at any time if the games are played on an alley knew to both teams, Steubenville the choice.

Matched at Last.

"Kid" McCoy has at last secured a bout with one of the top notchers. He has contracted to meet Jack Root, the clever Chicago heavyweight, for ten rounds, at the Metropolitan A. C., Detroit, on April 22. This will be an excellent opportunity for the "Kid" to show whether he has lost any of his oldtime skill.

SPORTING MISCELLANY.

Otto Kruger will be used as utility man for the Pittsburg team.

McCoy and Root have signed for 10 rounds in Detroit, April 22.

The big colleges generally have more base ball candidates than can be used.

The directors of the Yale gymnasium have decided to put in hand ball courts. The game will be pushed in the eastern schools.

He proposes to have the battle at Havana, Cuba, in December, or at Atlanta, Ga., in June. CLAIM FOR DAMAGES

W. F. Conklin Wants $250 for Injuries to Property by Flooded Cellar.

W. F. Conklin will present to the town council of Chester tonight a bill for damages which he claims to have sustained during last winter. The dates of the water flooding his cellar are December 13, February 3 and 27. The substance of the claims is for damage sustained by reason of the stoppage of the sewer on Carolina avenue, which resulted in the settling of the foundation of house, chimney, wall paper, loss of personal property to the amount of $250. This bill is presented, the amount of $250 fixed, by way of settlement, but on condition that if the amount of damage asked is not settled in full Mr. Conklin will sue for $500.

This is the first climax for damages that has been filed against the town, and recently the street committee viewed the street and damages that Mr. Conklin claims to have lost by being flooded, and reported back to council that in their opinion the town was not to blame in the matter. Mr. Conklin will be represented by an attorney at the meeting and intends to take immediate action in case his claim is ignored.

SCHOOL ENUMERATION

Secretary Alex G. Pugh has received the reports of the school enumeration ending April 1. The enrollment of the Chester schools shows a membership of 462, an increase over the previous school year, which was 320. The funds for school purposes from the state will be greatly increased on account of the growth of the population of Chester and Grant district. The state tax for school purposes is $1 per capita and with the fines from misdemeanor cases, which are also turned into the school fund, will help the county in providing a new school in the town.

The next term of school is expected to bring forth so many applications from new pupils that the school board is aware that provision must be made for additional school room, and will take action at an early meeting.

NEW OIL COMPANY

Has Large Leases And Will Drill for Oil Back of Chester.

A company is being formed of East Liverpool and Chester parties for the development for oil on the farms of James Allison, Ebert Niswonger, Edward Hadley and W. C. Allison. These farms are back of Chester about three miles and the territory has never been worked. The leases of these four farms include an acreage of about 450 acres. Options will be secured on adjacent territory of 500 acres.

The leases call for work to be commenced inside of 30 days, and on Monday the first of the wells to be sunk will be located. Arrangements are now under way toward securing the services of drilling contractors and bids on the work.

She had a number of friends in East Liverpool and Chester who will be pained to hear of her death.

The case of Allison against Shrader to set aside the sale of a piece of property above Chester, was confirmed in court yesterday. Mr. Shrader was given a deed to the property and the case settled.

large and substantial increase in the number of residence buildings, new additions have been opened, new streets have been laid out, the output of the potteries and the number of kilns have increased; and, in fact, every line of trade and manufacture represented in the city has prospered. Development can be noted in all sections of the city, but it has been the greatest perhaps in the East End, owing to the two mammoth plants of the Homer Laughlin China company. The growth of the East End in population and residences has been truly wonderful.

Hundreds of new dwellings have been constructed upon the Northside, and what three years ago were barren fields are now well built up streets, upon which are magnificent homes. The hillsides and the hilltops are becoming more and more popular as residence districts. In the central part of the city improvements have naturally been on a much smaller scale. A number of substantial buildings have been constructed, but many more are needed to keep pace with the growth along other lines. The West End shows a vast improvement over three years ago, both as to population and residences. It has kept pace with the other sections in the strong and healthy growth.

The fact that East Liverpool, rated at little more than 16,000 three years ago, is now over 20,000 is indisputable. The inducements are greater and the prospects are brighter for a continuance of the development at a more rapid rate. A new street car line to the East End districts and to the Northside is soon to be built. The Youngstown & Southern railway is not a myth by any means and will, within a reasonable period, become a reality. The prospect of the Wabash entering the city is not discouraging. The industries which have made possible the growth of the past three years will afford the same, if not a better opportunity for the future.

Life Plant Cures Rheumatism.

Because it purifies the Blood. Rheumatism is caused by the presence of an excess of Uric acid in the Blood. Uric acid is caused by a peculiar fermentation product. You must remove the cause to cure Rheumatism. Drive out the Uric acid and prevent its formation. Life Plant opens up the organs of excretion, which in time carry off the Uric acid, and thus removes the cause. It not only removes the cause, but it prevents the formation of the Uric acid, and prevents a recurrence of the disease. It renews life. Restores and Renews the vital element in the blood and makes you strong and vigorous. Read what Geo. Crater says:

Life Plant Company, Messrs:—
For the benefit of those who have Rheumatism, I take the liberty to inform you of my remarkable cure by the use of Life Plant. Had Rheumatism for six years. Shoulders so affected as to prevent my lying on either side. Sciatic Rheumatism in my right leg, gave me many sleepless hours at night. Lumps came in the veins of my wrists and neck, very painful to the touch. Physicians and medicines failed to benefit me. At last I was induced to try Life Plant, three bottles cured me. No more lumps, no more soreness, no more pain. I am well and all right.
Yours truly, George Crater,
Member, Board of Equalization.

Over-Work Weakens Your Kidneys.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

All the blood in your body passes through your kidneys once every three minutes.

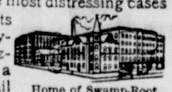
Pains, aches and rheumatism come from excess of uric acid in the blood, due to neglected kidney trouble.

Kidney trouble causes quick or unsteady heart beats, and makes one feel as though they had heart trouble, because the heart is over-working in pumping thick, kidney-poisoned blood through veins and arteries.

It used to be considered that only urinary troubles were to be traced to the kidneys, but now modern science proves that nearly all constitutional diseases have their beginning in kidney trouble.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.



Home of Swamp-Root.

ANNUAL CLEANING CAUSES FIRE

Twenty-Two Families Driven Into Street—One Person Burned to Death.

New York, April 3.—One person dead, so badly burned as to be unrecognizable, eight others injured, a panis in which 22 families were driven into the street, and a property loss of $10,900, make up the result of a fire which started in a five-story tenement house in Rivington street.

Of those injured only two, Mrs. M. Hochman, 10 years old, and Samuel Hochman, 8 years, were seriously hurt.

The fire, the police say, is the result of the annual cleanup of the East Side district prior to the beginning of the feast of Passover. This cleaning already has begun and the hallway of the big tenement was filled with old bedding and the like that had been piled up ready to be thrown into the streets. The owner of the building was having the house renovated and the painters had been at work painting and varnishing the stairways and some of the hall floors. The fire started under the stairway on the ground floor hall. Most of the tenants were at supper at the time, and those who got out of the building for the most part had to use the fire escapes.

Police and Citizens Killed.

Monterey, Mexico, April 3.—During the celebration of the victory of the republic with troops under General Diaz, at Puebla, April 2, 1867, political capital was made of the affair by the partisans of the various candidates for governor of the state of Neuvo Leon and a mob of 15,000 citizens formed and marched to the residence of Governor Reyes and hurled a shower of stones at the governor and shouted "Death to Reyes." The police were sent for and in the mix-up that ensued in dispersing the mob two policemen and two citizens were killed and many wounded.

New Consul General Arrives.

Montreal, April 3.—Major Allenson Edwards, the new United States consul general, has arrived and will take over the office. Major Bittinger, who resigned the office, will leave for his home in Missouri. The new consul general, referring to the influx of Americans into Canada, said that from North Dakota alone 50,000 might be expected this year.

Nice Sum for Actors' Fund.

Philadelphia, April 3.—At the second annual benefit of the actors' fund of America, given at the Garrick theater, nearly $2,000 was realized for the fund for the actors' home. Actors and actresses from the various companies now in the city volunteered their services for the performance.

The New Arabian Nights

Not many steps beyond the shop he was conscious of a sudden shock, a hand upon his throat, an infuriated face close to his own and an open mouth howling curses in his ear. The dictator, having found no trace of his quarry, was returning by the other way. Francis was a stalwart young fellow, but he was no match for his adversary whether in strength or skill, and after a few ineffectual struggles he resigned himself entirely to his captor.

"What do you want with me?" said he.

"We will talk of that at home," returned the dictator grimly.

And he continued to march the young man up hill in the direction of the house with the green blinds.

But Francis, although he no longer struggled, was only waiting an opportunity to make a bold push for freedom. With a sudden jerk, he left the collar of his coat in the hands of Mr. Vandeleur and once more made off at his best speed in the direction of the boulevards.

The tables were now turned. If the dictator was the stronger, Francis, in the top of his youth, was the more fleet of foot, and he had soon effected his escape among the crowds. Relieved for a moment, he walked briskly until he debouched upon the Place de l'Opera, lighted up like day with electric lamps.

And, turning to his right along the boulevards, he entered the Cafe Americain and ordered some beer. It was both late and early for the majority of the frequenters of the establishment. Only two or three persons, all men, were dotted here and there at separate tables in the hall, and Francis was too much occupied by his own thoughts to observe their presence.

He drew the handkerchief from his pocket. The object wrapped in it proved to be a morocco case, clasped and ornamented in gilt, which opened by means of a spring and disclosed to the horrified young man a diamond of monstrous bigness and extraordinary brilliancy. The circumstance was so inexplicable, the value of the stone was plainly so enormous, that Francis sat staring into the open casket without movement, without conscious thought, like a man stricken with idiocy.

A hand was laid upon his shoulder lightly, but firmly, and a quiet voice, which yet had in it the ring of command, uttered these words in his ear:

"Close the casket and compose your face."

Looking up, he beheld a man, still young, of an urbane and tranquil presence and dressed with rich simplicity. This personage had risen from a neighboring table and, bringing his glass with him, had taken a seat beside Francis.

"Close the casket," repeated the stranger, "and put it quietly back into your pocket, where I feel persuaded it should never have been. Try, if you please, to throw off your bewildered air and act as though I were one of your acquaintances whom you had met by chance. So! Touch glasses with me. That is better. I fear, sir, you must be an amateur."

"For God's sake," said Francis, "tell me who you are and what this means? Why I should obey your most unusual suggestions I am sure I know not, but the truth is I have fallen this evening into so many perplexing adventures, and all I meet conduct themselves so strangely, that I think I must either have gone mad or wandered into another planet. Your face inspires me with confidence. You seem wise, good and experienced. Tell me, for heaven's sake, why you accost me in so odd a fashion?"

"All in due time," replied the stranger. "But I have the first hand, and you must begin by telling me how the rajah's diamond is in your possession."

"The rajah's diamond!" echoed Francis.

"I would not speak so loud if I were you," returned the other. "But most certainly you have the rajah's diamond in your pocket. I have seen and handled it a score of times in Sir Thomas Vandeleur's collection."

"Sir Thomas Vandeleur! The general! My father!" cried Francis.

"Your father?" repeated the stranger. "I was not aware the general had any family."

"I am illegitimate, sir," replied Francis, with a flush.

The other bowed with gravity. It was a respectful bow, as of a man silently apologizing to his equal, and Francis felt relieved and comforted, he scarce knew why. The society of this person did him good. He seemed to touch firm ground. A strong feeling of respect grew up in his bosom and mechanically he removed his wide-awake as though in the presence of a superior.

"I perceive," said the stranger, "that your adventures have not all been peaceful. Your collar is torn, your face is scratched, and you have a cut upon your temple. You will perhaps pardon my curiosity when I ask you to explain how you came by these injuries and how you happen to have stolen property to an enormous value in your pocket."

"I must differ from you," returned Francis hotly. "I possess no stolen property, and if you refer to the diamond it was given to me not an hour ago by Miss Vandeleur in the Rue Lepic."

"By Miss Vandeleur of the Rue Lepic!" repeated the other. "You interest me more than you suppose. Pray continue."

"Heavens!" cried Francis.

His memory had made a sudden bound. He had seen Mr. Vandeleur take an article from the breast of his drugged visitor, and that article, he was now persuaded, was a morocco case.

"You have a light?" inquired the stranger.

"Listen," replied Francis. "I know not what you are, but I believe you to be worthy of confidence and helpful. I find myself in strange waters. I must have counsel and support, and since you invite me I shall tell you all."

And he briefly recounted his experiences since the day when he was summoned from the bank by his lawyer.

"Yours is indeed a remarkable history," said the stranger after the young man had made an end of his narrative, "and your position is full of difficulty and peril. Many would counsel you to seek out your father and give the diamond to him, but I have other views. Waiter!" he cried.

The waiter drew near.

"Will you ask the manager to speak with me a moment?" said he. And Francis observed once more, both in his tone and manner, the evidence of a habit of command.

The waiter withdrew and returned in a moment with the manager, who bowed with obsequious respect.

"What," said he, "can I do to serve you?"

"Have the goodness," replied the stranger, indicating Francis, "to tell this gentleman my name."

"You have the honor, sir," said the functionary, addressing young Scrymgeour, "to occupy the same table with his highness Prince Florizel of Bohemia."

Francis arose with precipitation and made a grateful reverence to the prince, who bade him resume his seat.

"I thank you," said Florizel, once more addressing the functionary. "I am sorry to have deranged you for so small a matter."

"You have done right," said Florizel. "Your sentiments have properly inspired you, and you will live to be grateful for the misfortunes of tonight. A man, Mr. Scrymgeour, may fall into a thousand perplexities, but if his heart be upright and his intelligence unclouded he will issue from them all without dishonor. Let your mind be at rest. Your affairs are in my hand, and with the aid of heaven I am strong enough to bring them to a good end. Follow me, if you please, to my carriage."

So saying, the prince arose and, having left a piece of gold for the waiter, conducted the young man from the cafe and along the boulevard to where an unpretentious brougham and a couple of servants out of livery awaited his arrival.

"This carriage," said he, "is at your disposal. Collect your baggage as rapidly as you can make it convenient, and my servants will conduct you to a villa in the neighborhood of Paris where you can wait in some degree of comfort until I have had time to arrange your situation. You will find there a pleasant garden, a library of good authors, a cook, a cellar and some good cigars, which I recommend to your attention. Jerome," he added, turning to one of the servants, "you have heard what I say. I leave Mr. Scrymgeour in your charge. You will, I know, be careful of my friend."

Francis uttered some broken phrases of gratitude.

"It will be time enough to thank me," said the prince, "when you are acknowledged by your father and married to Miss Vandeleur."

And with that the prince turned away and strolled leisurely in the direction of Montmartre. He hailed the first passing cab, gave an address, and a quarter of an hour afterward, having discharged the driver some distance lower, he was knocking at Mr. Vandeleur's garden gate.

It was opened with singular precautions by the dictator in person.

"Who are you?" he demanded.

"You must pardon me this late visit, Mr. Vandeleur," replied the prince.

The prince profited by the open space and without waiting for his host walked right into the house and opened the door of the saloon. Two people were seated there. One was Miss Vandeleur, who bore the marks of weeping about her eyes and was still shaken from time to time by a sob. In the other the prince recognized the young man who had consulted him on literary matters about a month before in a club smoking room.

"Good evening, Miss Vandeleur," said Florizel. "You look fatigued. Mr. Rolles, I believe? I hope you have profited by the study of Gaboriau, Mr. Rolles."

But the young clergyman's temper was too much imbittered for speech, and he contented himself with bowing stiffly and continued to gnaw his lip.

"To what good wind," said Mr. Vandeleur, following his guest, "am I to attribute the honor of your highness' presence?"

"I am come on business," returned the prince—"on business with you. As soon as that is settled I shall request Mr. Rolles to accompany me for a walk. Mr. Rolles," he added, with severity, "let me remind you that I have not yet sat down."

Woman Caused General Fight.

Newark, O., April 3.—Utica was the scene of a sensational horse-whipping affair which ended in a street fight between four of the most prominent citizens of the place. Mrs. Sperry, wife of Fred S. Sperry, was talking to a friend, and in doing so stepped on a lot belonging to Benjamin Haynes. Mrs. Haynes ordered her off, when Dr. Garrison interfered. Mrs. Haynes then attacked Dr. Garrison on the street with a horsewhip, her husband assisting. Dr. Garrison's son, Odell, defended his father, and for a time a fierce battle raged.

THE STRUGGLE FOR MARKETS WILL BRING ON WAR

By POULTNEY BIGELOW, Traveler and Author

TODAY we are approaching a struggle for more markets. I don't say that we need them, but the movement is fast growing, and as a result THERE IS BOUND TO BE A PHYSICAL CLASH. As in reform movements old men avoid the fight, we expect that every thirty years young men who don't know what war is are full of enthusiasm and want to fight. My objection to war is that the wrong men get killed. The men who start the war remain home, and the young men are sent to the front, to come back filled with disease.

When the struggle is over, the contractors and stockbrokers pull the chestnuts out of the fire. It was the same way in Johannesburg before the Boer war, and those who spread dissension took no part in the conflict. The Spanish war was too easy for us, and you may assume that the war feeling which prevails throughout the country as a result is dangerous. The same thing is true in Germany, but there was no such feeling there after the Franco-Prussian war.

WE MUST FACE THE WAR THAT IS NOT INEVITABLE, BUT PROBABLE. WE MUST REMEMBER THAT THERE ARE MEN IN EUROPE WHO ARE TRAINED TO THINK OF NOTHING BUT WAR AND ARE ONLY AWAITING THE CHANCE.

Germany is very strong, and Germans think so. We may say that the whole strength of Germany is now being expended on a navy. Germans do not take naturally to the sea, but it has been forced on them by the German emperor, who COULD MAKE DRAWINGS BOTH OF THE INSIDE AND OUTSIDE OF ALL OUR WAR VESSELS. Through his spies he knew all about our unpreparedness in the Spanish war. Germany has a powerful army, and they think that a strong navy is destiny. Germany means to be as great a naval power as she is a land power.

UNCLE SAM'S TARS TO BE ATHLETIC

FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL

With Teams Representing Every Craft Will Be a Feature of the Navy Hereafter—The President Encouraging the Athletic Tendency.

President Roosevelt, who, as assistant secretary of the navy, first supplied American sailors with boxing gloves, has now seen to it that every ship's crew is to have complete outfits of up-to-date baseball material in order that nines and elevens, to rival college teams ashore, shall be established to represent every craft.

When President Roosevelt became assistant secretary of the navy he looked up the matter of athletic equipment for the men. He found that dumbbells, Indian clubs and fencing outfits were furnished naval officers, but that the department, while looking with favor on athletics among the men, failed to supply them with any material. The apostle of the strenuous life and exercise at once issued an order to supply every one of the smaller ships in the navy with four sets of boxing gloves, and to double the number on battleships and cruisers. Not only was the development of the manly art to be permitted, but officers were directed to encourage the use of the boxing gloves supplied to the fullest extent.

Today there are champions on every ship in the navy in every class, and the men as a rule have been found to be remarkably proficient with their hands on occasions when shore leave brought them in contact with sailormen of other navies. So much so that care is now exercised by the department to prevent American ships touching too frequently at ports where warships of other nations are calling.

Recently a friend of the president's who is a baseball enthusiast, suggested that the development of the national game among the sailors of the navy might not be a bad thing. A number of the ships have had nines on board of which the crew grew extraordinarily proud in time and there is always playing where the rendezvous of a fleet or squadron gives opportunity for shore leave and athletics. But the department has never given the game the official encouragement accorded to boxing, rowing, sailing or swimming.

President Roosevelt became interested in the question, held a conference with Secretary Moody, and as a result equipment not only for baseball but football as well has been added to the navy list of articles for which formal requisition may be made. For instance, the requisition just filled for the battleship Missouri includes tyenty-four baseballs, four footballs, twelve bats, four catcher's masks, four catcher's mitts, four chest protectors, nine basemen's mitts, two dozen suits, stockings, padded knickerbockers, belts and all, two punching bags and six pairs of eight ounce boxing gloves.

Furthermore an official order of the department commands ship commanders to report when there shall be on board their ships nines sufficiently skilled to be in a sort of championship class with an association organized among the crew to back it up. The ship shall then be entitled to extra uniforms for this particular nine each with the name of the ship printed in large luxuriant letters over the breast of the shirt. Moreover pennants are to be supplied by the government to be contested for by the nines belonging to any one squadron whenever the squadron commander shall request their issue. Other trophies for rowing, sailing, football and broadsword contests will also be supplied. With the mare furnished glass cases for their protection and exhibition on board the ship. President Roosevelt is displayed as the true college man in his reverence for athletic trophies in this last provision. College athletes who wander into a battleship of the navy at some future date after this system has been in operation might well fancy themselves in the trophy rooms of their home institutions.

DELAWARE'S NEW UNITED STATES SENATORS.

J. Frank Allee and L. Heisler Ball, Delaware's new senators, were both conspicuous in the long but unsuccessful fight of J. Edward Addicks for a senatorial toga. Allee was Addicks' manager in the struggle and Ball, congressman at large from Delaware, was the leader of the opposition.

ELOPED SECOND DAY AFTER WIFE'S FUNERAL

Cadiz, April 3.—The quiet little village of Hopedale, this county, has been stirred from center to circumference by what is considered the most peculiar and striking sensation ever known in this section of the state. Jesse, better known as "Doc" Martin, who owned the best livery stable in the town, and who was said to be well fixed financially, married a daughter of Weston Baker, and all went well until about a year ago, when Mr. Martin began to treat his wife cruelly and pay attention to other women.

A short time ago he went home under the influence of drink and caught their little girl, who is but a few years old, and poured nearly a half pint of whisky down her throat. Relatives had the cruel father arrested and suits of various nature, which were said to be very sensational, were brought in the county courts, but have not yet been heard, and likely never will, as Mrs. Martin was seized with nervous prostration, caused, it is said, by abuses and humiliation, and died. Two days after the funeral Mr. Martin and Mrs. Penn, wife of a well known citizen of the town, eloped and have not been heard from since.

It is said that if Martin should return he would be very apt to receive severe treatment at the hands of the enraged citizens of that community. Martin is a brother of Mrs. Guice, who received the price of a farm from her husband if she would leave him.

GANG OF YOUNG TOUGHS CREDITED WITH THEFTS

A gang of ruffians infests the city and as a result of their workings numerous complaints are being heard daily accompanied by the request that the band be arrested and sent from the city. There are about six young men in the gang and they can be seen together parading the streets at almost any hour of the day and night. To them is given the credit for the numerous cases of petty thieving reported of late and it is the prediction of many that unless the members of the gang are rounded up and given a stiff sentence a theft of more serious proportions will occur in the near future.

One of the schemes worked by the men as a means of livelihood is to buy or steal an old brass ring for ten or fifteen cents, and, meeting a stranger, put up a coy of hard luck and prevail upon him to give them 50 cents for the ring which they say is solid gold, a gift of their mother who is now dead, and that were it not for their destitute circumstances they would not think of parting with the jewelry. Two of the gang stopped a well known business man at a late hour on Fifth street last night and rudely demanded that he either give them the price asked for the ring or enough to get a drink. The man approached is not little in stature and starting at them with blood in his eyes, put them to flight.

HARRY M. SMITH NOW A PHYSICIAN

Columbus, April 3.—(Special)—Harry Milton Smith, colored, of East Liverpool, who has just completed a four years' course at the Ohio Medical university, at Columbus, has passed the examination with high honors and is now a full fledged physician.

Mr. Smith is doubtless the first representative of his race from East Liverpool to become a legally qualified practitioner of medicine, and his success is due solely to indefatigable individual effort. He supported himself and paid his way through college by working at barbering before and after school hours. He is popular and of excellent address, posseses high literary attainments and polish, and should make his mark. He is a member of the East Liverpool High School alumni graduating in the class of '95.

Mr. Smith was born in East Liverpool on March 24, 1873, and is the son of Preston C. Smith, of 358 Fourth street, East Liverpool. Mrs. Jiles A. Goode, whose sweet voice has delighted East Liverpool audiences on many occasions, is a sister, and John Granville Smith, of the East End, is a brother. Mr. Smith will leave here in June to open an office in Pittsburg.

SON DEAD, MOTHER DYING

Steubenville, April 3. — On the threshold of death in a little three-room house at Bustard's shaft, Mrs. Mary McGivern, lay for hours this morning near the dead body of her son. Almost 100 years of age, with no one to care for her and old age and sickness having become master over her body, the aged woman was unable to summon assistance or to go to the bedside of her son.

The McGivern family, composed of mother and three sons, Michael, Frank and Patrick, the latter of Toronto, are old residents of Steubenville. The sons, Michael and Frank, live with their mother and worked as section hands on the C. & P. For a week Frank has been complaining of pains in his chest, back and side, but still he continued to work. Wednesday, however, he became so sick that he could no longer handle a shovel, and in order to have him treated the brother, Michael, sent for Dr. Laughlin, and then went to his work.

Shortly after 11 o'clock, when Dr. Curt Laughlin went to the house he opened the door, and going to the bed where the son Frank lay he found that he was dead, and an examination showed that he had been dead several hours. Death probably occurred soon after the brother left the house to go to work.

The mother was too weak to know what was going on and in the hope of restoring her to consciousness medical treatment was given her, but it served to no purpose, and it is probable that the mother, who has been ill for several weeks, will follow her son to the grave, as her death is expected in a few hours.

VESSELS IN PERILOUS CONDITION

St. Johns, N. F., April 3.—According to reports from Bay of Islands, on the west coast of Newfoundland, the 10 American fishing vessels which have been frozen into the ice field there since Jan. 17 are in a perilous position, owing to the ice floes drifting after a severe storm on Tuesday night. The vessels' provisions are also running out and the crews have been put on short rations. The whole settlement of 3,000 people at Bay of Islands is dangerously short of provisions and much anxiety prevails.

The gulf of St. Lawrence is blocked with ice as far as the eye can reach. The railway line across Newfoundland has been blocked by snow drifts since the middle of February and not a single train has been running since. It is not known when the road will be open again, the railway employes being unable to clear the line because of the blizzards in the interior. The government probably will dispatch a sealing steamer laden with provisions to relieve the inhabitants at Bay of Islands from the danger of famine, which is declared to be inevitable unless relief arrives. The steamer will also endeavor to cut out the American fishing vessels.

Mrs. McKinley in Runaway Accident.

Canton, O., April 3.—While Mrs. McKinley was on her way to the cemetery, where she goes daily to visit her husband's grave, her team started on a runaway down the Fifth street hill, which is quite steep. After they were about half way down the hill, and it seemed impossible for Mrs. McKinley to retain her seat in the carriage, one of the horses fell and rolled under the front wheels of the vehicle, stopping it almost instantly. Neither Mrs. McKinley nor the driver were hurt, but Mrs. McKinley is quite ill as a result of the trying experience.

Brewers Appeal to Court.

Columbus, O., April 3.—Judge Bigger issued a temporary order restraining the 600 striking brewery workers from establishing pickets in the vicinity of the local breweries to interfering with or intimidating the men who may be employed there. No attempt was made by the brewers to deliver beer, but it is expected an effort will be made to fill the places of the strikers.

Desires to Be an Actress.

Pennell Inquest Next Friday.

Buffalo, April 3.—Judge Murphy announced that the inquest into the death of Arthur R. Pennell will be held at the office of the medical examiner at 3 o'clock next Friday afternoon.

Massillon Miners Quit.

Massillon, O., April 3.—The 3,000 miners of this district have quit work. The controversy hinges on the wage scale of the outdoor day laborers.

SEPARATE PROTOCOLS

To Be Drawn Up Between Venezuela and British, German and Italian Governments.

Meeting Has Been Arranged and Will Be Attended by Representatives of Allied Powers—Proposed Amendments to Be Discussed.

Washington, April 3.—Work on The Hague protocols will begin today. A meeting has been arranged for 11 o'clock at the British embassy, which will be attended by the diplomatic representatives of the allied powers—Great Britain, Germany and Italy. Certain proposed amendments to the draft of the protocol submitted to the British ambassador by Mr. Bowen have been suggested by the allies and these will be discussed. It is probable that it will be some days before a common ground of agreement is reached.

The amendments to the protocol were handed to Mr. Bowen by the British ambassador, but the former does not feel at liberty to discuss them in advance of the meeting. They have formed the subject of diplomatic exchanges between the foreign offices of the allies in Europe for some time and it is now understood that they are practically on the basis on which the protocol should be drawn.

Separate protocols are to be drawn up between Mr. Bowen, representing Venezuela, and the British, German and Italian governments, providing for mixed commissions to sit at Caracas to adjudicate the claims of the citizens of those countries against the South American republic. The protocol of Feb. 13, which, in addition to sending the question of preferential treatment to The Hague, also provided for such commissions, is unsatisfactory on some points, and for this reason the new agreements are to be signed. This will be done at the request of the representatives of the allied governments.

DINNER OF HOME MARKET CLUB

Secretary Root and Senator Lodge Guests of Honor and Principal Speakers.

Boston, April 3.—Elihu Root, secretary of war, and United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, were the guests of honor and principal speakers at the annual dinner of the Home Market club, the representative Republican organization of New England. The occasion was of signal interest not only because at it, as at all meetings of the Home Market club, were expounded the principles and policies of the Republican party, but because the speeches of Secretary Root and Senator Lodge were regarded particularly as the words of the administration at Washington on the anticipated issues of the next national canvass.

Mr. Root spoke on the tariff and Mr. Lodge on the question of Canadian reciprocity and of the charges made against the American soldiers in the Philippines.

Governor John L. Bates also spoke although briefly, in the way of greeting to the guests. All three speakers were accorded magnificent ovations.

NERVOUS HEADACHE

The Cause of Much Suffering to Women Is Permanently Cured When the System Is Built Up By

DR. A. W. CHASE NERVE PILLS.

THIS SHAPED BOX - NO OTHER

Mrs. John Fall, of 4th St., Toronto, O., says: "I like Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills because they cured my nervous, sick headaches—these headaches used to play me out and leave me weak and nervous, the pain being so severe. My eyes used to get stiff and sore during the attack and the neck and so stiff I could hardly turn it. The Nerve Pills, however, proved to be just what I needed and cured the attacks in a hurry. As a result I feel steady in nerves, physically strong and vigorous and in every way sound and well. This makes me feel I can't speak too highly of the medicine."

When the head aches hard and throbs; when the neck and eyes grow stiff, the face flushes or grows deathly white; when any excitement or over effort brings on an attack of nervous headache so severe that it leaves you weak, trembly, shaky and utterly worthless for days, it is a sure indication that the nervous system is shattered—that resistive power is gone—that you need a medicine that will rebuild and re-supply the lost nerve force, that will so strengthen you that you can resist and overcome these terrible seizures. Such a medicine is Dr. A. W. CHASE'S NERVE PILLS, a medicine that does not relieve but goes to the root of the trouble and positively cures.

Mrs. Della Kerns, of No. 716 Seneca St., Buffalo, N. Y., says: "When I got the box of Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills I was so nervous I could not keep still, could not sleep and was in a mighty bad state. My head ached hard—those hard, racking, nervous headaches that left me weak and prostrated. I took the box of medicine and since that time have been all right—no headaches—no nervousness, feel strong and vigorous, and can sleep well again. I am glad, indeed, to recommend the medicine, as I consider it a safe and certain cure for such troubles. In action it is very pleasant and agreeable and what is more, devoid of all the unpleasant effects of the usual headache preparations. It certainly is a grand medicine."

CHRONIC SORES

Signs of Polluted Blood.

There is nothing so repulsive looking and disgusting as an old sore. You worry over it till the brain grows weary and work with it until the patience is exhausted, and the very sight of the old festering, sickly looking place makes you irritable, despondent and desperate.

A chronic sore is the very best evidence that your blood is in an unhealthy and impoverished condition, that your constitution is breaking down under the effects of some serious disorder. The taking of strong medicines, like mercury or potash, will sometimes so pollute and vitiate the blood and impair the general system that the merest scratch or bruise results in obstinate non-healing sores of the most offensive character.

Often an inherited taint breaks out in frightful eating sores upon the limbs or face in old age or middle life. Whenever a sore refuses to heal the blood is always at fault, and, while antiseptic washes, salves, soaps and powders can do much to keep down the inflammation and cleanse the sore, it will never heal permanently till the blood itself has been purified and the deadly germs and poisons destroyed, and with S. S. S. this can be accomplished—the SSS polluted blood is purified and invigorated, and when rich, pure blood is again circulating freely throughout the body the flesh around the old sore begins to take on a natural color, the discharge of matter ceases and the place heals over.

S. S. S. is both a blood purifier and tonic that puts your blood in order and at the same time tones up the system and builds up the general health. If you have a chronic sore write us. No charge for medical advice.

SETTLEMENT IN SIGHT

MINOR DIFFERENCES DISPOSED OF

President Ramsey Still Absent in Egypt at Bedside of Sick Daughter. Attorneys Anxious for Peaceful Settlement of All Difficulties.

St. Louis, April 3.—Everything seems to point to the amicable adjustment within a short time of the differences existing between the Wabash Railroad company and its employes. Attorneys for the parties to the controversy held several conferences which had for their purpose the paving of the way for a resumption of negotiations between railroad officials and brotherhood men, broken off on March 3 by the issuance of Judge Adams' writ of injunction. It is stated that all these conferences, at which Messrs. Hannahan and Lee, brotherhood officials, were present, many of the minor differences were disposed of and the field cleared for the discussion of the main grievances.

Efforts are being made to effect a temporary agreement between the railroad company and its employes which will carry the matters in controversy until the return of President Ramsey from the sick bed of his daughter in Egypt. Several conferences looking to a reopening of negotiations between the leaders of the brotherhoods and the Wabash officials have been held by the legal representatives of the railroad and its men.

FIGHTING IN SANTO DOMINGO.

Cape Haytian, Haiti, April 3.—The situation in Santo Domingo city is very critical. The commander of the United States cruiser Atlanta landed a detachment of 50 blue jackets to guard the United States consulate general in that city. A shell fired by the Dominican cruiser Presidente, which is on the side of President Vasquez, fell on the German consulate. The damage done, however, was purely material, as the projectile happily did not burst.

A battle lasting three hours has taken place between the government troops and revolutionists on the banks of the river Ozama. A hundred men were killed or wounded.

How He Lost His Vote

I had stopped on an Arkansas highway to talk to a man about the state election held the preceding day, but he replied that his vote had been challenged by a woman and lost, and he had taken but little interest in the matter.

"How did a woman come to challenge your vote," I asked, "and why didn't you swear your vote in?"

"Waal," he replied, looking furtively about, "I'm not much up on law, so I didn't hold out fur what might hev bin my rights. When I left Indiana two y'ars ago, I also left the ole woman thar, and I sorter figgered when she turned up at the polls that it was p'raps jist as well not to quote law or git into any dispute if I could help it.

"Yes, I lost my vote, but I hain't feelin' bad about it. Fact is, stranger, when I think how I outrun Hanner in that two mile race through the bresh I feel powerful thankful that only my vote was lost—powerful thankful. Kin yo' spar me a pinch o' terbacker? Seems like it has a soothin' effect on my nerves, and I can't say when Hanner may bob up again and gin me another run fur life."

Disclaimed Glory.

"What's your name, my lad?"

"John L. Sullivan. But I ain't de prizefighter, honest."—San Francisco Examiner.

His Business.

While Lord Charles Beresford was in New York he told of one of his tenants who conducted a small undertaker's establishment in Waterford. One day he met her and asked how the business was getting along.

"Grand, me lord!" she exclaimed. "I now have the luckiest little hearse you ever saw. Glory be to goodness, it was never a day idle since I got it."—New York Times.

He Wasn't.

"Don't stand on ceremony. Come in," said a lady to an old farmer who had called to see her husband.

"My gracious! Excuse me, marm," exclaimed the other, jumping hastily aside. "I thought I was only standing on the doormat."—Youth.

Didn't Fare Well.

"Was it a 'farewell tour?'" asked the close friend.

"I should say not," responded the heavy tragedian, who had been greeted with overripe vegetables. "I never fared worse in my life."—Philadelphia Record.

The Baseball Enthusiast.

Once more the frail arbutus smiles
And wakes the soul to song;
The springtime blossoming beguiles
The heart, but not for very long.
For, though the sun kissed blooms be sweet,
Their joys ere long must pall.
My happiness is not complete
Till some one smites the ball.
The gentle birds who soar on high,
With songs so sweet and clear,
Are not so welcome to mine eye
As that well batted sphere.
In sylvan haunts I would not dwell.
I'd rather, once for all,
Sit on a bench and whoop and yell
When some one smites the ball.

"MONROE DOCTRINE"

Subject of President Roosevelt's Address at Auditorium in Chicago,

SIX THOUSAND PEOPLE HEAR IT

President Has Busy Day, Including Address at Evanston, Trip to University, Banquet in Evening and Speech at Auditorium.

Chicago, April 3.—President Roosevelt's "sixty-six" day tour of the west began in earnest when he stepped from the Pennsylvania special and was received by Mayor Harrison and a special reception committee.

While the greetings were being exchanged and the members of the reception committee and the Evanston hosts presented by Mayor Harrison, the president's special train was switched to the tracks of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road for the run to the North Shore suburb.

At Evanston the president was greeted by Mayor J. A. Patten, and then, headed by a detachment of cavalry from Fort Sheridan and a military band, the party made its way through lanes of school children on the streets and of capped and gowned students on the campus to the steps of Lunt library. As the university grounds were entered a salute of 21 guns was fired.

The president was introduced by President Edmund J. James and made a brief address to the students, referring principally to the value of a college education.

At the conclusion of the president's address the party re entered the train and was hurried back to the city without a stop. Arriving again at the Union station, carriages were taken to the Auditorium.

President Made an LL.D.

After luncheon the start for the University of Chicago was made in carriages. The presidential party was met by the faculty and trustees, in cap and gown, and led by President Harper. The latter advanced as the president alighted and the two grasped hands and exchanged compliments. A few minutes were consumed and then the 250 professors escorted the president between files of 3,000 students to Kent theater, where President Harper conferred the degree of LL.D. The services were impressive. Dr. Henry Pratt Judson delivered a short address on "Leadership in Democracy." Dean R. S. Salisbury presented President Roosevelt to Dr. Harper, who addressed him in Latin. The speech lauded the chief magistrate's achievements in statecraft and scholarship. Dr. Harper then handed the president a diploma and directed that the "doctor's hood" be placed upon his shoulders. The president spoke no word, but bowed in acknowledgment of the honor conferred.

At the head of the convocation procession in which the young women of the college participated the president made his way to the site of the new law school building, where preparations had been made for him to lay the cornerstone. An immense stone, weighing seven tons, was ready to be lowered into place. President Roosevelt, trowel in hand, gave the signal, and as the huge mass settled upon its foundation he cast a small quantity of mortar beneath it. President Harper delivered the introductory address and after a short speech to the students by President Roosevelt, Dr. T. W. Goodspeed deposited a number of articles in the cornerstone.

The return to the city was made by way of the Illinois Central railroad, a special train making a fast run to the Van Buren street station. President Roosevelt walked thence to the Auditorium.

Greeting at Auditorium.

Two hours were allowed the distinguished guest to rest from the exertions of the day and to prepare for the banquet set for 6:30 o'clock.

Six thousand people in a hall, the seating capacity of which is but 5,000, gave enthusiastic greeting to President Roosevelt when he stepped upon the stage of the Auditorium.

When the president, escorted by the members of the local committee appeared on the platform he was met with great enthusiasm, the vast crowd rising to its feet and supplementing its hearty cheers with waving programs and fluttering handkerchiefs.

The president acknowledged his reception with repeated bows, and at once took his seat between Franklin MacVeagh, the chairman of the committee, and Mayor Harrison, who was to deliver the formal address of welcome.

As soon as his voice could be heard Mr. MacVeagh in a few words announced that the nation's chief executive would be made welcome to the city by Mayor Harrison, who then spoke briefly, extending to the president a hearty welcome and expressing the pleasure felt by the people of Chicago at his visit, and offering to him their best wishes for a happy and pleasant trip during his two months of vacation.

The president bowed his thanks to Mayor Harrison and to Mr. MacVeagh, who introduced him to his audience, and expressed his pleasure at the cordial reception extended to him upon the first stop of his long trip, and then, turning directly to the audience, proceeded in his peculiarly energetic manner to deliver his address.

The President's Address.

The address in part was as follows:

Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Today I wish to speak to you, not merely about the Monroe doctrine, but about our entire position in the western hemisphere—a position so peculiar and predominant that out of it has grown the acceptance of the Monroe doctrine as a cardinal feature of our foreign policy; and in particular I wish to point out what has been done during the lifetime of the last congress to make our position in accordance with this historic policy.

Ever since the time when we definitely extended our boundaries westward to the Pacific and southward to the Gulf, since the time when the old Spanish and Portuguese colonies to the south of us asserted their independence, our nation has insisted that because of its primacy in strength among the nations of the western hemisphere it has certain duties and responsibilities which oblige it to take a leading part thereon. We hold that our interests in this hemisphere are greater than those of any European power possibly can be, and that our duty to ourselves and to the weaker republics who are our neighbors requires us to see that none of the great military powers from across the seas shall encroach upon the territory of the American republics or acquire control thereover.

This policy, therefore, not only forbids us to acquiesce in such territorial acquisition, but also causes us to object to the acquirement of a control which would in its effect be equal to territorial aggrandizement. This is why the United States has steadily believed that the construction of the great Isthmian canal, the building of which is to stand as the greatest material feat of the twentieth century—greater than any similar feat in any preceding century—should be done by no foreign nation but by ourselves. The canal must of necessity go through the territory of one of our smaller sister republics. We have been scrupulously careful to abstain from perpetrating any wrong upon any of these republics in this matter. We do not wish to interfere with their rights in the least, but, while carefully safeguarding them, to build the canal ourselves under provisions which will enable us, if necessary, to police and protect it, and to guarantee its neutrality, we being the sole guarantor. Our intention was steadfast; we desired action taken so that the canal could always be used by us in time of peace and war alike, and in time of war could never be used to our detriment by any nation which was hostile to use. Such action, by the circumstances surrounding it, was necessarily for the benefit and not the detriment of the adjacent American republics.

Two Important Treaties.

After considerably more than half a century these objects have been exactly fulfilled by the legislation and treaties of the last two years. By the Hay-Pauncefote treaty it was agreed that the canal should be constructed under the auspices of the government of the United States, and that this government should have the exclusive right to regulate and manage it, becoming the sole guarantor if its neutrality.

Immediately following this treaty congress passed a law under which the president was authorized to secure a treaty for acquiring the right to finish the construction of and to operate the Panama canal, which had already been begun in the territory of Colombia by a French company. The rights of this company were accordingly obtained and a treaty negotiated with the republic of Colombia. This treaty has just been ratified by the senate. It reserves all of Colombia's rights, while guaranteeing all of our own and those of neutral nations, and specifically permits us to take any and all measures for the defense of the canal, and for the preservation of our interests. These treaties are among the most important that we have ever negotiated in their effects upon the future welfare of this country, and mark a memorable triumph of American diplomacy—one of those fortunate triumphs, moreover, which redounds to the benefit of the entire world.

About the same time trouble arose in connection with the republic of Venezuela because of certain wrongs alleged to have been committed, and debts overdue, by this republic to citizens of various foreign powers, notably England, Germany and Italy. After failure to reach an agreement these powers began a blockade of the Venezuelan coast and a condition of quasi war ensued. The concern of our government was of course not to interfere needlessly in any quarrel so far as it did not touch our interests or our honor, and not to take the attitude of protecting from coercion any power unless we were willing to espouse the quarrel of that power, but to keep an attitude of watchful vigilance and see that there was no infringement of the Monroe doctrine—no acquirement of territorial rights by a European power at the expense of a weak sister republic—whether this acquisition might take the shape of an outright an avowed seizure of territory or of the exercise of control which would in effect be equivalent to such seizure.

No Violation Intended.

Both powers assured us in explicit terms that there was not the slightest intention on their part to violate the principles of the Monroe doctrine, and this assurance was kept with an honorable good faith which merits full acknowledgment on our part. At the same time, the existence of hostilities in a region so near our own borders was fraught with such possibilities of danger in the future that it was obviously no less our duty to ourselves than our duty to humanity to endeavor to put an end to that. Accordingly, by an offer of our good services in a spirit of frank friendliness to all parties concerned, a spirit in which they quickly and cordially responded, we secured a resumption of peace—the contending parties agreeing that the matters which they could not settle among themselves should be referred to The Hague tribunal for settlement. The United States had most fortunately already been able to set an example to other nations by utilizing the great possibilities for good contained in The Hague tribunal, a question at issue between ourselves and the republic of Mexico being the first submitted to this international court of arbitration.

The terms which we have secured as those under which the Isthmian canal is to be built, and the course of events in the Venezuela matter, have shown not merely the ever growing influence of the United States in the western hemisphere, but also, I think I may safely say, have exemplified the firm purpose of the United States that its growth and influence and power shall redound not to the harm, but to the benefit of our sister republics whose strength is less. Our growth, therefore, is beneficial to human kind in general.

Not International Law.

The Monroe doctrine is not international law, and though I think one day it may become such, this is not necessary as long as it remains a cardinal feature of our foreign policy and as long as we possess both the will and the strength to make it effective. I believe in the Monroe doctrine with all my heart and soul; I am convinced that the immense majority of our fellow-countrymen so believe in it; but I would infinitely prefer to see us abandon it than to see us put it forward and bluster about it, and yet fail to build up the efficient fighting strength which in the last resort can alone make it respected by any strong foreign power whose interest it may ever happen to be to violate it.

There is a homely old adage which runs "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." If the American nation will speak softly, and yet build, and keep at a pitch of the highest training, a thoroughly efficient navy, the Monroe doctrine will go far.

Well, in the last two years I am happy to say we have taken long strides in advance as regards our navy. The last congress, in addition to smaller vessels, provided nine of those formidable fighting ships upon which the real efficiency of any navy in war ultimately depends. It provided, moreover, for the necessary addition of officers and enlisted men to make the ships worth having. Meanwhile the navy department has seen to it that our ships have been constantly exercised at sea, with the great guns, and in maneuvers, so that their efficiency as fighting units, both individually and when acting together, has been steadily improved. Remember that all of this is necessary. A war ship is a huge bit of mechanism, well nigh as delicate and complicated as it is formidable. It takes years to build it. It takes years to teach the officers and men how to handle it to good advantage.

Strong Navy Will Preserve Peace.

The navy which so quickly decided in our favor the war of 1898 had been built and made efficient during the preceding 15 years. The ships that triumphed off Manila and Santiago had been built under previous administrations with money appropriated by previous congresses. The officers and the men did their duty so well because they had already been trained to it by long sea service. All honor to the gallant officers and gallant men who actually did the fighting; but remember, too, to honor the public men, the shipwrights, and steel workers, the owners of the shipyards and armor plants, to whose united foresight and exertion we owe it that in 1898 we had craft so good, guns so excellent, and American seamen of so high a type in the conning towers, in the gun turrets, and in the engine rooms. It is too late to prepare for war when war has come; and if we only prepare sufficiently no war will ever come. We wish a powerful and efficient navy, not for purposes of war, but as the surest guaranty of peace. If we have such a navy—if we keep on building it up—we may rest assured that there is but the smallest chance that trouble will ever come to this nation; and we may likewise rest assured that no foreign power will ever quarrel with us about the Monroe doctrine.

At the conclusion of the address there was renewed and continued applause, and while the greater part of the audience was leaving the hall the president was holding an impromptu reception on the platform.

Immediately preceding his address in the Auditorium, President Roosevelt was entertained at dinner in the banquet hall of the Auditorium by the members of the local entertainment committee. About 150 guests were present, besides the president and his party.

The president after leaving the Auditorium went at once to his room in the hotel, where he partook of a light lunch. His carriage was called within a few minutes after the lunch was finished and he was taken to the station of the Chicago and Northwestern road, where his train was in waiting. He entered the train at once and retired for the night. At midnight the train pulled out for Madison, Wis.
